HOOVER FORESEES FINANCIAL WAR TO GAIN CONTROL OF THE AIRWAYS

Confers With President at Swampscott on Bid of Morgan Interests to Take Over Los Angeles.

ST. LOUIS PLACED ON PROPOSED ROUTE

Other Ships of Similar Type Would Be Put Into Commercial Service Between Large Population Centers

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 8.—War among the financial interests of the country for control of airway transportation—a contest between champions of heavier-than-air craft and those of lighter-than-air, a struggle over the extent to which the Government should go in developing commercial air craft, and development of commercial aviation on a scale never before thought of in the United States—all were envisaged here today by statements made by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Airways filled with ships carrying passengers and freight; landing fields in the centers of population, trails of light on the ground at night to guide the ships in the air; an entirely new element in transportation, competing with rail and water routes, and the foundation laid for military supremacy in the air against all world rivals—are but part of the vision suggested by admissions made by the commerce chief.

Statements made by Hoover followed a conference with President Coolidge at White Court, in which propositions concerning use of the navy dirigible Los Angeles occupied the attention of the President.

Morgan Interests Concerned.

There is before the President today a proposition in which the great Morgan banking interests are concerned.

This particular proposition has been made by Hervert L. Satterlee, brother-in-law of J. P. Morgan; Fred S. Hardesty and John Hays Hammond Jr., the inventor, son of John Hays Hammond, noted mining engineer and millionaire.

Hoover explained that the Government has before it the proposition made by this trio to take over the Los Angeles for operating purposes with the cities of New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Omaha as stations. It is estimated that similar ships will be developed to carry on the passenger and freight traffic to which it is proposed to devote the Los Angeles.

Offer Considered.

About six months, the government tentatively approved a proposition to turn the Los Angeles over to private interests, but to be operated under Government control and with a navy personnel. The latter conditions are attached with the view of building up a trained air personnel for military purposes.

Under the international agreement by which the Los Angeles was built in Germany for the United States, the ship cannot be used for military purposes. The Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce constitute a committee to work the proposed arrangement.

While the Morgan interests —back of the only proposition now before the Government to take the Los Angeles—are making no statements concerning their plans, it is assumed they have in mind the building of this form of craft on a huge scale and that they foresee much of the country's transportation, passenger and freight, diverted from the ground to the air.

Transoceanic airships which may realize the dream of Rear Admiral Moffet, Chief of the Naval Air Service, of taking the short cut from New York to Tokio, over the North Pole, are included in the visions of these daring gamblers in the future.

While Col. William Mitchell of the army has been demoted from his rank as Brigadier-General, following his testimony before the Air Craft Investigating Committee at Washington, it is generally accepted that he gave a splendid impetus to the future development of aviation in America.

Patents controlling two types of lighter-than-air ships are now owned in this country. They are for the Zeppelin type controlled by the Goodyear Rubber people, and for the Schulte type, controlled by the Morgan interest through Satterlee.

French Airmen Fly 2540 Miles Without Stop to Make New World Record

Still in the Air, as News Is Cabled, With Seven Hours of Fuel Left in Tanks—New French Speed Record Also Made.

By the Associated Press.

ETAMPES, France, Aug. 8.—The French aviators Drouhin and Landry, at 10 o'clock tonight became holders of the world's record for a non-stop airplane flight, having covered a distance of 4100 kilometers (2546.1 miles).

The two flyers, who set out at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning to break the world's flight record for duration and distance are flying over a 62-mile course between Chartres and Etampes.

The aviators were still in the air at 10 o'clock and had fuel to keep them going seven hours longer.

The roads in the vicinity of Etampes and Chartres and the hillsides were crowded with automobiles and pedestrians. Among the onlookers were many Americans who decided to pass a part of the night following the trail of the speeding plane.

They had exceeded the French distance record, for continuous flight, made in February by Capt. Lemaitre and Lieut. Arrachard, who flew a little more than 2000 miles in an attempted nonstop flight between Etampes and Dakar, French West Africa. They also had set a new French speed record for 3000 kilometers (1863 miles), which distance they had covered in 29 hours, 25 minutes, 13 seconds, an average of 101.970 kilometers an hour. Both were in excellent physical condition and confident they could remain aloft for 50 hours.

Flying a Farman Goliath 500-horsepower 12-cylinder motor plane, they carried about 1050 gallons of gasoline and 50 gallons of oil. It was believed this was sufficient to keep them in the air for 50 hours.

They aimed at the distance record of 4000 kilometers (2485 miles), made by Lieuts. Kelly and MacReady in a United States Army plane at Dayton, O., in 1923, and at Drouhin's own duration record of 37 hours 59 minutes and 10 seconds, made last year.

EIGHT POUCHES OF AIR MAIL STOLEN IN SAN FRANCISCO

Six Men in Auto Hold Up Truck En Route From Landing Field and Escape in Traffic.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—Eight pouches of air mail which had just arrived from the East were taken from a United States mail truck by six armed men on the San Francisco embarcadero late today.

The truck was on its way from Crissy Field, the air mail landing depot, to the Central Postoffice. The automobile containing the six men drove into the path of the truck, crowded it into the curb and forced it to stop.

The six occupants of the automobile jumped onto the truck, pointed pistols at the driver and unloaded the eight pouches.

Warning the driver not to follow them or to call police, they drove rapidly toward the Ferry Building at the foot of Market street and were lost in the traffic.

The robbery too place so quickly that many persons in the vicinity failed to comprehend what was going on. The driver was the only occupant of the mail truck. Spectators took down the number of the automobile, which was of the closed type, as it dashed down the embarcadero and into the traffic on Market street.

The robbery is believed to be the first robbery of airplane mail since the transportation of mail by airplane was started. Two registered bags were believed to have been among the eight. The driver of the mail truck was questioned by inspectors but released tonight. It was learned that he was a new driver, making his first trip with the mail.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Postoffice officials here said they were without information as to the possible value of the air mail which was stolen in a holdup in San Francisco today.

13 CHILDREN BATHERS LOST

Five Others Missing After Huge Wave Washes Party Out to Sea.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 8.—The bodies of 13 children, between the ages of 9and 14, who were drowned at noon today at the bathing beach at Hardelot, a few miles south of here, when a great wave washed them out to sea, have been recovered and carried to the little chapel near the beach. Five other children who were on the shore still are missing.

The heroic efforts of four priests saved the lives of 10 of the children's party, on a vacation at Hardelot from Northern France towns.

NEW MOTOR FUEL REPORTED DISCOVERED

Synthol, From German Synthetic Wood Alcohol, May Give 50 Miles to Gallon.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Investigation of reports that a marvelous new motor fuel had been discovered disclosed yesterday a romantic story of how patents, under which it can be made lay in a safe six years, with their value once figured at $55 and now estimated at $100,000,000, undiscovered until a minor government employe stumbled on to the key to the secrets they contained.

The patents, 13 of 4500 seized during the World War by the Alien Property Custodian and turned over to the government-formed Chemical Foundation, Inc., for licensing to American manufacturers, now are believed actually to contain secrets which forecast a revolution of manufacturing processes among American industries capitalized at billions of dollars.

"Carbonless, Knockless Fuel."

The proposed fuel, synthol, can be made under the seized German patents covering processes for manufacture of methanol-synthetic wood alcohol. It is represented by Dr. T. A. Boyd of the General Motors Corporation's research department as a carbonless, knockless fuel, giving 50 miles to the gallon when used in a new type of light engine that he said had been perfected by his corporation.

Officials have formally denied that General Motors, the Du Ponts and Standard Oil of New Jersey planned to produce and market the fuel and engine, but the New York World and Post-Dispatch learned today that the Du Ponts have obtained a license to use the patents from the Chemical Foundation, Inc., and are rushing work on a Clinchfield (W. Va.) plant.

May Utilize Other Secrets.

While this plant can be used in making synthol, it is described by some as part of the series of revolutionary developments planned by numerous American industries as a result of the discovery of chemical secrets which remained hidden in the maze of chemical terms in the patents until Thomas Delehanty, Department of Commerce chemist, saw their potential value.

It was only last March, when Germany began flooding world markets with synthetic wood alcohol, made at half the cost of the American distilled brand, that the patents were carefully inspected. Delehanty was merely seeking information on which to base a Department of Commerce circular about methanol.

Now, with his discovery as a starter, research chemists have found that aside from furnishing the key to methanol, the patents cover manufacture of the motor fuel and of a steel that is lighter, stronger, rustless and manufactured more cheaply than any steel made.

NOW PLAN INQUIRY INTO LYNCHING BY MISSOURI MOB

Prosecutor Says Grand Jury Will Be Asked to Investigate Negro's Hanging at Excelsior Springs.

ARREST OF MOB'S MEMBERS ORDERED

Cummins Denies Dereliction of Duty and Says the Victim Was Prisoner of Chief of Police.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LIBERTY, Mo., Aug. 8.—A special grand jury to investigate the lynching of Walter Mitchell, negro, late yesterday by a mob at Excelsior Springs, will be asked for next week, Raymond W. Cummins, Clay County Prosecutor, said today.

The Attorney-General will be asked to assist in the investigation, Cummins added.

In a letter to John F. Craven, Chief of Police of Excelsior Springs, Cummins directed him to take steps toward the prosecution of all members of the mob whom he recognized.

This change of official attitude is a response to public sentiment that action should be taken.

Judge Ralph Hughes of the Clay County Circuit Court, who is on a vacation in Minnesota, is expected to return here early next week and upon his return will be asked to call a special grand jury to investigate the lynching, according to Cummins.

Denies Dereliction of Duty.

Charges of dereliction of duty made by citizens of Excelsior Springs against Cummins in connection with the lynching were vigorously denied today by the prosecutor.

"Excelsior Springs is trying to pass the buck to me for this disgraceful affair," Cummins said.

Cummins denied the statement of Chief Craven that the negro was a county prisoner.

"The negro," Cummins said, "had been committed properly to the city jail at Excelsior Springs and Chief Craven was as much responsible for the negro's safety as the Sheriff's office.

"Although the negro was arrested about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, I was not notifed of the arrest or the gatherng of a mob until about noon.

Mob Attacked Prosecutor's Car.

"I was trying two cases at the Courthouse at Liberty," Cummins continued. "At 11:55 o'clock Deputy Sheriff Charles Berry called me from Excelsior Springs and told of the attack on the girl, the negro's arrest and the forming of the mob. Berry said he had made three attempts to remove the prisoner from the city jail and had been prevented by the mob.

"Berry said the situation was beyond his control and asked for advice. I immediately summoned J. J. Lowe, Chief Deputy Sheriff, and drove my machine to Excelsior Springs.

"My plan was to remove the negro from the jail and take him in my car to the Jackson County Jail at Kansas City. I was set upon immediately upon my arrival at the city hall by the mob, which tore the wiring from my motor car.

Appeals Against Violence Futile.

"I left the machine and went to the court of Justice Chinn, where I talked to the father of the girl and other relatives and friends, imploring them not to resort to mob violence. They refused to listen to me. Next I went to the city hall and talked with members of the mob, urging them to allow the law to take its course. They would not hear me. Next I called on business men of the town to use their influence with the mob. Several did so, but to no avail.

"When every effort had been exhausted and I was certain the mob was determined to lynch the negro, I called the Chief of Police at Kansas City for help.

Not Peace Officer, Cummins Says.

"The first information reaching a county officer of the arrest of the negro and the gathering mob was received by Deputy Sheriff Barry, who was asleep at his home in Excelsior Springs. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Justice Chinn telephoned Barry the mob was forming and asked him to come to the city hall. Barry went at once.

"I am not a peace officer. I went to Excelsior Springs to advise the Deputy Sheriffs and assist them in preventing mob violence. The negro had been arrested by the Chief of Police of Excelsior Springs. A warrant had been issued for his arrest at the Justice Court there. He had been placed in the city jail there to await arraignment in that

'CINDERELLA' OUT OF 'PALACE,' BUT WON'T GO HOME

"My Parents Live in Another World," She Says, After Gates of Fairyland Close on Her.

ACTION PLANNED TO ANNUL ADOPTION

Meanwhile, 21-Year-Old Girl, Who Said She Was 16, Will Remain With Friend of Browning.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Mary Louise Spas, the 21-year-old daughter of Bohemian immigrants who tried to be a 16-year-old Cinderella so that she could live in the family of Edward Browning, wealthy real estate operator, promised her as his adopted daughter, left Kew Gardens Inn tonight, her adventure nearly at an end.

She was being taken, her foster-father, Browning, said, to the home of Robert H. Dunnett, a friend and business associate of Browning in Brooklyn, and, it was expected, would remain there until the final step was taken to clear away the amazing complications which followed her adoption a few days ago by Browning.

Indications tonight were that this final step would be the setting aside of the adoption proceedings, leaving Mary Louise in the same position she was when she first started out to capture romance, happiness and wealth—the daughter of John and Mary Spas of 29 Wilson avenue, Astoria, plain work-a-day people, in comfortable, but not wealthy, circumstances, with only a Studebaker instead of a Rolls-Royce.

Mary Louise, who had begun to see the doors of Fairyland swing shut on her the night before was more reconciled to her disappointment tonight. As she left the office of District Attorney Newcombe of Queens County, early this evening after she had been questioned for three hours, she was smiling, although she knew that she was going back to Kew Gardens Inn only to pack up and leave.

Tried to End Life.

The night before she had become hysterical when the agencies of the law began to pick out the flaws in the romantic pattern she had tried to weave. She had attempted suicide, it was learned this morning, by starting to swallow a small quantity of iodine, but had choked before it could do much more than burn her mouth and throat and make her sick.

Dunnett and Mary Louise herself confirmed this morning the story she had attempted suicide the night before. Dunnett and her foster father were in the room with her at the time, but did not notice what she was doing until they saw the bottle drop from her hand. Milk and eggs were forced down her throat and a physician summoned, who treated her and found she had not taken enough of the poison to experience any lasting harmful effects.

Friday night other guests in the Kew Gardens Inn had heard her hysterical cries of "I want to go home, I want to go home." This afternoon in District Attorney's office, however, she turned a deaf ear to her mother's tearful entreaties to return home with her.

A Tragic Role.

"As far as my parents are concerned," she said, "they live in a different world than I do and I don't want to go back."

Deprived of her hoped-for chance to play a romantic role, she apparently had decided to adopt a tragic pose.

"The newspapers have closed the door on my happiness," she exclaimed once, "and life is not worth the living."

Again when the District Attorney was questioning her about her age after her mother and father had admitted she was 21 on July 31 last, and records of the education and immigration departments had corroborated their testimony, she still insisted she was only 16, although the night before in her hysterical outburst in the Kew Gardens Inn she had admitted she "might be seventeen."

"Why do you still say you are sixteen?" asked Newcombe.

"My happiness is at stake,' she answered, in over-tragic tones, "and I will persist in my claim."

Both her father and mother had urged her to tell the truth when she entered the district attorney's office but she proved a stubborn witness.

CANADIAN BORDER PATROL INCREASED TO STOP SMUGGLING

Treasury Department Augments Force Against Liquor Running and Narcotics.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Driving at breaking up of general smuggling as well as rum running, the Treasury Department has thrown a patrol along the Canadian border from the Atlantic to the Pacific and is prepared to augment the force as necessity dictates.

While a fairly large force has been maintained from Maine to Buffalo, the great sweep of the international line from the Great Lakes to the Pacific has been almost without protection. Steps have been taken, therefore, to organize a force in this territory under the Customs Collectors.

At the same time the patrol at Detroit is being enlarged to such size as Collector Ferguson shall deem necessary, and that from Buffalo to Maine has been materially increased.

Within the last few weeks, 71 new patrolmen have been added, while the independent forces of the prohibition and narcotic units of the Treasury have been brought into the fight against rum running.

TRIPLANE ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE PLANNED

Huge Craft to Carry Nine 450-Horse Power Engines, 150 Passengers and Crew.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Plans for a commercial transatlantic air service, using monster triplanes propelled by nine 450-horse-power engines, which is said to have the moral support of President Coolidge and the United States Navy Department, were disclosed here this evening by Joseph G. Navarro, aircraft designer.

Navarro said that he had interested the President in the scheme, and that Mr. Coolidge had brought the matter to the attention of naval officials and that the latter had written him, promising all the help they could give him. The planes have a spread of 185 feet. One of the nine 450-horse-power Napier lion engines will be placed in the nose of the machine. The other eight will be fitted, four on each side in tandem. One of each pair will act as a tractor, the other as a pusher.

With each pair of engines there will be an engine room, with quarters for an engineer in charge. Navarro's idea is to have 12 engineers on each plane who will relieve each other at eight-hour intervals. A crew of 38 men will handle each plane. This will include two captains, two navigators, and pilots.

In the center there will be a large fuselage with two decks, one each of which will be a saloon 45 feet long and nine feet high. A lounge alleyway in the middle will connect the upper and lower decks.

Each plane will have a dining-room, electric kitchen and sleeping cabins. Stewards and stewardesses will be carried on all trips.

The cost of each machine is estimated by Navarro to be about $750,000. He figures that he will need a capital of $10,000,000 to launch the scheme, with another $70,000,000 later on. The passenger capacity of each machine will be 150 persons. Mr. Navarro said, however, that with 75 aboard, the fare for a trip to New York will be as low as $275. The time for the journey is placed at 35 hours.

BRYAN WILLS FIVE-SIXTHS OF ESTATE TO WIFE AND CHILDREN

Estate in Gross Is Not Estimated, but Sum of About $50,000 Is Given for Religious Education.

GIFTS MADE TO MANY CHURCHES HE NAMES

Boys' Higher School to Be Under Evangelical Control Is Given Fund for Foundation.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, FLA., Aug. 8.—Written by himself shortly before he departed for his last earthly battle —The Scopes trial—the will of the late William Jennings Bryan, filed here today in Dade County Probate Court, provided for the needs of his entire family and in addition perpetuated his fight in the cause of religion by setting aside funds for various churches and for an academy for boys under the supervision of some evangelical church.

Full of characteristic Bryan phrases and idealisms, the last testament of the great commoner placed those close to him first in the distribution of his worldly possessions, but only a little ahead of the principles which he preached by voice and pen.

Mary Blair Bryan, his wife, it was provided, should receive all household furnishings and other personal belongings in addition to one-third of the entire estate. Next in his final legal document were named his two daughters and son, Ruth Bryan Owen, Grace Bryan Hargreaves and Williams Jennings Bryan Jr., who are to receive one-fourth each of the remaining two-thirds of the estate.

The other fourth of the remainder is divided among more distant relatives and the funds for the "entwining of the spiritual with the intellectual."

Mr. Bryan recently stated his accumulations were more than a half million dollars, but the exact amount is not revealed in the will.

Mary Baird Bryan, widow of Mr. Bryan, was named executrix of her husband's estate by Probate Judge W. F. Blanton.

The Will's Text in Part.

The text of the will said, in part:

"In the name of God, farewell.

"Trusting for my salvation to the blood of Jesus Christ, my Lord and Redeemer, and relying on His promise for my hope of resurrection, I consign my body to the dust and commend my spirit to the God who gave it.

"I, William Jennings Bryan, a citizen of Dade County, Florida, being of sound mind and memory, but conscious of the uncertainty of life, and desiring to make a just disposition of the worldly goods with which an indulgent Heavenly Father has seen fit to bless me, do make, pledge and declare this, my last will and testament, hereby revoking and annulling all former wills by me made.

"First, I desire that all my just debts and funeral expenses shall be fully paid and satisfied, including the use of such sum as my wife and children may deem proper for the purchase of a monument to mark my grave.

"Second, I give and bequeath to my beloved wife, Mary Baird Bryan, my congenial comrade and companion and my faithful helpmate for more than 40 years, all my household goods, jewelry, plate, library, automobile, etc., to use, distribute or sell, according to her pleasure. I trust her to make such gifts to, or divisions among our children, children-in-law, grandchildren, relatives and friends as we would make together if we joined in the distribution.

"Third. I give and bequeath to my said wife a life estate in our home, Marymont, in Cocoanut Grove, Fla., and I hereby authorize and direct the expenditure from my estate of such sums as may be necessary to pay taxes on said home and keep it in repair. I hereby authorize my said wife to occupy, rent or sell said home, according to her pleasure. If the house is rented, the taxes and repairs shall be paid out of the rent. When the home is sold the proceeds shall be turned into the general fund of my estate.

One-Third of All to Wife.

"Fourth, I give and bequeath unto my said wife one-third of all the property, real, personal and

FIRST AUTOMATIC TELEPHONES TO BE READY IN SPRING

Company Expects to Have 14,000 in Service Next Summer and 60,000 in Three Years.

THEY ARE OPERATED BY DIAL ON BASE

Phone Operators Will Not Be Thrown Out of Work, General Manager of Company Says.

Skilled workmen are installing machine-switching telephone equipment in the large new exchange building of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., Grand boulevard and Botanical avenue, so that the first automatic or dial telephones in St. Louis may be ready for operation next spring.

While it has been known for some time that St. Louis was to have automatic telephones, this is the first announcement of a definite period when the first of these will be in service.

Only about 2000 telephones will be converted to automatic service at first, but the company expects to have about 14,000 of this kind working by the middle of next year and more than 60,000, or a large portion of those in the metropolitan area, within three years.

Two central exchanges in the new Grand boulevard building will serve a section of the city with automatic telephones at first. This section will be bounded, roughly, as follows: On the east, by the river, on the west by a line west of Kingshighway; on the north by Botanical, Magnolia and Shenandoah avenues and Lynch and St. George streets; on the south by Chippewa, Bingham, Rebecca and Osage streets.

New Cables Strung.

Laclede and Prospect will be the names of the new exchanges. Laclede is a revival of an old Kinloch exchange and perpetuates the name of the city's founder, while Prospect is new. The area they will serve may be extended somewhat on three sides later. Additional machine-switching equipment is planned for the new Bell Telephone Building, now going up downtown.

Rebuilding of the outside wire plant has been done on an extensive scale in the Laclede-Prospect area, which now is served by the Grand, Sidney and Victor exchanges. New cables of large capacity have been strung, providing for future growth of the system; new poles, lines and parts and new underground conduits have been installed.

Before the first call from a dial telephone can be put through, it will be necessary to complete installation of speical equipment in all the old manually operated exchanges here. This is essential to take care of connections between telephones of the old and new types. A subscriber with a dial telephone, calling a number served by a manual exchange will flash a signal before an operator, who must complete the connection.

Proved Successful.

It is the work of completing connections that machine-switching units will take over. There are about 1,500,000 connections a day now made by hand in the St. Louis area. General Manager Percy Redmund of the telephone company stressed the announcement that operators were not going to be thrown out of work by the new device, as there would be "work for all," and no change is contemnumber of operators is contemplated for several years.

The dial telephone, as is known, has a dial on its base, by revolving which the person calling indicates the exchange and number desired. Six pulls on the dial will be required here, two for the first two letters of the exchange name and four for the number. Numbers of less than four figures will of necessity have one, two or three ciphers as prefixes. For instance, a number known now as "Olive 1" would be known then as "OL-ive 0001."

Automatic telephones have proven successful in New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, Atlanta and elsewhere.

Bryan, in Will, Gives Aid to Many Churches

mixed, which I possess at the time of my death.

"Fifth. I give and bequeath to my beloved children (Ruth Bryan Owen, W. J. Bryan Jr. and Grace Bryan Hargreaves, one-fourth each of all the proceeds of my estate remaining after the payment of the bequest to my said wife and other bequests and expenses; but said bequests are made subject to the following provision, viz., if any child resorts to the courts to break the provisions of this will, the bequest to such child will be revoked by said act and said child's portion will go into my estate to be divided among the other legatees. One-half of each child's portion shall be set apart for it as soon as distribution can be made; the other half shall be available for the children, respectively, when my said wife dies. The second half held until my said wife's death shall be kept in the hands of my executors and invested in bonds of the United States Government, state governments, city government and school district.

To Educate Grandchildren.

"Sixth. I give and bequeath unto each of my beloved grandchildren and great-grandchildren now living or that may be born before the final distribution of my estate, the sum of $2000, said sum to be used for the education of the child, or if not needed for that, paid to the child when said child is of age unless the parent desires it paid to the child at an earlier date, my wife to decide as to John's needs in the payment of this sum to him.

"Seventh. I hereby bequeath to my said wife and my said children, Ruth, William and Grace, all my copyrights, manuscript letter, etc., and I hereby authorize them to prepare and publish my official biography, with a full sketch of my wife's life and details as to the important aid she has rendered me in all my work, and such other volumes of life and letters as they may deem wise. They shall share equally in all the profits and royalties derived from the books they publish.

"Eighth. I give and bequeath to my beloved sister, Frances Bryan Baird, the house in East Lincoln (near Fairview) where she now lives, together with the lot on which it stands with a frontage of 75 feet, unless a different frontage is agreed upon before I die, to hold use or rent, with remainder over in fee simple to her three children, Laura, Frank and Will.

"My sister is to pay taxes on it while she occupies or rents it. I give and bequeath to my beloved brother and sister, Charles W. Bryan and Mary Bryan Allen, two thousand each. My wife will, in the distribution of souvenirs, remember Essie, my brother's wife; Jim Baird, sister Fannie's husband; T. S. Allen, sister Mary's husband, and Roy Spangler, Laura's husband; A. R. Talbot, my former law partner, and W. F. Schwind, my companion in the army. They have all been very dear friends. I appreciate their affection and companionship with them.

Bequests to Churches.

"Ninth. I give and bequeath $1000 each to the First Presbyterian Church of Miami and Grove Temple of Cocoanut Grove, the two churches with which I am connected, and $500 each to the following church with which I have been connected, namely: The Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Salem, Ill.; The First Presbyterian Church of Jacksonville, Ill.; The First Presbyterian Church of Lincoln, Neb.; the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Lincoln, Neb.; The Normal Methodist Church near my former Nebraska home, Fairview; The Lincoln, Neb., Y. M. C. A.; The Miami, Fla., Y. M. C. A.; The Bryan Bennett Library, Salem, Ill.; The Public Library, Lincoln, Neb.; The Public Library of the Women's Club, Miami; The Public Library of Cocoanut Grove, and $250 each to Sigma Pi Society, Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill., of which I was a member; Philosophian Society, McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., of which my father was a member, and the Baptist Church at Salem, Ill. of which my parents were members.

"Tenth. I give and bequeath to my private secretary (at the time of my death) a sum to be calculated at $100 for each year or part of a year he has been with me, and to the man who is taking care of my wife at the time of my death—driving her car and carrying her—a sum calculated in the same way. To my gardener and each one of the female help a sum calculated at $50 for each year or part of year.

"Saved for the Last."

"Eleventh. I have saved for the last my bequest for religious education. While I have devoted a large part of my time to the study and discussion of political questions and have found an abundant reward in the reforms adopted with my humble aid, I feel more interested in religion than in politics because religion is the only influence that can control the heart, out of which are the issues of life. Next to religion I am most interested in education because education can and should increase one's capacity for service. But education will not be a benefit to its possessor and a blessing to society unless it is wisely used.

I am very anxious that each intellectual ship shall be equipped with a moral rudder sufficient to control its course on life's stormy sea. My chief interest is, therefore in Christian education—the entwining of the spiritual with the intellectual. I had hoped to aid in the establishing of an academy that would involve my idea and serve as a model. Fearing that I shall not be able to carry out this plan during the years that remain, I am setting aside a fund equal to each child's share in my estate. After taking out the bequest to my wife and other bequests I desire to divide the remainder in four equal parts. One part, as I have provided above, shall go to each of my three children, the fourth part less $50,000, will be set apart for Christian education. As I have recently given our Nebraska home, known as Fairview, to the Methodist church for a hospital, I feel that its value, conservatively estimated at $50,000, should be deducted from the one-fourth set apart for Christian education and divided equally between my three children and my wife.

"With amount left for this purpose—I estimated it at about $50,000—$100,000 less the $50,000 deduction above mentioned—I would like to have it used to establish an academy for boys which shall be under the control of some unit of government of some evangelical church, Presbyterian preferred, but not absolutely necessary, so that it can be controlled by a recognized religious organization. I would like to have it cover the junior and senior years of the high school and the freshman and sophomore years of the college—those being the years when the student most needs religious supervision. I would like special attention given to citizenship and applied Christianity so that the graduates may be prepared for leadership in both State and church.

Specifies Many Rules.

It should not be conducted for profit; board should be furnished students at actual cost, tuition should be as low as possible, room rent should be the same for all rooms so as to discourage classification according to wealth. Assignments of rooms should be made on basic of classes, senior, junior, sophomore and freshman, and in classes according to scholarship where possible, and by lot until scholarship is tested. I would like the boys to wear a uniform made of blue and gray to symbolize the reunion of the North and South. If it is impossible to establish such academy, the trustees of this fund shall distribute it among boys' schools, selecting schools as nearly like the one described above as possible, care being taken to see that the money is given only to schools that are firmly committed to orthodox Christianity, including the making of man by separate act in God's image, the virgin birth and the bodily resurrection of the Savior. I regard supernatural and revealed religion as given in the Bible as the only religion that exerts a controlling influence on our lives. If this money is divided among several colleges, I would like to have it invested and the income loaned to needy students—not over one-half his annual college expenses, so that he will earn the other half—and when collected returned to the revolving fund.

"I hereby appoint as trustee of this religious fund my beloved wife, my son, my two daughters, my brother, C. W. Bryan, my brother-in-law, T. S. Allen; my former law partner, A. R. Talbot, and the pastors of the First Presbyterian Church of Miami and Grove Temple of Cocoanut Grove—the pastors to serve while pastors. If any of the life trustees die their places shall be filled by the survivors, preference being given to my personal friends, who are also sympathetic in matters of religion.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this fifth day of July (1925), nineteen hundred and twenty-five, at Marymont, Cocoanut Grove, Florida.

"WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

"Signed, published and declared by said testator as his last will and testament in the presence of us, who at his request and in his presence and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses.

POLICEMAN HURT HEEDING 'SILENT COP' IN CHASE

Sign Changes After Speeder Passes and Edward B. Stengel Overturns Machine Trying to Stop.

A "silent cop" was factor in an accident at noon yesterday which caused serious injury to Motor Cycle Policeman Edward B. Stengel, 25 years old, of 5219 South Thirty-seventh street.

A speeding motor cyclist being chased east in Oscoela street by Stengel got across the intersection of Nebraska avenue, while the automatic traffic sign read, "Go." Just before Stengel got there, the signal changed to "Stop," and the north-and-south traffic had the right of way. Application by Stengel of the brakes to his machine, which was traveling 35 miles an hour, caused it to skid and overturn.

Witnesses reported the escaping motor cyclist circled the block and returned to assist Stengel, then drove off. Stengel was removed to Alexian Brothers' Hospital, where he was said to be suffering from a probable skull fracture and numerous lacerations of the body.

Twenty-five minutes later Motorcycle Policeman Loren Compton pursued a speeding motorcyclist in West Pine boulevard from Grand boulevard to Vandeventer avenue, where he arrested him and escorted him to the Newstead Avenue Police Station, where he described himself as David Kuhn, 22, 1214 North Sarah street. While they were there, word came to look for a motorcycle with license number 785, reported to be the number of the one which Stengel was chasing. Investigation then showed Kuhn's machine had that number.

Kuhn admitted witnessing the accident to Stengel, but denied Stengel was chasing him. He said he was driving behind Stengel and went to his assistance, then drove on. He added that his license number must have been mistakenly reported for that of the speeder.

Kuhn was taken before Stengel at the hospital, but Stengel said he had not obtained a good view of the speeder and could not identify Kuhn as the man. Kuhn, however, was charged with speeding on Osceola, as well as West Pine.

Woman, Injured in Auto Accident, Dies in Hospital.

Police investigating the death of Mrs. Mary Wuench, 45 years old, of 1039 Theobald avenue, at Barnes Hospital Friday learned yesterday that she had suffered a fracture of the skull Thursday when an automobile in which she was riding with her husband, Fred E. Wuench, ran off Manchester road and was wrecked west of Kirkwood.

Wuench, who suffered only minor bruises, told police that he had attempted to pass a truck eastbound, and had been crowded off the road. The machine hit a telephone pole and was wrecked, throwing its occupants out. They were taken to Barnes Hospital in an ambulance. Mrs. Wuench died at 2 p.m. Friday.

ELECTION BOARD SPEEDS RECOUNT ON MAYORALTY

Four More Tabulating Tables to Be Added Tomorrow to Force Rechecking Ballots.

The Election Board tomorrow will add four more tabulating tables to its force now recounting the 237,575 votes in the April election in the contest of Mayor Miller's election by William L. Igoe, and expect to lessen by one month the time required to recount the votes, Chairman Eigel said yesterday that the board hoped to certify the result of the count to the Circuit Court by Sept. 15.

Eight tables have been operated for the last five weeks and in that time 254 precincts of the 624 in the city have been recounted. Slightly more than one-third of the total vote is included in these precincts, but the remaining precincts are larger and will require more time. The board yesterday reached the conclusion that it could not finish the recount before the middle of October with its present force and decided to add to it.

Democrats Claim 700 Gain.

In the first eleven wards, for which both Democrats and Republicans have made recapitulations, Democrats claim a gain of approximately 700 votes. These gains are computed on the basis of additions to Igoe's total or losses to Mayor Miller through clerical errors of election officials; gains on Republican ballots where Mayor Miller's name was scratched and Igoe's written in, which Democrats believe the court will construe as a vote for Igoe, although the Election Board, under a ruling by the Attorney-General's office, ordered such votes counted for Mayor Miller if a cross was placed in the circle at the head of the Republican ticket (this on the theory the blanket ballot may not be interlined), and gains on ballots not previously counted where vertical lines were drawn through the entire Republican and Socialist tickets which Democrats believe the court will construe as votes intended for Igoe since the Democratic ticket was not marked.

Republicans concede that Igoe has gained, but limit his gains to approximately 300 votes. These are on ballots where clerical errors gave credit to Mayor Miller when Igoe should have received them, or where they were not counted when they should have been counted for Igoe. All ballots with Mayor Miller's name scratched and Igoe's written in, or where vertical lines are drawn through the Republican and Socialist tickets, are listed as doubtful by Republicans.

Republican Claims.

Republicans assert that in the first 11 wards there were only 200 ballots where Mayor Miller's name was scratched and Igoe's written in, and 18 where Igoe's name was scratched on the Democratic ticket and Mayor Miller's written in.

With one-third of the vote recounted, Igoe must gain at least 2500 more votes, accepting 700 as his present gain, to unseat Mayor Miller. The Mayor's majority on the face of official returns was 3129 votes.

The contest petition filed by Democrats asserted that a recount would show Igoe to have been elected by 6363 votes. In the first 11 wards it was alleged that his gain would be 2888 votes. It itemized 997 votes where Mayor Miller was scratched and Igoe written in which were alleged to have been wrongfully counted for Mayor Miller. This would have meant a gain of 1994 for Igoe, as Mayor Miller would lose one for every one Igoe gained, a difference of two vote for every one ballot recounted. There were 784 ballots alleged to have been cast for Igoe which, through clerical errors or other causes, were not counted for him.

The additional forces which will be employed Monday will number 26 persons which the Election Board will pay at the rate of $6 a day each, making the cost of the recount $360 daily to the city. This is exclusive of the amounts paid by the Republican and Democratic parties to their attorneys.

BELGIUM SAYS U. S. MUST BACK WILSON'S 'ASSURANCES'

Louis Strauss Believes Settlement Possible If Armistice Promises Are Lived Up To.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Louis Strauss, 84-year-old dean of the Belgian House of Deputies, arriving today for an unofficial visit in this country, intimated that only an agreement between the United States Government and the Belgian Debt Commission, that was in keeping with the "signed assurances" of President Wilson during settlements following the armistice, would be accepted by the Belgian Parliament.

"Your chief executive gave us signed assurances that certain things would be done," said Strauss. He was asked if he meant that the issue of reparations from Germany, being used to pay Belgium's debt, probably would enter into the negotiations at Washington.

"It should," he replied. "We have the signed assurances of your chief executive during the settlements following armistice."

When asked if Belgium would insist upon these assurances, Strauss said: "What happened in 1914 was our own problem. We stood on the defensive. But what happened after is another matter. We could have made a separate peace, but we decided to stand by the allies, and later America became one of those allies." Asked if he believed a satisfactory arrangement on the debt could be reached by the United States and Belgium, Mr. Strauss said: "I hope so, because I have confidence enough in the good feeling of the United States for what we did during the World War."

MACMILLAN PLANES RIDE OUT SQUALLS AT ETAH

Navy Pigeons Sent to Jam Flock of Auks Flying to Feeding Grounds at Sea.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The National Geographic Society announced tonight receipt of the following message from the MacMillan Expedition at Etah, Greenland, dated 4 p. m., Aug. 8.

"The three navy planes successfully rode out severe squalls, during which the Bowdoin and the Peary held to their anchors last night.

"The exchange of engines of the NA-1 is completed and a successful flight was made in a stiff wind today.

"A flock of more than 500 little auks flying toward their feeding grounds at sea, was joined at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by several of the ten navy pigeons, which were released for the first time."

The message was forwarded to the National Geographic Society by Arthur A. Collins of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Badly Hurt by Fall in Sleep.

Andrew Leibman, 45 years old, a pressman for the Post-Dispatch, is in a serious condition at the Deaconess Hospital, from possible internal injuries and a fractured arm suffered when he fell from a second-story window of his home at 2921 St. Vincent avenue, Friday night. Leibman, after falling out of the window, awakened his family by ringing the front door bell. He said he was walking in his sleep.

In a statement issued soon after the lynching, Cummins was quoted as saying: "We feel that justice has been done. Of course, the method was crude. I would have preferred that the negro could have been hanged legally, and I am convinced that it would have been done."

With regard to an investigation to determine the mob leaders, Cummins is said to have declared: "I don't know who they were, and I am unable to find out."

"There will be no inquest," said H. W. Hill, Coroner, as he signed the death certificate which gave the cause of death as "strangulation."

Photograph Taken of Mob.

A photograph of the mob was taken just before the lynching by a representative of a Kansas City newspaper. While many members of the mob are shown indistinctly, yet the photograph of a number of others is clear enough to render identification possible by persons acquainted in the community. Several small boys are shown in the crowd.

The negro, who was taken from jail and hanged to a tree, was taken into custody following his identification by a young woman as her assailant late Thursday night, while she and Leonard Utt, 13 years old, were returning in a motor car to the girl's home after a party.

The negro jumped on the running board of the car, they said, and struck Utt with a flash light, knocking him unconscious, and then attacked the girl.

WOMAN REACHES FORBIDDEN CITY GARBED AS BEGGAR

Fourteen Years' Ambition Realized When Mme. David Entered Mysterious Lhassa.

ENCOUNTERED MANY HARDSHIPS ON WAY

Cold and Hunger Among Her Perils—Traversed Vast Forests Inhabited by Wild Beasts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—A fascinating tale of adventure will be told one day by a French woman, Mme. Alexandre David, who has returned to Western civilization after 14 years' voluntary exile in the mysterious Far East, most of them passed in patient efforts to reach Lhassa, the "Forbidden City." She eventually attained her goal and lived for some time in the capital of Tibet, hiding her real identity under the rags of a beggar woman.

Although she is not yet ready to relate all the details of her wanderings and the almost daily perils she encountered, Mme. David has confided to her friends a summary sketch of her journey through the regions where never before had a white woman been seen.

Mme. David had no thought of Lhassa when she left France in 1911 on an official mission to India and Burmah, the French Government having asked her to make a survey of certain aspects of the old Buddhist philosophy as revealed by newly discovered documents. Quite by accident, however, she met the Dalai Lama, who had been driven from Lhassa by the Chinese.

Decides Upon Journey.

From that moment she had but one idea: visit the Forbidden City. She says her imagination was so fired by the thought that she could not sleep at nights, and she found it impossible to settle down to any other work until she began to make definite plans to satisfy her ambition.

From the outset Mme. David decided that the only way to make success a reasonable certainty was to travel through Tibet as a native, the life of a native. For this purpose she started patiently to learn the language and study the habits of the people.

While thus preparing her own journey she was often discouraged by the sight of other explorers who after months of vain attempts, had succumbed to the difficulties of the undertaking and been compelled to return—vanquished by the natural obstacles and the stern measures taken by the guardians of the city to prevent any stranger from defiling their ancient sanctuary.

Then began the first period of this plucky Frenchwoman's Odyssey. For two years she lived in a cavern, hewn out of rocks 12,000 feet up on the "roof of the world." Her neighbor was an old hermit who taught her the language and expounded the meaning of old manuscripts.

It was only after a three years' sojourn at the Monastery of Koum Boum (from 1918) that Mme. David decided she was ready to start out on the conquest of Lhassa. Possessing a thorough knowledge of the language and customs of the inhabitants, she was convinced she could safely pass for a native.

Meets With Rebuffs.

"I crossed the great virgin forests of Oude," related Mme. David. "I lived among wandering tribes. But directly I entered more populous regions, traversed by caravan tracks, I was turned back relentlessly by messengers obeying the orders of mysterious chiefs. And on the journey back my carriers, men and beasts perished of hunger and cold."

Several attempts to cross the zone of obstacles having failed, Mme. David realized it was hopeless to try again in the same conditions. So she resolved to go alone, accompanied by only one servant. She crossed snow-blocked passes, sometimes having to carve steps in the perpendicular mountain sides. Eventually she reached the Upper Salouen. But there again she found herself gripped by the same mysterious hands. Wherever she tried to pass she was stopped by unexpected obstacles or accidents, and after wandering helplessly over the unending desert, she was obliged to return to Kou-Kou-Nor.

Lhassa had become more 'forbidden" than ever and Mme. David came to the conclusion it was impossible to reach it from India.

Tries China Route.

Determined to succeed at all costs the venturesome woman made another attempt, crossing China from the frontier of Mongolia to the Yummen, then setting out afoot for the Unknown with her adopted son, a Thibetan boy whom she had educated and raised almost from his babyhood. Both were disguised as pilgrims, and begged their way from place to place. They journeyed by night, traversing forests infested by wild animals which, however, did not molest them. The wanderers carried their provisions on their backs, but were often without water for days.

Beyond the Yummen they were in an unexplored land, untrodden by any westerners' feet. During the final stage of their journey they had to cross a range of mountains 15,000 feet high. Snow fell ceaselessly, rendering their march unutterably painful. Death seemed to be watching for them. But to attempt to retrace their steps was equally dangerous.

"I realized what madness it was to challenge the terrible winter of these lonely mountains and the human keepers of Hidden Land," says Mme. David. "We had given up all hope when suddenly we sighted the 'obo,' which in Thibet marks the summit of a passe. The descent began; we were saved."

At their feet soon were sun-lit fields, grassy slopes, and they entered a zone of warm springtime. Then Lhassa, the Forbidden city, wits its narrow streets, its temples, its market places, its picturesque ceremonies.

Mme. David and her adopted son stayed there two months. Clad in rags, they passed unnoticed, living in closest contact with the strangest and most suspicious people in the world without arousing the slightest curiosity.

Now back to civilization. Plunged into the whirl of modern Paris after 14 years' absence, Mme. David feels something like Rip Van Winkle, and doesn't quite know whether she is awake or dreaming. Five-franc banknotes and metal franc pieces were among the first novelties that struck her imagination when she arrived here. The war? Of course, she had heard of it, but it had appeared so vague and distant. And she had lived years without receiving a letter or a newspaper.

She has now to rediscover and explore her own country.

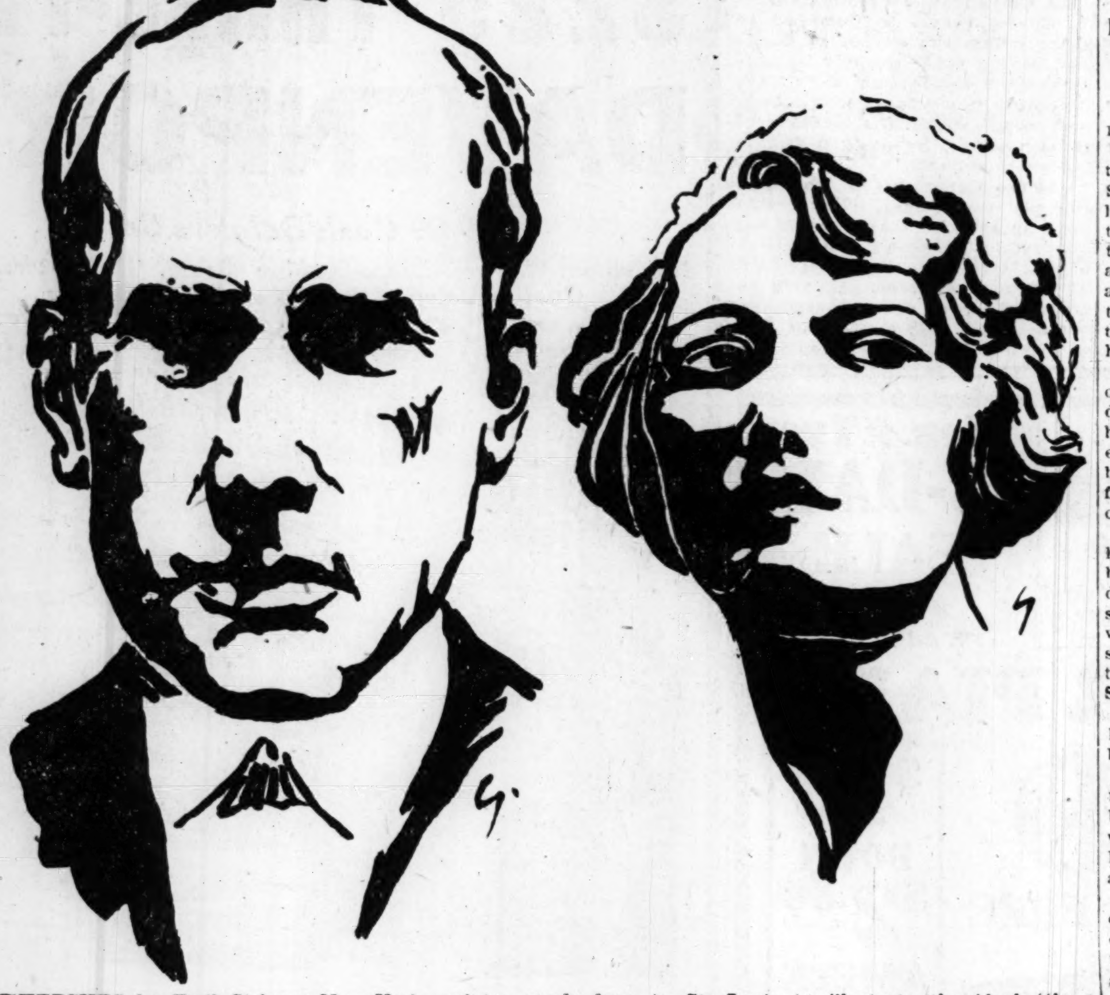
800 Clay County (Mo.) Residents Suggest Baker Oust Prison Warden.

By the Associated Press.

LIBERTY, Mo., Aug. 8.—A resolution, signed by 800 citizens of Clay County, protesting against the recent action of the warden of the Missouri Penitentiary in permitting Lonnie Affronti, Kansas City robber, to visit Kansas City without guard, was mailed to Gov. Baker today. Affronti is serving a 10-year sentence from Clay County for robbing and beating the Howdeshell sisters near Excelsior Springs, in December, 1919.

The resolution suggests that "a new warden be named for the State Penitentiary if the present warden cannot or will not carry out criminal court orders and the verdicts of juries." Affronti last month was permitted to visit his parents and a sister in Kansas City, the latter having just undergone an operation. He made the visit without guard.

St. Louis Men 'Long Heads,' Women 'Round Heads,' New York Sculptor Says



SKETCHES by Emil Siebern, New York sculptor, made here in St. Louis to illustrate the ideal "long head" and "round head," the former being characteristic, he said, of St. Louis men. "Round heads" he found in unusual numbers among the city's feminine population.

Emil Siebern Explains Types That Represent the Thinkers and the "Doers"—Finds Opera Chorus Reflects Beauty.

Emil Siebern, a New York sculptor, had been in St. Louis only a few days last week when he thought he noticed that a majority of the men he saw were "long heads" and, similarly, that the women were "round heads." Bless you, no—nothing derisive.

Before he departed yesterday he had convinced himself that of the city's men an unusually large number were "long heads" and that, among the women, the "round heads" predominated to a curious degree.

The terms are those in parlance among sculptors to denote two types of the human cranium—dolichocephalic, or those which are longer than they are broad, and brachycephalic, those which, conversely, are broader than long. In general, "long heads" are presumed to be the thinkers or dreamers of the race, while "round heads" are the "doers." President Wilson was a "long head." President Roosevelt was a "round head."

"I do not presume to reason why round heads seem to predominate among St. Louis women, nor why the men are commonly 'long heads,'" Siebern said. "I only know that my rather close observation seems to establish such as the fact. Almost without exception, the young women of your Municipal Opera chorus are 'round heads.' May I say in passing, also, that the beauty of that chorus seems reflected in the average of your women. They seem taller than the average usually encountered in cities, not only of the United States, but of Europe. They excel in ease of carriage. I recall no city I ever have visited where a sculptor in casual wandering, will encounter so many women who fulfill sculptural ideas of beauty."

Siebern came to St. Louis in connection with a series of marble plaques to be placed in the new Western Union building. For the past 10 years, most of his time has been consumed with architectural sculptures on the estates of John D. Rockefeller, though he also has contributed many pieces to sculptural portraiture.

"CINDERELLA" OUT OF "PALACE," BUT WON'T GO HOME

clinging desperately to the last few straws which she imagined might keep her from being swept out of the fairy palace of her foster father back to the comparative chimney corner of her father's apartment.

Taken to Brooklyn.

When she insisted despite her mother's entreaties she did not want to go back to Astoria, Newcomb approved a suggestion that she be taken to the home of a friend of Francis C. Dale, attorney for Browning. At the last minute, plans were changed and she was taken instead to the home of Dunnett in Brooklyn.

With the completion of the examination of Mary Louise this afternoon, the district attorney announced his investigation into the adoption of the girl by Browning was completed except for his submission of the facts to Surrogate Noble, who approved the adoption papers originally and who would be the one to set them aside. Newcombe indicated he would make no recommendation to the Surrogate, merely acquainting him in detail with the facts as revealed by his investigation.

The attitude of Browning toward the girl he said he adopted to be a companion to his 9-year-old adopted daughter Dorothy Sunshine, was hard to determine. It was apparent he was too upset to know what his emotions really were.

Early this afternoon at Kew Gardens Inn before leaving with Mary Louise for the District Attorney's office, he had said regarding his plans concerning Mary Louise "I am feeling the pulse of the public and I shall keep Mary unless I am convinced that there is a question raised by the public that I should give her up."

At other times during the afternoon he made remarks to Newcombe and others that indicated he was resentful of the deception he said was practiced upon him and desirous of being relieved of her custody. Tonight at Kew Gardens Inn following his return from the District Attorney's office he was more incoherent than ever.

"I Can't Tell You Now."

Asked what he intended to do about the adoption he excitedly replied her age of 21 "makes it impossible." Pressed for a definite statement whether he considered the matter at an end he replied, "I can't tell you now."

His attorney was much more certain.

"Browning will present a petition to the Surrogate's Court to be relieved of his present embarrassment," Dale announced after the conference in the District Attorney's office. "There is no question but that the court will set the adoption aside. It is probable that Mary will consent. We don't care whether she consents or not. Browning will act so as to wipe out all possibility of any rights in his property accruing to the girl."

Asked if Browning would make any kind of a settlement on Mary Louise, Dale replied:

'None is contemplated and none will be advised. Mr. Browning may permit her to keep the dresses and other things he has purchased for her but she is now out of the picture."

HOOVER FORESEES FINANCIAL WAR FOR CONTROL OF AIRWAYS

than-air type of craft are not expected to remain idle while negotiations are in progress concerning the future disposition of the Los Angeles. The company in which former Postmaster-General Hays and Assistant Postmaster-General Paul Henderson, recently in charge of the postal air service, are interested, is very much interested in any activities of possible rival concerns, and in the part which the Government may play in it.

Railroads Concerned.

The railroads and the steamship men are concerned also. The railroads already have been hard hit by the automobile, and successfully have opposed far-reaching development of water transportation.

Nothing has yet occurred which would indicate the Government plans to take part in Government owned air transportation, except its interest in the disposition of the Los Angeles and the development of the postal air service.

The possibilities of heavier-than-air craft were demonstrated close to the summer White House today when the giant airplane Yorktown arrived in the Boston air port. This is the invention of Igor Sikorsky, a Russian, and the plane which recently carried two baby grand pianos between New York and Washington.

D. A. R. HISTORIC SPOTS COMMITTEE GETS 2 TABLETS

A tablet of Daniel Boone which was presented to the American Retailers' Association convention at its banquet Thursday evening by the Boone Trail Highway and Memorial Association was turned over to the local D. A. R. committee on historic spots. Mrs. Jennie C. L. Foristell, chairman of the committee, announced that the tablet would be set up somewhere in St. Louis.

Another tablet donated by the highway association will go to the old Daniel Boone homestead in St. Charles County, which Mrs. Foristell owns and which she is seeking to make a shrine to the memory of the old pioneer.

ASKS FOR CLOTHING OF SON SCOTT KILLED

Father of Joseph Maurer Says He Wants to Wear Suit to Get Work.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—At about the time today that Russell T. Scott, his fight to dodge the gallows won, was leaving Chicago in the custody of deputy sheriffs for the Chester Insane Asylum, there appeared at the Detective Bureau an old work-worn man whose interest in Scott's case was next to that of Scott's family and Scott himself.

He was Jacob Maurer, the father of Joseph Maurer, the 19-year-old drug clerk for whose murder in a holdup Scott was sentenced to hang, escaping the death penalty twice by a margin of a few hours, and finally being found insane since his conviction.

The old man recited a story of hardship and privation that has befallen his family since his boy's death in April, 1924, and then sought to recover the clothing worn by his boy the night he was slain, and which has been held by the State for evidence against Scott.

"You probably want them as keepsakes?" someone suggested, but Maurer shook his head.

"I want them," he said, "to wear myself. I've been sick and I've been out of work because I've devoted my time to this case, and I've got to be better dressed to get a new job."

The old man explained that his daughter is now the sole support of his family, and that in addition to being in poor health he is unable to sleep.

Scott, heavily shackled and in charge of two Deputy Sheriffs, left here for the asylum shortly after noon, following a court hearing when the commitment papers were changed to read that in case he regains his sanity he is to be returned to the custody of the Sheriff of Cook County and the death sentence carried out.

"A last message for Chicago," he shouted as his train started to move. "Tell them I'm both sane and innocent."

Scott's father bade him farewell at the train. He had said good-by earlier to his mother and to Mrs. Catherine Scott, his wife, who fought for months to save his life. Scott was expected to reach the asylum about midnight.

Russell Scott, on Way to Prison, Dines and Walks in East St. Louis.

Handcuffed between two deputy sheriffs, Russell Scott, Chicago slayer who was saved from the gallows recently by the decision of a jury which found him insane, arrived in St. Louis on a Chicago & Alton train at 5:45 p. m. yesterday enroute to Chester, Ill., where he will be committed to the asylum for the criminal insane.

Leaving the train at the Washington avenue station, the deputies and their prisoner crossed the Eads Bridge on a street car and went to the East St. Louis relay station for dinner. This, incidentally, was to be Scott's last meal outside of prison walls and he ordered a substantial repast of steak, salad, vegetables and pie.

After dinner he expressed a desire to spend the remaining hours until train time walking and was taken for a stroll through the streets in the vicinity of the station. The party entrained for Chester on the St. Louis Southwestern Railroad at 9:26 p. m., arriving at their destination at 11:32.

12 CONVICTS' PAROLE PLEAS UP MONDAY

Four Murderers and Four Burglars on List, Three From St. Louis.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 8.—The applications for parole of 12 convicts, including four from St. Louis, will be heard Monday by the State Penal Board. Included in the applicants are four murderers and four burglars.

Among the former is Henry Burke, St. Louis negro, who has served nine years and nine months for the murder of a woman with whom he was living. Circuit Judge Grimm, who presided at the trial has said he has no objection to the granting of a parole.

Clarence Gadsey and John Kennedy, convicted St. Louis burglars, who have served a year and a month each, are also among the applicants. When Gadsey was sentenced to 12 years on May 17, 1923, for a burglary at the home of Mrs. Kate J. Devaney of 4734 Ashland avenue, Circuit Judge Calhoun manifested his approval by excusing the trial jury from further service with the venire. Later another jury gave Kennedy 15 years. In the case of Kennedy Judge Calhoun has written a letter remonstrating against the granting of a parole.

The fourth St. Louis applicant is Charley Stevens, 42 years, who has served three years and four months of a 15-year sentence on a statutory charge. Lucille Mead, 1008 Missouri avenue, the complaining witness, and her mother have given a supporting statement saying they testified against their will.

NEED OF A GOAT FOR CART LEADS LAD TO ROB CELLAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Francis, son of Frank Conway of Queens-village, and a companion built a wagon with two seats and shafts and then realized they had no goat to pull them. That realization, police say, led Francis to become a bootlegger.

A sign near Franics' home announced a goat could be bought for $15. Francis and his companion could raise but a few pennies. The wagon seemed destined to go goatless.

But Francis is made of stern stuff. He went to the cellar of his home, Jamaica police say, carted out a case of his father's pre-war Scotch whisky and sold it to three youths for $15. Francis got the goat.

Francis' mother got suspicious and asked police to investigate. Francis and his companion confessed, detectives said, while the three alleged buyers of the whisky were being arrested.

Francis will be arraigned Tuesday on a charge of juvenile delinquency before Justice O'Keefe in the Jamaica children's court. The three alleged whisky buyers were held in $500 bail each on a charge of impairing the morals of a minor.

The goat may go back to its former owners.

Man Robbed of $60 and Watch.

William Smith, 60 years old, a laborer of 111 Clark avenue, was walking south on Third street, between Cedar and Plum streets, at 9:30 o'clock last night when he was seized by two negroes and robbed of $60 and a gold watch. The negroes escaped.

PREVIN PAID 75 CENTS 'INTEREST' ON HIS BILL

Incident of Overtime Charge Against Musical Director of Municipal Opera.

—Strauss Photo.

Charles Previn.

When Charles Previn, musical director of the Municipal Opera, recently asked to be relieved of his contract at the close of this week's production of "The Merry Widow," he inclosed with his letter his check for $39 to compensate the Opera Association for overtime charged by the orchestra because he was 15 minutes late for an orchestra rehearsal.

Previn explained that the exact overtime charge was $38.25, but he had added 75 cents for "interest." Thus meticulously did the director culminate a lack of sympathy for some phases of the conduct of the opera which, it has been no secret, he has felt for some weeks.

The opera association declines to discuss this detail of Previn's retirement. It cares to say no more than it did at the time it became known that Previn would not return to the opera next year. It said then that it had granted Previn "a vacation" extending for two months from the close of the season to the date of expiration of his contract and added that it would happily consider any future application for connection with the opera which Previn might make.

However, it is known that the opera association returned the $39 check to Previn and told him it had had no thought of penalizing him. He had been working unusually hard on rehearsals for "Martha" and overslept.

In presenting the current orchestra bills to the management, the orchestra manager, Guido Vogel, casually remarked that of 30 minutes for overtime at the rehearsal in question, 15 minutes had been due to Previn's tardiness. No mention was made by the management to Previn of the overtime charge, but upon learning that it existed, Previn felt constrained to send the check.

Previn is completing his fourth year as director of the opera. This year his contract called for year-round duty. It is understood that he will depart a week from tomorrow to direct a musical production imported to New York from London.

Former 'Dragon' Freed of Charges

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 8.—Dr. John Galen Locke, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Colorado, W. F. Pritts and C. A. Kirkling, were freed on charges of kidnaping Keith Boehm, high school student, today. The defendant's plea of abatement, quashing the information charging kidnaping was allowed in district court. The grounds of the plea were that Judge Ben B. Lindsey of juvenile court, had no right to transfer the case to the district court. The charge grew out of the alleged act of the defendants in forcing Boehm to marry Miss Mae Nash here last December. The State will appeal the case.

3 SOLDIERS JAILED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Enlisted Men at Scott Field Put in Belleville Cells After Auto Theft.

Three Scott Field soldiers are in jail at Belleville today charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of a Hudson coach, which was stolen from William Pfuhl of Belleville Tuesday night. The prisoners are Mack Crossno, 25 years old, of Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Brodie Cunningham, 24, of Akron, O., and Crawford A. Warner, 25, of Birmingham, Ala. Cunningham and Warner were arrested at the field yesterday after Crossno, who was arrested in Belleville Friday night, had implicated them in the theft.

Crossno was arrested as the result of a trap laid for him by Pfuhl and Sheriff Schnipper. Thursday night Crossno visited Pfuhl and told him the stolen car was in St. Louis and that he (Crossno) could get it back for $20. Pfuhl agreed to the terms and arranged to meet the soldier the next evening.

Sheriff Schnipper and two deputies concealed themselves near the meeting place and took Crossno into custody after he had accepted a marked $20 bill proffered by Pfuhl. Crossno denied taking part in the actual theft and his story was corroborated by Cunningham, who assumed responsibility for it. However, warrants were issued against all three.

CHAUFFEUR RETURNS $10,000 IN JEWELS LEFT IN TAXI

Reports Discovery One Hour After New York Woman Had Left His Cab.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Money and jewelry amounting to $10,000 left by Martina Davids, 28 years old, in a taxicab at Broadway and Forty-second street, were turned over to the police today by Solon C. Sondaltzi, driver of the cab, one hour after Miss Davids alighted.

Sondaltzi explained the delay by the fact that the treasurer was not found until he returned his cab to the garage of his employers. He told the police he found an over-night bag, containing $60 in cash, a beaded hand-bag, a diamond necklace, two diamond bracelets, six diamonds, an emerald ring, one diamond locket, two diamond bar pins and a diamond studded lorgnette.

The jewelry and money will be returned tomorrow to Miss Davids, who learned of their recovery at Freeport, L. I., whither she was bound when she suffered the loss.

Miss Davids told the police she left the cab to do some shopping before taking a train for Long Island and did not miss the money and jewels until 20 minutes later. An alarm had just been broadcast when Sondaltzi walked into the station with the valuables.

30,000 MARCH IN K. K. K. PARADE AT WASHINGTON

Led by 50 Bands, Delegations From Many States Pass Through National Capital Without Disorders

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Ku Klux Klan, white-sheeted and bedaubed with every color in the rainbow, trumpeted by 50 bands, fell down upon the National Capital today 30,000 strong, marched gaily up Pennsylvania avenue, overran the nation's shrines and monuments, and then sought shelter when a deluge broke up a public ceremony at the foot of Washington Monument.

From many towns and hamlets came these knights of the "invisible empire," men and women, plowmen, country store clerks, school boys and girls, aged to ill-worn men and women from mills and factories, solemn, secretive.

These were not the rich, the educated, the powerful—but the masses, dressed up in white robes and peaked hats, surrounded by mystic signs and symbols, impressed, vaguely imagining themselves bound by some magic tie to the romantic legend of the old Ku Klux Klan. They knew of that admiringly from the movies. Mostly these parodies today, stuffed into hot trains, many fainting from the exertions of the march, tired, dragged out, were pathetic, though in the aggregate they were as gay as a mardi gras jubilee.

Leaders Gorgeously Arrayed.

The leaders, gorgeously arrayed in green, purple, scarlet and yellow silks, mounted upon white horses, were of a different class. There are prosperous—some of them have become wealthy collecting initiation and membership fees from these masses. One enterprising klan official collected tolls today. His pockets were stuffed with bills. He made no accounting, gave no receipts. But the simple folks who swarmed the city in the nightshirt regalia contributed to him without question. He refused to answer questions when interrogated by newspaper men. This was part of the secret ritual of the "invisible empire" of the knights and ladies of the Ku Klux Klan.

The ladies of the klan—also in white robes, also brilliantly splashed with reds, oranges, purples—carrying crosses, American flags—up the historic old avenue they plodded, patiently, cheered by the crowds flanking the curbs, hanging from hotel windows and sills, massed upon the Treasury Plaza. Fully a dozen fell exhausted to the pavement and were rescued by the police, who stood guard all along the line of march.

No Disorder or Heckling.

There was no disorder, no heckling, no outburst of antipathy. The giant crowds looked on surprised that the enterprising klan "wizards," "grand dragons," "kleagles," "kigraffs," "klokards"—there are an endless number of these twisted words in the kluxer vocabulary—had rounded up such a mass of humanity. Congressmen and one or two Senators looked on, shook their heads rather sadly. These are the people who vote, who run the Government.

Klan papers and magazines were sold galore. They are filled with "100 per cent Americanism" and "Militant Protestantism," with caustic comment about Catholics, Jews, negroes.

But this phantom-like, holiday army does not seem to care. They are not crusaders. They like to dress up and they like secret symbols and mystery.

Negroes Sell Watermelons.

They came by automobile, every highway echoing to the shrieks of their horns, their gay banners streaming in the wind, pitching their camps at a dozen shaded spots about the beautiful Capitol. Grinning negro vendors did a land-office business selling them watermelons. The streets about the Senate Office Building, where the parade formed, are strewn with rinds, banana peels, pop bottles and papers.

One aged negro hackman drove his wabbly carriage in the parade, four gaudy klansmen as fares. Not another negro was in the procession, and the venerable hackman looked uncomfortable and uneasy. For the most part Washington's vast negro population gave all the klan doings a wide berth. Psychologically this thing was a shock to many of them. Cooks and nursemaids, old colored mammy types, are muttering unhappily and with a trace of fear.

Not even the Shriners' convention here two years ago exceeded today's spectacle for color and curiosities.

An estimate by states shows that Pennsylvania had approximately 9000 in the parade; New Jersey, 7000; New York, 1400; Ohio, 1500; Virginia, 1700; Delaware, 650; Maryland, 1500; West Virginia, 900; Kentucky, 100; North Carolina, 200; Tennessee, 100; Florida, 280; Connecticut, 300, Michigan, 400; and smaller numbers from Texas, Georgia, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Illinois, Indiana and Louisiana.

BARONET, ONCE FIANCE OF AMERICAN, TO WED ANOTHER

Romance of Sir Michael Bruce and Miss Grace, Steel Man's Daughter, Broken.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The first news that Miss Emmeline Marion Grace, daughter of Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, is not to be married to Sir Michael William Selby Bruce, adventurous young Scottish Baronet, to whom her engagement was announced last December, reached New York yesterday.

It came in the form of a cable to the New York World announcing that Sir Michael, a Captain in the Royal Field Artillery and a wounded veteran of the Somme, is to marry in London today Miss Doreen Dalziel Greenwall. The bride is a daughter of a Colonel in the British army.

Miss Grace's engagement to Capt. Sir Michael was announced by her parents, Dec. 19, last, from their Bethlehem, Pa., home. It was just two years after she had made her debut at a ball given by her parents.

Miss Grace, an only daughter, was graduated from the Westover school at Middlebury, Conn., in 1922. She has been prominent in the younger sets of New York, Philadelphia and Southampton, L. I.

Sir Michael, according to Burke's Peerage, is the eleventh Baronet in his line and the family claims descent from Robert Bruce, hero King of Scotland. In the world war Sir Michael served with distinction in the Dardanelles, Egypt and France. He is a poet and author. He is 31 years old.

REHEARING SOUGHT BY ST. LOUIS IN SHOE TAX SUIT

City, Attacking Ruling in International Co. Case, Contends Concern Is Liable as a Merchant.

A motion for a rehearing was filed yesterday with the Supreme Court by City Counselor Senti in the suit of the International Shoe Co. to restrain License Collector Chapman and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Board of Tax Equalization from collecting $76,000, levied as a tax of $1 a $1000 on $76,000,000 in sales of shoes manufactured outside the city of St. Louis in the company's factories, but sold and delivered from their warehouses in St. Louis.

Commissioner Lindsay of the Supreme Court, in a decision given last week, held that the tax levy was illegal, declaring that the city was entitled to the sales tax only on the merchandise made by the company in the City of St. Louis and not in its factories at other points in this State or other States, though the merchandise is shipped into St. Louis for storage and sold through the St. Louis office.

Contentions of the City.

The city contends in the motion for a rehearing that the Commissioner inadvertently overlooked the fact, that if the company is not liable as a manufacturer, it is liable as a merchant, as merchants are taxed the same as manufacturers, $1 a $1000 on sales.

City Counselor Senti points out that the tax is based solely on sales and, so far as sales are concerned, there is no difference between a manufacturer and a merchant. He asserts that it should not be necessary for the license collector to attempt to differentiate between sales made in one capacity and sales made in another, in order to determine in which capacity the seller shall be taxed.

In the petition in support of the motion, the City Counselor states:

"Assuming the commissioner's decision to be correct, let us suppose that the company should discontinue all of its factories operating in St. Louis and should maintain its St. Louis office solely for the purpose of distribution of its manufactured goods. Under such circumstances the company would cease to be a manufacturer altogether, so far as the city of St. Louis is concerned, assuming the Court's decision to be correct. Does it follow that it would cease to be subject to any occupation tax now levied by the city? It seems to the city that such consequence does not ensue.

In Classification of Merchant.

"Having ceased to manufacture shoes within the city of St. Louis and having made the city its center for the distribution of its manufactured products, it would be a 'merchant,' within the meaning of the ordinance, imposing a license tax on merchants."

License Collector Chapman said the city would lose considerable more in revenue than the $76,000 involved in this case if the decision of the commissioner is sustained by the court en banc. He said he could not give an accurate estimate, but said it would amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

THESE low prices are not for new cars built to sell at new prices.

They are for Studebaker cars identical with those which have been in tremendous demand at higher prices during the past eleven months.

They are for Studebaker cars so well built of such high quality materials that net profits during the past six months have averaged only $140.64 per car. The rest of the money the public paid us went into making a car with scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation.

This showing of $140 per car is a triumph for the one-profit basis of manufacture. No manufacturer on a less efficient basis could have made a dollar selling cars of Studebaker quality at Studebaker prices.

Studebaker is the only one-profit car in the fine car field. Only Ford and Studebaker make for all their cars all bodies, all engines, all gear sets, clutches, springs, differentials, axles, steering gears, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

Thus we save and pass on to purchasers profits which many other manufacturers must pay to outside parts and body makers.

Thus we were able last January to reduce prices already low.

No "yearly models" make sales jump

Then we announced that Studebaker would have no more "yearly models" to artificially depreciate cars in the hands of owners.

Sales instantly started to soar and have forced the vast Studebaker plants to maintain peak production throughout the summer in the face of declining production for the industry in general.

To one-profit savings we thus add savings due to long continued peak production. These savings we share with customers in the price reduction announced August 1st.

On some models, such as the Standard Six Duplex Roadster and Phaeton, it was found impossible to cut the price, for they are already being marketed at figures close to the cost of production.

On the Big Sixes reductions are unusually large because we have eliminated some extra equipment, but although all prices have been cut to the bone, there has been no cut whatever in quality.

Same fine cars—in every particular

We still use genuine leather, mohair upholstery, fine northern white ash and hard maple, extra gauge steel of extra toughness for which we pay premiums, plate glass, walnut inlaid with holly and other refinements.

You can't appreciate what a bargain Studebaker cars are at these new prices until you compare them point by point with others.

Remember that Studebaker cars have been kept constantly up to date. Improvements have been made as soon as developed—not saved up for spectacular announcements under the guise of "new yearly models" designed to depreciate cars already in the hands of owners.

Superiorities—both hidden and obvious

Many of the most important superiorities of Studebakers are hidden until revealed by thousands of miles of usage, but here are some you can check to prove our statement that every Studebaker is more up to date than the newest "yearly model."

On all present Studebaker models, you'll find an automatic spark control, safety lighting control on the steering wheel, 8-day clock and gasoline gauge on the dash, improved one-piece windshield, special co-incidental lock of ignition and steering gear, fully machined crankshaft, cowl ventilator, waterproof ignition and oil drain valve (which a girl can operate without soiling her hands).

Studebaker pioneered the steel-framed Duplex Top with roller side enclosures which gives enclosed car protection to open car models—in 30 seconds.

Studebaker pioneered the use of full-size balloon tires, for which steering mechanism, fenders and body lines have been especially designed.

Tested and approved—not experiments

When you buy a Studebaker, you not only get a motor car that is completely up to date, but one that has been tested and proved satisfactory in the hands of thousands of owners.

Several hundred thousand cars have been branded obsolete in the last 30 days because new models have come to take their place. Owners have lost millions of dollars in depreciation—unnecessarily.

But today, or on any day of the year, you can buy a Studebaker with the confident assurance that no act of ours will stigmatize it as a "last year's model."

Go to any Studebaker dealer and see these sturdy, dependable "one-profit" cars. Today, more than ever before, every Studebaker is a big money's worth.

Any of the Studebaker dealers listed below will be glad to show you these cars—and finance their purchase on a fair and liberal budget payment plan.

CUT OF 22,000 BALES IN COTTON ESTIMATE

Crop Put at 13,566,000 Bales and Condition Aug 1 as 65.6 P. C.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—This year's cotton crop declined to the extent of 22,000 bales between July 17 and Aug. 1. The Department of Agriculture's Aug. 1 forecast of prospective production, issued today, places the crop at 13,566,000 bales, compared with a forecast of 13,588,000 bales based on the July 16 condition.

The forecast was based on the condition of the crop Aug. 1, which was 65.6 per cent of normal, indicating an acre yield of 159.8 pounds.

Ginnings of cotton of this year's crop prior to Aug. 1 totaled 159,373 running bales, counting round as half bales, compared with 21,795 bales to that date in 1924 and 64,381 bales in 1923, the Census Bureau announced.

Today's forecast compared with 13,588,000 bales announced a fortnight ago on the condition of the crop on July 16, which was 70.4 per cent of a normal, indicating an acre yield of 140 pounds. Production last year was 13,627,936 bales, the final acre yield was 157.4 pounds and the condition of the crop on Aug. 1 was 67.4 per cent.

The condition of the crop on Aug. 1 and the indicated acre yield by states follow:

State.	Condition. Pct.	Yield. Lbs.
Virginia	.75	244
North Carolina	.75	244
South Carolina	.62	155
Georgia	.66	132
Florida	.80	112
Missouri	.84	269
Tennessee	.82	189
Alabama	.74	141
Mississippi	.81	182
Louisiana	.69	135
Texas	.49	95
Oklahoma	.72	147
Arkansas	.87	200
New Mexico	.75	172
Arizona	.92	258
California	.90	279
All other states	.89	187

The crop reporting board in its comments on the reports said:

"For the cotton belt as a whole the condition of 65.6 per cent on Aug. 1 indicated about 13,566,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, a change of only 22,000 bales from the figure of 13,588,000 bales indicated by the condition of July 16. Further declines due to drought in portions of Texas and Oklahoma have been about offset by a lessening of the weevil menace in the Southeast and by the enhanced prospects in Arkansas, Tennessee and Missouri. Army worms, rust, lice and wilt are reported from scattered localities in Louisiana, Mississippi and adjoining states. Lice have practically disappeared in Texas.

"In Texas, after July 16, excessive temperatures and hot winds did great damage, causing the plants to shed forms, blooms and small bolls and leaves. The growth was stopped except in favored localities and a considerable amount of the young cotton died. The number of bolls reported by correspondents to be safe in Texas is only one-half as many as on the same date last year.

"Rains fell in practically the entire State during the last days of July and continued into the first days of August, with a precipitation ranging from less than one inch to seven inches. Unfortunately, the drouth-stricken central and southern sections of the State received the least rain. While much benefit will accrue in a majority of the counties in this area, not too much should be expected in those counties where less than two inches of rain fell, unless soon followed by more rain.

"The brilliant promise in Oklahoma was somewhat lessened by the drouthy conditions in the southwest section of the State, since relieved by general rains. In Mississippi and Alabama, the prospects for a good crop continued to develop with sufficient but excessive rainfall in most sections and slight insect damage to date.

"In Arkansas, the crop has improved everywhere in the State due to timely rains, except in portions of the southcentral and southeastern districts. Fruiting is heavy. The boll weevil is being reported from a greater number of points, but damage to date is not material except in a few counties."

PRE-BUREAU LIQUIDATION MARKS COTTON TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Government's crop report was not published until the close of the cotton market here today, and the trading which preceded it lacked any particular feature. Prices rallied from an opening decline, but eased off again, and after selling up from 24.08c to 24.32c, December closed at 24.10c compared with 24.24c at the close of the previous day. The general market closed easy, at a net decline of 9 to 16 points.

The opening decline of 6 to 15 points was in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and to private reports of showers in the Southwest, which were considered unimportant. After selling off to 24.90c for October and 23.60c for January, prices rallied on pre-bureau covering. October sold up to 24.07c and January to 23.80c, but at these figures the advance was checked by renewed realizing and prices broke back to the early low levels in late trading. A little more hedge selling was reported late in the forenoon, but the bulk of the day's business was attributed to further evening up of old accounts which included considerable covering by Western interests during the earlier trading.

Private cables said some trade calling and covering had been offset by liquidation in the Liverpool market.

The Government report, published here 15 minutes after the close of the market, estimated the condition 65.6 and the indicated yield 13,566,000 bales, compared with recent private reports averaging a condition of 66.4 and an indicated yield of 13,645,000 bales. The official figures were commented upon by local brokers as bullish on their face, but the census report showing 159,373 bales ginned to Aug. 1 was somewhat heavier than expected, comparing with recent private estimates of 125,000 to 150,000 bales.

Wall Street News and Comment —SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Stocks were in active demand again today with the volume of business for a Saturday comparing very favorably with other two-hour sessions in recent months. Approximately 25 new high records were made. These included important issues in the railway and industrial sections.

The Bond Market.

Foreign issues took a prominent part in the bond trading at the end of the week. French Government obligations were all in demand again, with the 7½s and 8s around their recent high figures. The better feeling toward French bonds seems to be based on confidence in the success of the new French internal gold value guaranteed loan. Expectation that the French debt will be refunded in September also helped.

Next to the French bonds the most interest was taken in Anton Jurgen 6s, which advanced further a point and a quarter. They were being bought apparently on the privilege they carry of conversion into the common stock of the Amsterdam company. Belgian 7s, which had been under pressure following the dissolution of the syndicate, were firm today. There was some reaction in Poland 8s.

In the domestic list Liberty Bonds were barely steady. Evidently the firmer tone in time money was having more effect than expectations of benefits from the maintenance of the present low Reserve Bank discount rate.

Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s were active again at their new high in sympathy with the stock. Missouri Pacific 4s were taken in large volume just above 64. Sugar bonds were steady but did not show the same strength as sugar stocks.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review today, says:

"The market all through the week reflected an increasing supply for exchange on many European centers and a steadily decreasing inquiry, with market on the buying side at times extremely thin and bids far below levels previously established.

"Most important of the movements was that in Italian exchange yesterday. There the tone for the lira had been steady all through the preceding part of the week, but the demand was small in volume and before the first half of the week passed it became hard to negotiate transactions without making concessions. The rate held above 3.62 yesterday for a good part of the day, and when the forenoon passed offers found the market without nearby bids and a quick decline to 3.58 occurred. It was a matter of general understanding that the absence of buying was on the knowledge that large offerings had come from Italy, France and England, and it was thought they might be based on some special developments. Belgian exchange earlier in the week showed a heavier tone, checks falling more than 15 points to 44.6½, following statements regarding funding of the Belgian dbt.

"Norwegian exchanges moved in a more orderly manner and little change was made in positions of Swiss and Dutch exchange. Sterling was in supply in the first half of the week, when demand yielded ⅛s to $4.85⅛, but became firmer in the last few days. Greek exchange was heavy, but without showing any further decline. Exchange on Poland was steadier, zloty checks ranging from 18.00 to 19.00. Japanese exchange also showed a firm tone through the week and, in addition to spot transactions, there was a good volume of business in yen for end-of-August delivery. Canadian exchange was in less urgent demand and reacted 1.16 to 100.04.

Business in all documents was unusually small. Supply was scanty when bids were made for large amounts, and the condition became more pronounced when large offers were made, bids then being extremely scarce.

"Foreign exchanges were quiet and changes were irregular. Sterling ruled steady and Belgian francs continued to recover, but French francs eased off somewhat and Scandinavian rates were a trifle lower.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Aug. 8.—Wheat futures sold higher after a lower start on the local market.

Late profit taking caused reaction from high and the close was fraction under to fraction over previous close. Corn was about unchanged.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was slow and prices unchanged to 2c lower. Hard met good demand, including export, and was 1c to 2c higher. Cash corn was steady to ½c higher. Demand was fair. Oats were steady. Demand was fair.

The fact that Liverpool closed only ⅝d to ¾d higher, caused some early selling, as did belief that a reaction was due after the week's sharp rise. The report of more interest being shown by Eastern buyers and the pending crop estimate Monday lent support. Weather conditions were favorable for corn but the action of wheat helped corn prices.

September wheat opened at $1.66⅝-½, December wheat, $1.65⅝, May wheat, $1.68¼, September corn, $1.04¼, December corn, 86¼c.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 359 cars of wheat, compared with 234 a week ago and 279 last year, Minneapolis receiving 264 cars, Duluth 21 and Winnipeg 74.

Local wheat receipts, which were 232,400 bushels, compared with 280,000 a week ago and 423,075 last year, included 150 cars local and 16 through. Corn receipts, which were 37,800 bushels, compared with 28,000 a week ago and 36,400 last year, included 25 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 132,000 bushels, compared with 162,000 a week ago and 112,000 last year, included 49 cars local and 17 through. Hay receipts were 13 cars local and 9 through.

SEPTEMBER WHEAT REACHES TOP PRICE OF SEASON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—September wheat reached the highest level of the season today. The market was erratic with considerable profit taking on the advances, but offers mysteriously disappeared on the dips. At the close prices were ⅛c higher to 1c lower and gains of 10c to 12½c were posted for the week. Corn continued to lag, but was helped by the advance in wheat and closed unchanged to ⅛c up and ⅝c to 1⅛c up for the week.

At the opening of the wheat market there was a general desire to take profits before big advance this week and because of the Government crop report due late Monday afternoon, which is generally expected to show a total wheat crop less than a month ago, but in order to guard against surprises conservatives evened up their lines.

As a result of this pressure prices broke sharply, but the decline was short lived. Commission houses absorbed the offerings and prices moved up quickly to yesterday's top. A little more pressure was experienced at this price, but shorts became uneasy over the failure of the market to break and their covering boosted September to the highest prices of the season established previously.

Pit conditions rather than news factors were the dominating influences in the market. Despite the sharp advance there was no surplus of offerings at any time except at the season's high level. Crop news from Canada was mixed. Some reports were favorable, others were unfavorable in reports of damage. Cash wheat did not follow the advance in futures today, ordinary offerings of No. 2 hard selling at ½c less premium. Mills, however, were willing to pay up for dark and semidark varieties. Local dealers sold 320,000 bushels wheat to exporters over night and 12,000 to mills. Vessel room was chartered for 350,000 bushels to Montreal. Liverpool did not fully respond to our gain and the reason given was cheaper Russian offerings and decline of 10 shillings per ton in Plett offers. Wheat closed at September $1.66 to $1.66¼; December, $1.63¾ to $1.64; May, $1.67 to $1.67¼.

Trade in corn was lifeless. Prices eased at the start under selling caused by wet weather over the corn belt. The late recovery was due to local short covering caused by firmness in wheat. Country offerings to arrive were only a few cars. Shipping sales were 54,000 bushels. September closed at $1.04⅞ to $1.05; December, 87¼c to 87½c; May, 89⅝c to 89¾c.

Oats closed ¼c to ⅝c lower for the day and ⅝c to 1⅝c higher for the week. Buying of September and selling of May at 6c difference by elevator interests was the only feature of the day. One car of oats which booked to arrive from the country on overnight bids. Shipping demand showed little improvement and sales to the East today were 54,000 bushels.

Provisions were firmer. A good demand was noted from cash interests and some buying was stimulated by strength in hogs. Smaller packs sold on the advance. Lard closed 10c to 17½c higher, ribs 20c to 40c higher and bellies 17½c up. For the week lard is 35c to 42c higher, ribs 50c to 60c higher and bellies 20c higher.

HOGS SLIGHTLY LOWER AT CLOSING OF WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	38,304	35,964	30,110
Hogs	58,679	57,943	57,888

Horses and mules	682	429	863

A few choice to prime cattle which were not in large enough numbers to really test the market were steady, but fair to good fed steers were 75c to $1 lower during the past week. Medium heavy grassers and even some of the short cornfed cattle were 50c lower. Grassers, that is, the lower-priced beefers, were 25c to 40c off, and this included the Westerns, which came from Oklahoma and Kansas. It was indeed a wishy-washy deal all week on she-stuff. The tops were steady, but on medium and plainer grades it was a slow and mostly quarter lower market. Canners and cutters were steady and sold mainly from $2.50 to $3.50. Bulls were steady. There was a spirited trade on good feeder cattle. Fine prospect for feed in the country has rejuvenated this trade. Prices were 25c higher. Vealers opened lower and sold at $11.50, but later a stronger tone developed and the top was shoved up to $11.75. Canner yearlings have moved with some alacrity all week, selling at $3.35 to $3.50.

Hogs Close Lower.

Rapid fluctuations in price during the week just finished found hog prices closing on a basis slightly lower than the week previous, all grades except pigs sharing in the drop. Receipts weer somewhat lighter running approximately 20,000 less for for the 11 markets. Decreased order buying demand, however, put the market in packer hands for the most part. The sharpest variations in price were noted on the weightier grades, averaging 210 pounds and up. At one time in the week this class sold as low as $13.50, the shipping demand during the final session boosting prices back, however, where the bottom figure stopped at $13.75. With the bulk of these weights going at $13.75 to $14, sales figure weak to 5c under the previous Saturday. Lighter weights show no change, weights from 160 to 200 pounds finding outlet at $14 to $14.25, the latter figure the closing top. An important feature of the week's trade was the widening spread in prices between butcher and light hogs often times showing 50c range. Not far back a 25c spread would catch all weights from 160 pounds and over. Pigs showed practically no change for the week, a good demand for this class both as killers and stockers creating a keen inquiry. Strong weights from 130 to 150 pounds average found outlet at $13.75 to $14.25 largely, medium weight kinds from 110 to 130 pounds going at $13.25 to $13.75. Lighter kinds (natives) ranged from $12.50 to $13.25. Southern and crop-eared offerings ranging from $1 to $2 per cwt under these quotations. Stocker pigs (unvaccinated) averaging 80 to 110 pounds sold from $11 to $12.50 largely. Packer sows closed the week at 15c to 25c lower values, $12 catching the bulk of this class in Saturday's session. Stags quotable at $10.50 to $11.50 are steady. Closing quotations for the week on all grades are as follows: Butchers, 210 pounds and up, $13.75 to $14; lights, 160 to 200 pounds, $14 to $14.25; pigs, 130 to 150 pounds, $13.75 to $14.25; medium weights, 110 to 130 pounds $13.25 to $13.75; lights and peewees, $12.50 to $13.25; stocker pigs, 80 to 110 pounds, $11 to $12.50; sows, $11.75 to $12, and stags $10.50 to $11.50.

Lamb Prices Lower.

Buyers kept the lamb market well in hand during the greater part of the past week, holding prices to a basis generally 50c lower than the previous week's close. Salesmen, however, were enabled to force a raise of 25c during the week's final sessions, which placed the market on a basis 25c under last Saturday. Local receipts were moderate in volume, running materially higher than the previous week, but still heavier than the corresponding period last year. Quality ruled good. The week opened with a top of $14.75 for full loads, one small bunch scoring $15 to local killers. From then until the closing rounds of the week packers held lambs to a $14.50 to $14.75 market, with the last of the week again ushering in $15 offerings. The fluctuations on price were noted on the better quality offerings, plain lambs and culls coming through the six days with practically no change. Most of this class went at $9 to $11, with skip offerings at $5 to $7. The light supply of aged sheep prohibited any bearish tactics on the part of buyers toward this class and prices show no change for the week. Top for best native ewes was $7.50, this price catching a good share of the lighter offerings. Heavies and medium quality kinds sold from $5 to $6.50 largely. The demand continues good for breeding ewes, choice good-mouthed black faces quotable up to $10.50. The few arriving sold mainly at $6 to $9.

Good to choice lambs quotable at the week's close at $14 to $15, medium to good $13 to $14 and plain to medium $12 to $13. Cull and common $9 to $11.50 and skips $5 to $7. Good to choice killing ewes $6.50 to $8, medium to good $5.50 to $6.50 and plain to medium $4.50 to $5.50. Choppers and bucks $2 to $4 and canners $1 to $1.50. Good to choice blackface breeding ewes $9 to $10.50, medium to good $7 to $9 and plain to medium $4 to $7. Fat goats $2.50 to $3, fat kids $4 to $6. Thin and common goats $1 to $2.

INDEPENDENT PACKING AND ELY-WALKER STOCKS ARE LOCAL MARKET FEATURES

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Aug. 8.—The recording of new high prices by at least four securities and trading in the newly listed St. Louis Independent Packing Co. stocks featured the session on the local market during the past week. In the initial trade in the packing common stock a top of 33½ was touched, compared with 21 at which a portion of the issue was offered for public subscription.

Ely-Walker common was an out-standing feature, selling up to 28½. Best-Clymer at 50 was an opening period strong spot, while Skouras "A" closed the week, with sales at 44½, new high. International Shoe common had a sharp break on a decision by the Federal Trade Commission relative to the company's interest in an Eastern shoe company. Half of the loss later was regained.

Total sales of stocks on the exchange during the past week amounted to 8804 shares, compared with 6975 the previous week. Bond sales were $9500 against $23,100 a week ago.

Following is a complete list of securities traded in on the exchange during the past week, sales, highest, lowest, closing prices and net changes being given:

LONDON BANK RATE CUT IS WEEK'S EVENT

Stock Trend Reflects View That an Advance in New York Rate, of Which There Has Been Setback, Now Is Less Likely.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Evening Post in the copyrighted weekly financial review today says:

"Easily the most interesting bit of news that came to Wall street this week was the announcement that the Bank of England had reduced its discount rate. This word came just at a time when the market appeared to be ready for a reaction on the belief that funds soon might become substantially dearer. Improvement in the business situation this fall, it has been said, would draw funds away from the markets and depress security prices. Some thought that another increase in the rediscount rate in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York might come almost any time. No sooner were the bears ready for the charge, however, than their plans were spoiled by the Bank of England. Rightly or wrongly, investors and speculators reached the conclusion that an immediate increase in our rediscount rate is scarcely to be expected in the face of a reduction by Great Britain. Bullish sentiment has been revived, therefore, and the constructive forces for the moment again are having their way in the markets.

London Rate Higher.

"Unquestionably the move to a lower discount rate by our British friends is a straw in evidence that conditions here are not ripe for an advance in the rediscount rate, but it offers guarantee that our rate will be kept down. Even the reduction of the British rate from 5 to 4½ per cent leaves the Bank of England rate substantially higher than the 3½ per cent rediscount rate here.

In Wake of Gold Standard.

"Not the least significant aspects of the matter are the signs that we now have of England's successful return to the gold standard and her effort to revive trade. Under the 5 per cent rate Great Britain not only returned to gold, but swelled her holdings of the metal from £128,000,000 to £164,000,000 within three months after she had done so. Her ratio of reserves stands at 31¼ per cent, against 16¾ a year ago. Assured that the gold standard can be maintained without a serious drain on supplies, the authorities now feel that they can do something to help industry. Slightly cheaper money is the stimulant they are offering.

Precedent on Railroads.

"Perhaps the most constructive news of the week that originated on this side of the water was the announcement of President Coolidge that he favored voluntary consolidation of the railroads. The Government now has committed itself to the policy of allowing the roads to work out their own merger proposals for official approval. The railroad shares gradually are coming into greater popularity as investors gain assurances that the Government will not interfere and as reports of earnings brighten. Along with this came a report submitted to the Government of the oil situation, however, that told of immense supplies still within our boundaries. It suggests a reason why oil shares, perhaps, have been laggards in the market this year. Utility and high priced industrial issues continue to soar to new high levels on persistent talk of mergers and split-ups. The most characteristic feature of the securities market nowadays, however, is its breadth. So broad has the market become that advances in one group appear simultaneously with declines in another.

Trade Situation.

"The sights of good business this fall become a little more distinct as the weeks pass, but nowhere do they promise anything like a boom. Stocks of goods on hand have been held down to a low level in recent months for the very purpose of avoiding inflation, and the country is beginning to profit from that far-sighted policy. Any increase in the demand for goods from this level necessarily will mean a revival in industrial activities, since operations have been on a hand-to-mouth basis. The commodities market is a good inedx of what lies ahead. Prices of raw materials have risen rather smartly in the last two or three months and at present reports show good buying of basic materials. Not everything in the outlook appears bright, to be sure, and will not so long as labor continues to give evidence of restlessness. Employers and employes have been at peace now for about two years, generally speaking, but this summer has brought to a head several disputes that present certain rather serious aspects.

Steels Active Saturday.

"The large group of recently strong industrial and public utility stocks continued to forge ahead in today's fairly active short session of the stock market. High-priced issues again attracted most attention. General Electric, Havana Electric, General Railway Signal, American Can and Mack Trucks also moved steadily higher, the last named crossing 200. Steel shares and rails displayed a revival in interest and as groups rallied strong, but motors for the most part were stagnant. General Motors, however, again was under accumulation and established a new top for the year. Baldwin, International Combustion, International Telephone and U. S. Rubber rallied. Mallinson rebounded sharply after yesterday's reaction. New York Central, Ontario & Western and Missouri Pacific preferred led the General Motors, however, again was under accumulation and established a new top for the year. Baldwin, International Combustion, International Telephone and U. S. Rubber rallied. Mallinson rebounded sharply after yesterday's reaction. New York Central, Ontario & Western and Missouri Pacific preferred led the rails, while New Haven and Reading were well supported.

Conflicting Business Factors.

"Reason for price irregularities in some parts of the list was found in the conflicting influence of business circles. While the demand for steel is steadily expanding and prosperity is spreading through the public utility field, signs of over production in crude oil have again made an appearance. Gasoline prices were reduced in the East today, while reports from the producing centers of the Southwest indicated that wholesale gasoline markets were weak. Price cuts were announced by several automobile producers and others who have not already revised prices downward were expected to fall into line at an early date. Demand for steel products spells increased operations for steel producers, however, and in some quarters talk of a boom is heard. July building figures issued today indicated that operations in this direction are proceeding virtually at the best levels in history. Railroads are expected to re-enter the market for equipment on a large scale, while automobile producers are still heavy purchasers of material from steel mills.

Exchange Market Quiet.

"Foreign exchanges were quiet and changes were irregular. Sterling ruled steady and Belgian francs continued to recover, but French francs eased off somewhat and Scandinavian rates were a trifle lower.

Weekly Bank Statement.

"The weekly clearing house statement revealed an excess reserve of $19,757,420 and an increase in the surplus of $14,710,450. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $35,246,000, while the aggregate reserve amounted to $600,207,000.

Cotton Market Easier.

"A slightly easier tone appeared in the cotton market early in the session, but before the close prices rallied on short covering and withdrawal from the market on the part of those traders who wished to close commitments before publication of the Government crop report. Grain prices also started lower, profit-taking on yesterday's sharp advance accounting for increased offerings. Buying support was curtailed by uncertainty over prospective yield figures to be issued in the crop report Monday.

Further Decline in Rubber.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The downward trend in crude rubber prices, which began on July 24, continued during today's brief session. Smoked ribbed sheets dropped to 76⅝c for spot, the lowest level since June 19, when the closing quotation was 74⅝c. Trading was almost at a standstill. The break was attributed to reports of curtailment in tire operations in the Akron district.

Lead, Zinc and Copper

Lead last quoted at $9.85 per 100 lbs. in St. Louis.

Slab zinc last quoted at $7.60 per 100 lbs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The American Smelting and Refining Co. today advanced the price of lead from 8.75 to 8.90 cents per pound.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Copper manifested continued strength during the past week. Buying of domestic consumers was the heaviest of the year, both for nearby and forward deliveries at the advance. Export business was quieter. It is believed that domestic consumers have covered a good part of their requirements for the next three or four months although sentiment remained bullish at the week-end, anticipating sustained, if not further advanced prices in view of the statistical position. Products are again higher.

Lead remained in a strong statistical position and prices advanced rather sharply, with consumers anxious buyers of August and September. Producers are reported booked well ahead.

Zinc was higher owing to the strong ore situation and the advance abroad. A better consuming demand was reported from galvanizers and some export business was worked.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Cotton goods were quiet today in anticipation of the Government cotton crop report. Sales for the week were of fair volume and rather broader, including broadcloths, pongees, print cloths, pajama checks, denims, etc. Yarns ruled quiet with prices steadier. Raw silk was firmer and raw silk throwsters are reported working day and night. Fall trade continued good in many silk lines. More business was being placed on garments and dress fabrics for the fall and considerable specialty business has been done in men's wear for spring. Burlaps were steady. Linens showed improvement in the household goods division.

UTILITIES FEATURE ON CURB DURING THE WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The market on the Curb Exchange today lacked any movement of outstanding importance as compared with price fluctuations of recent sessions, although a fairly strong undertone prevailed in the general list. Trading was in reduced volume and several of the late speculative favorites were neglected in the opening operations.

Penn Power was a strong issue, moving up 1½ points, while American Light and United Light were offered at concessions from the high figures reached on Friday's upturn, but the last-named issue quickly rallied 4⅝ points from the low mark.

The industrial group developed strength as the session progressed. Baking and radio shares went higher. Coty Incorporated made an early gain of 2⅛ points, selling to 48⅛.

Oil shares were virtually unchanged from the previous closing quotations, with trading quiet within narrow limits.

All through the week the trading in public utilities was of a remarkable character and the strength shown in that group could only be comprehended by contrast with low prices prevailing early in the year before vigorous and sensational movements started. United Light and Power "A", which made a new high record on an advance of 15 points to 136, started from a low of 44½. Many other utility stocks traveled over even a wider range.

American Light and Traction had an advance of 17 points during the week to 203, and Southeastern Power and many other issues made advances ranging from 5 to 20 points. Most of the transactions were accompanied by reference to mergers and in some cases official announcements of absorption of companies whose stocks had been most active were made.

Industrial issues moved within a narrow range, although some in this group showed strength. Motor stocks were among the weak exceptions. Oil stocks were pressed on the market during the greater part of the week.

SPECIAL PLANES SEEK PULITZER TROPHY

Army Service Has Three Entrants for High-Speed Race Set for Oct. 10.

Post-Dispatch Bureau
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. — The Army Service will have three airplanes in the Pulitzer High Speed classic at Mitchel Field, L. I., Oct. 10.

In making this announcement the War Department stated that in addition to the new Curtiss racer built for the race, the air service will enter two especially prepared and very fast pursuit planes. Of the three Curtiss racers, the first delivered will be used by both the army and navy pilots who are to fly this type. The second will go to the army or navy by lot.

First Lieut. Cyrus Bettis, air service, will fly the army's Curtiss racer in the Pulitzer event, with Lieut. James H. Doolittle of Transcontinental flight fame, as the alternate pilot.

For the second and third army entries, using the especially prepared high speed pursuit planes, of which exact duplicates will be furnished the navy, Capt. Harvey W. Cook and Second Lieut. Leo H. Dawson have been chosen as pilots.

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES' BODY LEAVES CAPITAL FOR SOUTH

Southern Editor's Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow in Atlanta, Georgia.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The body of John Temple Graves, widely known Southern writer, who died here early today, was on its way tonight to Atlanta, Ga., where funeral services will be held Monday. He was nearly 69 years old.

He had been ill for several weeks of a complication of diseases, the most serious of which was hardening of the arteries. His condition took a turn for the worse several days ago, and his family was summoned. During the last few days he had been unconscious a large part of the time and no hope had been held out for him.

The son of Gen. and Mrs. James Porterfield Graves, he was born in South Carolina, Nov. 9, 1856, and was a grandson of William, eldest brother of John C. Calhoun. After attending the University of Georgia, he entered newspaper work and served successively as editor of several papers in Florida and Georgia, and for two years was editor-in-chief and part owner of the Atlanta Daily Georgian. From 1907 to 1915 he was editor-in-chief of the New York American, then became editorial representative of 12 Hearst daily newspapers. He served as presidential elector-at-large from Florida in 1884 and from Georgia in 1888, and was the candidate of the National Independence party for the vice presidency in 1908.

Coal Mine Strike Nears Settlement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., Aug. 8. — Announcement was made here tonight that the strike of coal miners on since Aug. 1, was virtually settled by the conference between committees of miners and operators here this afternoon, and it was expected the men would return to work Monday. All of the shafts have been closed since the strike started. As a result of today's conference the miners will receive an increase of one cent a bushel for mining coal and the day workers will get an increase of 50 cents a day.

SWITCHMAN FAINTS, IS KILLED

Henry S. Stinner, 45 years old, 1407 Cleveland avenue, East St. Louis, was killed yesterday when he fell from a tank car on which he was riding and rolled under the wheels. Stinner was a skitchman for the Terminal Railroad Association and was working in the Granite City yards when the accident occurred.

Fellow workmen stated that a fainting spell caused him to fall from the car. An inquest will be held.

WIFE, SUED FOR DIVORCE SEEKS $10,000 DAMAGES

Mrs. Mary Wagner, 22, Brings Alienation Action Against Husband's Parents.

Mrs. Mary Wagner, 22 years old, of the Lindell Plaza Hotel, who was sued for divorce July 23 by Lester Wagner, who alleged desertion, yesterday filed suit for $10,000 damages against his mother, Mrs. Ivy Wagner Elliott, and stepfather, Henry G. Elliott, of 3947 Page boulevard, alleging they alienated her husband's affections.

The petition states the plaintiff and Wagner lived together from Nov. 19 last, when they were married, to July 13, when he moved to the Page boulevard address. It is charged the mother and stepfather induced him to leave her, and that they informed her they believed in "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," and because she had taken their boy from them they had taken him from her.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott could not be reached for a statement.

INDIAN RAJAH OUTSHINES ROYALTY WHILE ON TOUR

Ruler of Jodhpur Reaches London With Polo Team, Several Wives and Retinue of Servants.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Occidental millionaires seldom travel in such expensive style as the rich Indian rulers, several of whom are now enjoying holidays in London.

The Maharajah of Jodhpur, one of the first of the native Princes to reach London for the social season, brought along a polo team, several wives and a retinue of servants, and settled in a mansion just outside London. His entertainments have been on a scale much more lavish than those of the royal families of Europe.

This week the Maharajah of Patiala, with his consort and a large suite, disembarked at Marseilles and hired a special train to convey his party across France to the English Channel. An entire floor of 100 rooms in London's largest hotel is being occupied exclusively by this potentate and his entourage. Later the Maharajah is going to Geneva to represent the potentates of India at League of Nations headquarters.

Silver Fox,

GRAY FLYER STOPPED BY HIGH WEIGHT

Peanuts, With 18 Pounds Advantage Over Sinclair's Star, Beats Odds-on Favorite.

By George H. Daley.
Sports Editor of the New York World.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Gov. Smith and a holiday throng of gaily-dressed men and women saw J. E. Wideners' Haste win the sporting Saratoga special at the track here today, and then Robert L. Garry's diminutive Peanuts beat Harry F. Sinclair's Silver Fox a neck in the Saranac handicap of $10,000 at one mile.

Haste, a son of Maintenant-Miss Malaprop, earned a forward place among the two-year-olds of the season by his manner of beating Pompey, Flight of Time, Navigator and others in one of the most coveted fixtures of the many run at this meeting. Sande rode the good-looking colt with all the skill for which he is famous and helped materially in earning the $12,000 purse and the gold cup valued at $1000 added by the association.

Weight Stops Silver Fox.

Silver Fox, winner of the Cincinnati and Empire derbies, could not give 18 pounds to the game and consistent Peanuts, even over his favorite distance of one mile. Laverne Fator took him to the front at the start and forced a smooth, even pace. He disposed of Stirrup Cup, which tried to go with him, rounding the far turn, but even as Stirrup Cup dropped back beaten, Peanuts moved up and gave challenge.

Silver Fox held command until well inside the last sixteenth pole. But finally the weight and the pace began to bear heavily and Peanuts closing steadily and gamely on the outside wore him down in a furious drive to win by a neck.

R. T. Wilson's Senalado closed a big gap from a bad beginning to earn third money, but he never seriously threatened the fighting leaders.

Swope, well up for half a mile, soon dropped out of it and By Himself showed little improvement over his races at Empire City.

Sande Beats the Barrier.

Earl Sande beat the barrier to a rather straggling start in the Saratoga Special with Haste and after racing Fiddlesticks into submission and shaking off Flight of Time at the head of the stretch came away to win ridden out from the fast closing Pompey. He ran the distance in the good time of 1:12 2-5 for the six furlongs and from now on must be considered with the best.

GIANTS ARE NOW 5 FULL GAMES BEHIND PACEMAKING PIRATES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The New York Giants, four-time champions of the National League, were given another stiff jolt today when the Cincinnati Reds trimmed them, while the pacemaking Pirates took a double-header from the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Pirates are now leading McGraw's club by five full games and the Reds by six and one-half games.

The National standing:

Pittsburg	62	39	.614
New York	58	45	.563

Johnston Defeats Richards in Five Sets in One of the Most Thrilling Matches in History

Spurred on by Knowledge That Victor Would Be Favored for No. 2 on Davis Cup Team, Contestants Battle Until Near Collapse — Score 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-8, 9-7.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., August 8.—"Little Bill" Johnston, veteran of many a brilliant campaign, came back to the battle today and emerged victorious in one of the most sensational struggles of his career, a flashing, breath-taking triumph over Vincent Richards that will go down among the high spots of American tennis.

In five thrilling sets that were decided by scores of 6—3, 6—4, 3—6, 6—8, 9—7, Johnston not only helped the west score an uphill victory over the East, five matches to four, in the final day of the annual intersectional tournament, but gained the edge in his duel with Richards for the No. 2 singles position on the American Davis Cup team.

So close was this battle of tennis giants, however, with the tide ebbing and flowing with startling rapidity throughout the match, that it offered no definite basis for the decision of the Davis Cup selection committee.

Although Richards was just as brilliant in defeat as his op-

Johnston Must Play Richards Twice More To Gain Second Place

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The U. S. Davis Cup Committee, unable to decide upon the No. 2 rank cup team member, has ordered Vincent Richards and William M. Johnston to play two more three-out-of-five matches, next Monday and Wednesday.

The one making the best showing will share with W. T. Tilden the honor of playing in singles. Tilden and Johnston will play in the doubles.

Walter Hoover Wins National Single Sculls Rowing Title

Codman of Boston Finishes Second in Feature Event of Regatta at Philadelphia—Fitzpatrick Wins Quarter-Mile Dash.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—Walter Hoover, recently back from England, where he lost to Jack Beresford Jr. in the Diamond Sculls and Philadelphia Gold Challenge Cup match race, won the American national sculling championship singles here today, beating Russel E. Codman Jr., of the Union Boat Club, Boston, by a length.

Paul Costello, Penn A. C., was third, two feet back of Codman, with W. E. Garrett Gilmore, Bachelors Barge Club, fourth.

The Pennsylvania Barge Club crew of Philadelphia won the senior eight-oared shell race, one of the feature events of the program.

Algernon Fitzpatrick of the Malta Boat Club, Philadelphia, retained his national senior quarter-mile dash championship. He defeated W. E. Garrett Gilmore, Bachelors Barge Club, Philadelphia, by four feet, with Walter M. Hoover, Undine Barge Club, Philadelphia, a length back of Gilmore. Gilmore was the first away, but Fitzpatrick made a great spurt in the last 50 yards that gave him the victory.

Penn A. C. Wins Trophy.

Although finishing last in the senior eight-oared race, Coach Joe Wright's Penn Athletic Club Rowing Association, won the Julius H. Barnes point trophy with a total of 73½ points.

SHINNERS' HIT GIVES MAILS VICTORY; JESS HAINES BATTED FREELY

Hornsby, Back at Second Base, Bats Well — Homer for Bottomley — R. Smith, Former Infielder, Stops Local Sluggers.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Walter Mails, the Great Duster, held the Boston Braves to six hits and pitched the Cardinals to a 5-4 victory in the opening game of the double-header at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, but Jess Haines and Leo Dickerman failed miserably in the second contest, and the lowly tailenders gained an even break for the day and for the four-game series by taking the nightcap by the lopsided score of 9 to 3. The defeat prevented the Cardinals from climbing into the first division.

The second game was as poor an exhibition and as uninteresting as the first was thrilling. In the opener the score was close all the way and victory did not come until the ninth inning when the men of Hornsby jumped on the clever John Cooney and slammed his left-handed offerings for two singles and a double without a man being retired.

Lester Bell started the thrilling ninth with a single to right and the break of the game came when Gus Felix lost O'Farrell's high fly in the sun. It went for a double, putting Bell on third. Blades batted for Mails and promptly was walked, filling the bases. It was the Braves' only chance, but it did not work out as planned. Ralph Shinners picked on the first pitch and slashed a single down the third base line, scoring Bell with the winning run.

Six Safeties Off Mails.

The great Mails, though he gave only six hits, did not appear to have his usual stuff in the opening game and after the contest he said that his arm was paining him in the late innings. He gave five bases on balls and had difficulty finding the plate throughout the contest.

The Cardinals did more hitting against John Cooney in this game than they ever had done in the past against the clever little left-hander. They collected 12 safeties in all and the total included a home run and two doubles.

Bancroft's men bunched their hits in two innings getting two singles in the fifth and a double and three singles in the seventh. Their first run however, was produced without the aid of a base hit. Harris, first up in the third, walked. Gibson hit to Hornsby, who had a double play in his hands. Rogers started to tag the base himself and then changed his mind and flipped the ball to Cooney. Jim was not expecting the ball and he muffed the throw, both runners being safe. John Cooney forced Gibson at second, Harris of course, advancing on the play. Gautreau then hit to Bottomley, who threw wild to the plate permitting Harris to score.

Bottomley Hits Home Run

In the fifth inning, Harris walked with one out, stole second and scored on John Cooney's single to center. Two more were produced in the seventh. High led off with a double to right center and went to third on Harris's bunt. Mails chose to throw to third on the intended sacrifice and Harris was credited with a single, High beating the throw easily. High scored on Gibson's sacrifice fly to Shinners and on the useless throw to the plate Harris took second and scored when John Cooney singled to right.

Bottomley's home run, his 19th of the season, with Hornsby on base, gave the Cardinals two runs in the fourth inning. Two more were produced in the eighth on Shinners' single, Jim Cooney's double and Hornsby's slashing single to left. That tied the score, and set the stage for the Cards' thrilling rally in the ninth.

Haines Goes Under Fire.

Haines was his usual effective self for three innings of the second game, but he collapsed in the fourth. He started his own downfall by walking Bancroft, the first batter, after having a call of two and nothing on the Boston manager. Welsh then scratched a hit past Bottomley and both runners scored when Burrus lashed a double to right center. Felix bunted safely to Bell and two more runs dashed over the plate when High poled a double to center. Mann was called out on strikes and Gibson tapped to Haines, but High

BROWNS LOSE TO SENATORS, 5-0, AND DROP TO FIFTH PLAC

Zachary Holds Sisler's Men to Seven Swats; Gaston Routed Early

Only Two Members of St. Louis Club Reach Second — Lamotte and McManus Star in the Field.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Senators made it three out of four over the Browns, winning the final of the series today, 5 to 0. Only one Brownie reached third, while but one other, Sisler on his double in the ninth, got to second.

The Browns' pitchers were ineffective, although Vangilder and Wingard allowed but one run, wonderful fielding by Lamotte, McManus and Sisler cutting off what looked like sure hits. Gaston was hit from the start and gave way to Vangilder in the third after four runs had been scored.

Zachary, on the other hand, was unusually effective, the Browns' seven hits being well scattered.

The big parade of the Ku Klux held the attendance down to 8000.

Senators Get Early Start.

The Senators started scoring in their first round after one was down. Harris singled to right and went to second when E. Rice beat out a slow bounder to McManus. Goslin forced Rice, Harris going to third. Harris and Goslin pulled a double steal, Harris registering by a great slide under Dixon. Judge was given free passage to first and he and Goslin came home when Bluege doubled to left center.

Another tally came over in the second when Peck led off with a single and Severeid singled, Peck taking third on the hit. Zachary then worked the squeeze play, Peck scoring, while Gaston was heading off Severeid at second.

The final run for the Senators came in the seventh off Vangilder. With one down Goslin doubled to left center and stole third. Bluege's long fly to Williams allowed Goslin to tally.

Lamotte and McManus Busy.

Lamotte and McManus almost played the game by themselves. Lamotte had seven assists and three putouts, while McManus had nine putouts and two assists.

Sisler pulled a sparkling play in the sixth inning against Severeid. Zachary in trying to sacrifice, rolled toward first. Sisler came in fast, grabbed the ball and shot it to Lamotte, getting the ex-Brownie by two steps. The spectators gave Sisler a hearty round of applause for his effort.

Vangilder pulled his usual stunt of pitching well after the game had been placed on ice, retiring the Senators in order until the seventh inning.

The defeat dropped the Browns to fifth place.

The Browns depart tonight for Philadelphia, where they will rest tomorrow, pending the series with the speedy Mackmen starting Monday.

CARDINALS AND BRAVES DIVIDE DOUBLE-HEADER

pulled a delayed steal of third and when Vick threw into left field High continued home, with the fifth Boston run of the inning.

Haines departed under fire in the sixth. Felix started this attack with a double to right center and scored when High hit one to the same spot for two bases. Mann sacrificed and High scored when Gibson pasted a single to center.

Hornsby decided that it was not Haines' day and called Long Leo Dickerman from the bull-pen.

Gibson Hits Home Run.

Dickerman stopped that rally, but yielded another run in the seventh and gave way to a pinch-hitter in the Cardinals' half, Johnny Stuart taking up the burden. It was considerable burden, too, with the Braves leading, 8 to 1, and the Cardinals helpless before the curves of Bob Smith, an infielder, recently converted into a pitcher.

Gibson increased the lead by one, poling a home run into the right field seats in the eighth inning.

The Cardinals scored a run in the sixth on Hornsby's double to right center and Hafey's pop single to center.

Two more came in the ninth. Bell was safe on Bancroft's fumble. Vick fouled out, but Flack, batting for Stuart, singled to center. Jack Smith forced Flack and Toporcer's single scored Bell and Jack Smith. Hornsby walked and Bottomley ended the game by striking out.

The Phillies call here this afternoon for a four-game series. Today's game will start at 3 o'clock.

Yanks Drop Two Games to Tigers

Whitehill Victor, 9 to 3, and Holloway Follows With 3 to 2 Triumph.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Detroit took both ends of a double-bill with the Yankees today, 9 to 3 and 3 to 2, and also won the series, three games out of four. Whitehill held the Hugmen to six hits in the first game, while Holloway allowed only seven in the afterpiece.

Sam Jones was hit freely in the opener and was replaced by Jimmy Marquis, a newcomer of the New York club, after five innings. Marquis, a native of Texas, was purchased from the St. Joseph, Mo., club of the Western League recently.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Ouch! That Sore Lip.

J. O. ANDERSON, who is distinguished for his altitude and the world's greatest forehand drive, is quoted in Canada as telling the world that he fears the French Davis cup team more than the American titleholders.

This is notwithstanding the committee's announcement that Tilden, Richards, Johnston and Williams would be the defending American four.

Anderson has reason to know that three and possibly four of these players, when right, can beat him— have done so more than several times, in fact.

In answer to his appraisal of the French team, the prediction safely may be made that, if the Australians come through against France—and they should—they will be beaten by U. S. on the second day's play; they probably will not win a match of the five scheduled, unless the Americans ease up in the third day's exhibitions.

Any Two Can Beat Them.

TILDEN, Richards and Johnston hold Patterson and Anderson as safe as a time lock vault might. And Tilden and Johnston already have proved masters of the Australians in doubles—they did it last year.

Richards has beaten Anderson already in exhibitions, while Patterson never came through with a Davis cup singles match in this country against Tilden, Johnston or Richards.

If France beats Australia the struggle may be somewhat more strenuous, but none the less certain. The big three of America can take the measure of any country, shuffle these players how you will. Richards and Johnston, playing in both singles and doubles, could do it, in the opinion of this writer.

About Tilden's Case.

IF TILDEN'S right to practice the profession of journalism free from charges of violating the amateur rule depends on whether his journalism antedates his tennis fame, Tilden's case is won now.

In response to a telegram from the Post-Dispatch, the Philadelphia Public Ledger syndicate yesterday replied: "Tilden has written for newspapers since 1912, when he worked on drama and sports for the Philadelphia Evening Ledger. During 1913 he wrote for the Philadelphia Bulletin. He has been engaged in newspaper work ever since."

And that's that. Bill was a WRITER before he was a TENNIS PLAYER. For Tilden was unheard of in tennis then. It was not until he first won the clay courts tourney in 1918 that he became known at all. Prior to that time his name had never appeared among the first 20 players ranked.

In fairness to Tilden the committee ought to consider this phase of the matter and make an exception in his case. It seems to be coming to him.

What Ails Him.

A NEWS service quotes Jack Kearns as follows: "Tunney is not in Wills' class. Wills should beat Tunney with ease."

That's O K. Tunney is a very ordinary sort of champion. But what about this comment which the deposed manager of Dempsey adds: "Gene should be fighting welterweights, like Mickey Walker."

No wonder Dempsey released Kearns. Walker's class limit is 147 pounds. He can make it too. Tunney, for his fight with Tom Gibbons, weighed 181 pounds—34 pounds more than Walker.

Mickey found out what it means to concede weight to a champion when he met the 160-pound Harry Greb. Mickey was lucky to last.

He would be lucky to be alive, after a bout with Tunney, who has beaten Greb.

Food for Thought.

TEN sets of racetrack entries were on yesterday's list. For real racing meets, that would require not less than 7000 horses in actual training. It probably represents between 5000 and 6000 horses ready to race.

Are there that many? The answer is to be found in the small fields that have been observed throughout the country, much of the time, this season. Three and four horse races have been common. The betting on such events has been prohibitive, almost.

Yet they are still building race courses and running spring and fall meetings everywhere. There were 54 meets scheduled this year. What with the many county fair races throughout the country, never was the demand for race horses so great as today. With more tracks, of course, it will be worse.

No wonder there are only two 3-year-olds of class in the country today—American Flag and Silver Fox—and that no great 2-year-olds are on the horizon.

The problem of controlling the situation is one that ought to interest horsemen of vision.

The need of a national jockey club with authority to sanction meets is becoming more apparent daily. Racing allowed to run wild is a sure way to kill it.

Horsemen hold that the weak sisters will die out and the game will stabilize itself. But let them ask history what happened the last time the authority of the Western Jockey Club was broken.

Ready to Go.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK is about ready to go. It is announced now that the East Side track is completely financed, with more stock takers than there is stock to dispose of.

Everything is all set for a hurrah opening announcement except the nature of the betting, which will enable the wage-earner to take a sterner interest in the pastime than that of mere onlooker.

There is one thing about "the sport of kings," with its high-class sportsmen back of it and its bid to attain the "highest ideals of clean sport," that strikes the tympanum like a bum note in a tenor solo. It is that the sport fades away and disappears when the betting drops out of it.

The thrilling neck-and-neck struggle means nothing to 90 per cent of the followers of the game, if their money is not riding one of the contestants.

And when a promoter tells you racing is being promoted purely in interest of clean sport, he is guilty of figures of speech known as Hyperbole and Ellipsis. What he really means is he's promoting in the interest of the old bank account and clean sport—if coming.

Big Inning Wins For the Mackmen

Athletics Score 7 Runs in Third — Harris Shines in Relief Role.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—The league-leading Athletics won the last game of the series from the Cleveland Indians here today. The score was 10 to 4. Sam Gray was knocked out of the box in the third inning, after four runs had been scored.

Slim Harriss, who succeeded him, pitched shutout ball for the remainder of the game.

Benny Karr, Cleveland's first pitcher, got along all right for two innings. Then the Mackmen started a drive that put seven runs over the plate on eight hits. Speece pitched a good game after that.

Manager Speaker was hit on the right wrist by Slim Harriss and was forced to retire. A crowd of 35,000 fans were present.

McAuliffe Is U. S. Municipal Golf Champion

Defeats William Serrick of New York in Final, 6 and 5.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Raymond J. McAuliffe, a golfer from Buffalo with a punch in his drives, won the fourth amateur public links championship at the Salisbury Country Club in Garden City today by a wide margin. He clearly outplayed William F. Serrick, golfer from the Metropolitan district, to win by the score of six up and five to go.

McAuliffe constantly outdrove Serrick. He plays on courses in Buffalo that are quite devoid of bunkers and as a result has learned to light into the ball. Sometimes he was far off line, but invariably so far down toward the hole for which he was shooting that he still had a considerable advantage over Serrick.

Uses Fine Chip Shot.

McAuliffe had other advantages over Serrick. He is the possessor of a fine chip shot, which gave him many a chance for single putts on the greens, and he would get those putts. McAuliffe got all of the short ones and more than his share of long ones. Serrick, on the other hand, despite a smooth and rhythmic swing, overplayed his shots through the fairways and slipped up on his putts.

At the end of the morning round McAuliffe was five up. It was evident then that Serrick was in for a beating. He was plainly outclassed by McAuliffe, a tournament player of wide experience. McAuliffe, oe it known, was Western New York champion for two years and four times Buffalo city champion. Last year he went to the semifinals of the Canadian amateur championship.

Mandell to Box Ward on Tuesday

Intercity Bouts to Feature Amateur Show at Battery A Thursday.

Professional and amateur boxers will entertain local fans this week in outdoor shows to be held at Jefferson Barracks and the Battery arena. The professional glove wielders will perform on Tuesday night at the Barracks while the amateur stars are carded for a tournament at the Battery, Thursday night.

Sammy Mandell, Rockford lightweight star, tackles Bobby Ward of St. Paul, in the feature 10-round battle at the Barracks. The semi-windup will bring together two local lightweights, Leo Julius and Johnny Lucas, in an eight-round setto. Corporal William Rothermel, U. S. Army featherweight champion, meets Manuel Figuero, a Barracks rival, in a six-round bout. Frank Koenig and Kid Delore, light heavyweights, are billed to open the show with a four-round battle.

Four bouts between St. Louis and Chicago amateurs will feature Thursday night's program at the Battery. The star attraction of the inter-city bill will bring together Jack Horner of the South Broadway A. C., and Willis Buff of Chicago, lightweights. Buff was a member of the American Olympic team last year. He is a former district champion of the Metropolitan A. A. U.

Eddie Kane of Chicago meets Eddie Goldberg, in the featherweight special. The light heavyweight feature will bring Tom Pivac of St. Louis against Harry Roberts of the Windy City team. Tony Pirrone, a former Western A. A. U. champion, tackles Fernando Gonzales of Chicago in the flyweight special.

National Junior Net Event Brings Stars to Chicago

Six St. Louis Lads Entered; Cranston Holman, West Coast Boy, Favorite.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—With an entry list running well over the hundred mark, including young net stars from every part of the United States, the National Junior and Boys' tennis tournament will open Monday morning at the South Side Tennis Club here. The future defenders of the Davis Cup number some real outstanding stars who have already cut their way into the list of the nation's foremost players.

Chief among the entrants is Cranston Holman, whose career on the court has taken a meteoric rise this season. The San Francisco lad is easily the class of the field, although other stars are coming to dispute his right to the title, relinquished by the phenomenal George Lott, who is now past the junior age limit. Holman's latest list of conquests on the court includes victories over George Lott and John Hennessey, seventh in the national list.

For several weeks Holman has been playing on turf courts in the East and is in the best of shape for the week of play for the National junior championship.

St. Louis Lads Entered.

Middle Western lads will play a big part in the tournament. From the Missouri Valley section will come Harris Coggeshall, whose playing this season brands him as a real contender for the honors. He comes from Des Moines.

From St. Louis entries were received from a whole host of future stars. Richard Dietrich, James Marpsy, Charles Sigoloff, Clark Smith, and Joseph Smith, whose upset in the Western Junior play at Culver this week was the surprise of the tourney. William Bascom of St. Louis is entered for the boys' play.

Emmet Pare former national Clay Court Junior title holder and one of the most promising of the younger players, is the strongest local entrant.

Besides Holman the Pacific Coast is sending other coming stars, who will figure strongly in the play. Scott, the newest sensation from the West, Art McDougall and H. H. Bancroft will bear California colors.

Boston is making a strong bid for the junior doubles title. In Malcolm Hill and Henry Johnson Jr., the Hub has a pair of lads who have been playing good doubles in the big Eastern tournaments upsetting many of the ranking teams.

Alexander L. "Sandy" Weiner, Tilden's protege and doubles partner from Philadelphia, has improved to such a degree this season that he is expected to go far in the play next week. Donald Strachan is also a strong entry from Philadelphia. Last season's national boy champion, C. A. Smith of Annapolis, is now a junior.

The 11 turf courts of the South Side Tennis Club are in excellent shape for the event. The committee in charge has made elaborate plans for the entertaining of the young lads and a big week is in prospect for the host of younger tennis stars who invade Chicago for their tournament.

Century Bowlers Elect.

The officers chosen for the coming season by the Century Bowling League are H. Waltrip, president; E. Hoffman, vice president, and Charles Bieger, secretary. The league will play a 35-week season on the Congress alleys. The following teams are entered: Automatics, Fans, Polyphase, Office, Winders, Tools and Dies, Frames and Single Phase.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Aug. 8.—The New York Women's Swimming Association went far into the lead in the National A. A. U. swimming contests here today, winning firsts and seconds in the medley swim and half-mile relay.

Miss Adelaide Lambert established a record in the medley swim, placing first in 4m 28 2-5s. It was the first time this event had been run in the open. Carin Nillson of New York finished second and Susan Laird of the Carnegie Library Club was third.

The New York teams took both first and second places in the 880-yard relay run in 12m 17s. The Illinois Athletic Club, which is trailing New York for honors, finished third. All events were run off in a driving rain, which made swimming and especially record-breaking difficult.

Anna Baum of the Board of Education, Bridgeport, Conn., took first in the 110-yard breast stroke of the women's open, in the time of 1m 43 3-5s. Ruth Thomas of the Ambassador Swimming Club, Atlantic City, N. J., was second and Doris Dunham of the Detroit Yacht Club, third.

The 880-yard free style and 220-yard breast stroke and other events will be run off tomorrow.

BABE RUTH'S ALL-AMERICA CONTEST BEGINS TODAY

Post-Dispatch Readers Invited to Pick a Team To Coincide With Babe's

Bambino Himself Will Be the Judge and Announces the Conditions to Govern the Award of Prizes.

Rules for Babe Ruth All-America Team Contest for 1925

ANY reader who mails to the Post-Dispatch between Aug. 9 and Aug. 31 an All-America team of 10 players (except Babe Ruth himself) in the American or National League for the season of 1925, with a letter of not over 200 words explaining the reason for picking each player for the position he occupies is eligible to compete.

The reader whose team—two pitchers, and eight men in other positions—is the same or nearest Ruth's selections, and is accompanied by the best letter giving reasons for the selections, will be declared the winner.

The winning team must be named not alone as to players, but as to positions in conformity with Ruth's ideas.

Players MAY be placed in positions other than their regular places providing they have played in those places in at least one championship game in 1925.

Players must be selected on a basis of their playing in 1925, not on records made in previous seasons.

In case no team is exactly the same as that selected by Babe Ruth, the one nearest will be named the winner.

There will be suitable trophies, to be announced later, awarded to the winner, the runner-up and the third best selection and letter.

In addition, Babe Ruth himself offers an autographed bat and an autographed ball for the man who picks his team or the one nearest it.

CAN you name the 10 best baseball players in America, today? Out of the 400 players who make up the 16 clubs of the major leagues, can you pick eight men and two pitchers, position for position, each the greatest in his sphere?

Babe Ruth, the champion home-run hitter of all time, to see whom more fans have paid admission than to view any other player in history, will select such a team of All-Stars and readers of the Post-Dispatch are invited to see how closely they can approximate Ruth's selections, Ruth himself to act as judge. To aid Ruth in determining the best team the co-operation of 10 of the country's leading baseball writers and sports editors has been obtained.

The task is not a light one as in almost every position there are several stars to be considered and, in more than one instance, there will be found two or more players who can hardly be left off an all-American team.

Past Heroes Not Eligible.

It is especially stipulated that the contributor to the selections must pick their nominees on their performances for the current season ONLY. What players have done in the past does not matter. Only those fans who have followed the players closely all season can hope to name the team that will approximate that of Ruth and his committee.

The Post-Dispatch will offer prizes to the three contributors whose choices most nearly approximate that of Babe Ruth, in the order of their merit. However, only such selections as are accompanied by a letter of 200 words, or fewer, explaining the reason for selecting each player, will be given attention.

Ruth Bars Himself.

In agreeing to act as contest judge Babe Ruth makes only one stipulation of contributors; it is that his name be omitted. Selections containing his name will therefore not be considered.

Where the number of truly great candidates for one position baffles the student, it has been provided that a player may be chosen out of the position generally considered his regular berth, provided he has filled the secondary position in at least one full game during the season.

Thus at second base the job of choosing between Hornsby, Eddie Collins, the great Kelly and Frankie Frisch at second base would be appalling. All of them have claims to all-America consideration. And it would be quite possible to keep all of them in the lineup of the all-America, if Hornsby or Collins plays one game at short during the season. Kelly would then be eligible at first, Frisch at third and Hornsby or Collins at either second or shortstop.

This is merely by way of illustration.

For the benefit of the readers of the Post-Dispatch who may attempt to gain the prizes, Ruth has announced that he will make his choice of players with an eye to producing the best allround team, the best offensive and defensive unit that can be placed in the field from all of the star material that the two big leagues afford. It behooves the contestants who attempt to match their skill against Ruth to follow this idea and keep in mind what it means.

Batting Not Everything.

The first thought of most fans would be to select the eight players who lead in hitting in their positions and then select the two pitchers who have won the most games or have the best pitching "won and lost" percentage on the season's play so far.

Such a course may lead the contestant far astray. Not alone will hitting be considered, but defensive work in each position as well. For instance, in choosing a prominent infielder in his last year's team, Ruth took a man who was batting only .278, and sidetracked three other infielders in that position who had batted well over .300. The .278 man was no slugger—but what a fielder he was! And further, he had delivered with his comparatively small hitting average scores of timely blows that broke up ball games.

Everything must be considered in making up the real championship array, and that is why the fans who attempt to match the experience of Ruth must use their wits. No haphazard guessing will accomplish anything.

Remember, the contest begins today and closes on Aug. 31. It seems like a long time to make up your estimate, but it isn't. Recall the rule that only the work of 1925 will be considered. Don't forget that there must be an explanation in 200 words of the choice of players and positions with each list submitted. The announcement of Ruth's team and the prize winners will be made as soon after the close of the contest as possible.

Fancy Diving Art Coming Back In St. Louis, Says Goessling, Judge at 1908 Olympic Games

More Performers of Championship Caliber Developed Here Than in Any of Last Ten Years — Welda Meyer Is Champion—More Versatility Is Recommended.

By Dent McSkimming.

"The reawakened interest in swimming and diving which has been evident in and around St. Louis for the past two or three years is especially gratifying to members of the school of 15 years ago, who have seen our favorite sport roll over and expire for the want of new blood and competition."

August Goessling, former national backstroke champion and one of the greatest swimmers ever developed in St. Louis, made the above comment as he watched the competitors perform in the recent Western A. A. U. championship meet at Forest Park Highlands pool.

"The divers, especially, are showing promise. There are more good young divers of local championship caliber than we have had in over 10 years," he added. Goessling, a noted expert on fancy diving, was a judge in this event.

So close was the competition in the fancy diving at the district meet that only ¾ of a point separated the men finishing second, third and fourth.

Welda Meyer Champion.

Welda Meyer, 20-year-old protege of Coach Charles E. Gray of the Highlands team, captured the championship, dethroning Tommy Callahan, whose illnes made it impossible for him to give his best performance.

Meyer has great possibilities as a fancy diver. He has been training under Gray only three years and his improvement has been remarkable. He has nerve and a lithe body. His only serious shortcoming now is that his repertoire of dives is not sufficiently varied. He will also take some polishing in the matter of body control in the air.

"We have had no really great divers in St. Louis since Henry Grote's day, back in 1908," Goessling continued. "Grote was a member of the United States Olympic team at London. That was an era of good divers in this part of the country, with Frank Bornaman and George Gaidzik of the Chicago A. C. leading all competitors.

Fine Points of Diving.

"What is principally lacking in our young divers today is variety in their collection of special dives and regard for the poise and grace of body which we term style. There is a tendency to approach the board in a listless manner, sometimes with head down. Control of the body in the air is not what it should be among those who are competing for championship honors here now.

"However, there is a great improvement and I believe the will come right along, especially if they are provided with keen competition and certainly if they have an opportunity to compete with divers from other cities.

"The divers, and the public, should bear in mind that when judges officate at a diving competition, they start to judge a competitor the moment he steps upon the board. His carriage, position of head, precision, control of body in air and entry of body into the water are all judged and it is therefore highly essential that the diver pay attention to every detail."

Judge at Olympic Games.

Goessling is qualified to discuss the merits and the faults of divers, for he has officated innumerable times as a judge in National A. A. U. meets and he was a judge of diving at the Olympic games at London in 1908.

In every diving competition there are four compulsory dives; the plain front, the plain back, the front jack knife and the back jack knife; and these are followed by five "specialties" by each competitor. Goessling points out that when it comes to the specialties, St. Louis divers show an incilnation toward sameness.

In national championship meets these specialties provide the opportunity for the stars to show their initiative and particular capabilities.

Among the best of the local talent, beside Meyer and Callahan there are Dock Rawdon of the Coliseum Pool, Ray Woods, Bernie Arterbury and Ad Furman of Forest Park Highlands Pool.

Red Sox Take Two From Chicago

Boston Wins First in 10th and Wingfield Scores 3—0 Shutout in Second.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Boston's cellar Red Sox took both games from the White Sox today, grabbing the first in 10 innings, 4 to 3, and then taking the second, 3 to 0.

The winning run in the opener came when Relief Pitcher Connally, with two on and two out in the tenth, walked Prothro and then passed pinch-hitter Carlyle forcing in the winning run.

Scratch singles by Bischoff and Williams in the third inning of the final, Flagstead's double and Boone's single let Boston have three runs off Robertson, enough to win behind Wingfield's good pitching.

GOLF

The Women's Tournament.

WOMEN golfers who want to enter the Twenty-ninth National championship of the United States Golf Association, to be held at the St. Louis Country Club, Sept. 29 to Oct. 3, will have to look after certain details by Sept. 10.

There is list of women golfers whose past performances in qualifying for tournaments make them eligible for the National. In addition to those thus qualified, entries will be received only from women players handicapped from scratch to eight. Any player whose name does not appear on the present women's sectional handicap lists and who desires to compete at the Country Club must submit to Mrs. John W. Douglass, Barrington, Ill., five best scores made during the present season over the player's home course. The scores must be duly certified by the president or secretary of the club, with a statement of par for the course. The scores must be submitted by Sept. 10 and each player will be notified of acceptance or rejection of entry at least a week prior to the tournament.

18 Hole Medal Round.

THE tournament will start with an 18-hole qualifying round Monday, Sept. 28, with 32 players entering match play, which starts Tuesday, Sept. 29. Matches wil be at 18 holes until the final, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 3, which will be at 36 holes.

First National Gamble.

PLAY in the men's National championship, which will be held at Oakmont, Pa., Aug. 31 to Sept. 5, will be watched with interest this year. In fact, there will be more watchers than usual, as only 16 players will qualify for match play, and that restriction will prevent many a youngster from considering the expenses of a trip to the championship. There have been many arguments for and against the change. The field in the past always has been cumbersome, and each year the congestion has been greater. The new tournament plan of limiting match play to a field of 16 certainly will cut down the field, but it is a question if it will be for the best interests of the game. Young players need tournament experience to develop their best golf, and failure to qualify is not good experience. Many a good golfer will be on the sidelines when match play starts at Oakmont Wednesday, Sept. 2. If there are enough stars left out, the protests against the 16-field plan probably will result in a decision to go back to 32 in 1926.

How to Qualify.

JIMMY MANION of Riverview, Eddie Held of Algonquin and Clarence Wolff of Sunset, three St. Louisans who won titles this year, will compete at Oakmont. Lawson Watts also is eligible and may decide to go. There are others who contemplate entering, but there was no warning sounded and the entries closed Aug. 1.

Entries were received from all players who qualified for match play rounds in any of the last three national amateur tournaments. Other amateurs, belonging to clubs affiliated with the U. S. G. A., could submit their entries, if their handicap rating was three or less, based on the Calkins handicap system. The Eligibility List Committee investigated the ability of each applicant, and passed on each individually.

Harris Advances To Third Round In County Event

Defeats Finger in Three Sets—Metcalf and Stuckman Are Winners.

By Davison Obear.

Twenty matches were decided yesterday in the twelfth annual tennis tournament for the St. Louis County championship on the courts of the Kirkwood Country Club. All matches were in the men's singles event. The men's doubles start next Saturday.

There were no upsets, although several matches were very close. Only three required the limit of three sets.

In one of the features Robert Metcalf, former holder of the title, defeated Clifford Beutel, the Washington University star, 6—3, 7—5.

Forest Stuckman, the University City star, advanced by winning from Hunt Albert of Triple A, 6—3, 6—4.

George Harris, another University City player, reached the third round by defeating George Finger, the Richmond Heights entrant, in a three-set match, 7—5, 1—6, 6—3.

Carl Harford, the Amherst College player, defeated E. J. Stark of Maplewood in another three-set encounter.

The schedule for today should produce several very hard-fought matches. Walter Finger will oppose Harold Hess; Andrew B. Lynn plays Proctor Wright, while Douglas Crockwell opposes Edward Zingsheim.

NOCTURNAL VICTOR IN QUEEN CITY CLUB STAKES

Display Is Defeated by Six Lengths

Winner Looks Like First Class Juvenile, in Winning Coney Island Stake.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 8.—Nocturnal, the sensational sprinter from the stable of Hawkins & Ferguson, showed all the qualities of a first-class juvenile today when, before some 10,000 racing enthusiasts at Coney Island track he defeated a field of six 2-year-olds in the Queen City Club Stakes by six open lengths. Second to the winner finished Display, from the W. J. Salmon stable, while Alleghan took third money and Grand Dad saved his stake.

With his victory in this event, which was worth $5100 to the winning owner, Nocturnal established himself as one of the best 2-year-olds racing in the West. Over a track deep in mud the black colt sprinted the 5½ furlongs in 1:08 2-5 and was running easily at the finish. Fractional time was quarter, :23 2-5; half, :48 3-5, five-eighth, 1:01 2-5.

Display delayed the start more than 15 minutes. The colt was taken from the far outside and placed on the rail. When the barrier was released all but Chicago got away with a burst of speed. Nocturnal was not long getting to the front and immediately went into a two length's lead. Then his rider set him down to an easy rating, waiting for the others to come to him. Display came fast on the turn and when Meyer saw that his lead was threatened he let out Nocturnal, who responded gamely and went away again, only to be pulled in as he passed over the line an easy winner. Display held his advantage, although tiring badly, but was able to save the place by six lengths over Alleghan, which took the show end of the purse, defeating Grand Dad by five lengths.

Take a Chance had no excuse and was labeled "no horse," after his dismal showing. The victory was one for the West over the East, as Display's owner, Salmon, is from the Atlantic Seaboard.

Silver Fox May Meet American Flag Next Saturday at Saratoga

SARATOGA, Aug. 8.—Not discouraged by the defeat of his great gray horse Silver Fox by Peanuts yesterday, Trainer Sam Hildreth expects to send his charge after the Travers Stakes, at one and one-fourth miles, next Saturday. Today's defeat is explained on the score of high weight, the Rancocas star trying to concede 18 pounds to the winner Peanuts.

If Silver Fox starts next Saturday he will meet American Flag, son of Man o' War, rated the best 3-year-old of the year, in a test to decide which is the better. American Flag was eligible to today's race but failed to enter because of the 134 pounds weight assigned. Silver Fox carried 128.

Silver Fox has won two Derbies, the Empire and the Cincinnati, and other stakes. The $50,000 Belmont, the Withers and other rich events have gone to American Flag.

In previous meetings with Silver Fox before the latter attained his peak, American Flag was victor.

Juniata League to Meet.

A reorganization meeting of the Juniata Bowling League will be held in the rathskeller of the Tower Grove Turnverein, Grand and Juniata, Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Captains of teams wishing to enter the league should attend.

They May Meet for U. S. Title, Saturday

SILVER FOX.

Winner of two derbies, considered the second best three-year-old of the season. His defeat yesterday was due to 18 pounds of extra weight.

AMERICAN FLAG.

Winner of the Belmont and other rich stakes, rated the best of the year's three-year-olds.

DESCRIPTION—Haste forced a fast pace throughout and disposed of Flight of Time after entering the stretch. He opened up a winning lead, but weakened and was ridden out at the end. Pompey saved ground all the way, closing courageously when called on and was steadily wearing the winner down. Flight of Time weakened in the stretch.

Winter Choice to Retain National Bicycle Title

Six Districts Submit Entries for Meet to Be Held Here Sept. 5 and 6.

Charles Winter of New York, national bicycle champion, has submitted his entry for the senior events of the National Championship races which will be held in Forest Park Sept. 5 and 6. Winter is expected to retain his title but John Boulicault of St. Louis, who last week easily won the Missouri State senior title, will be a formidable opponent.

Boulicault was a member of the U. S. Olympic team of last year and his work of late has shown consistent improvement.

Winter won his title at Buffalo last year.

Thirty districts remain to be heard from. Only six have submitted lists. Those already entered are:

SENIORS: Rudolph Guteiko—Maryland Bicycle Club—Baltimore, Md., Charles Winter — Century Road Club of America—New York City, Charles Roth—unattached—Dayton, O., Henry Bruhn—Century Road Club of America—Philadelphia, Pa., Hiram Everts —unattached — Milwaukee, Wis., John Boulicault—St. Louis Cycling Club —St. Louis, Mo.

JUNIORS: A. Wilkins—Maryland Cycle Club—Baltimore, Md., Walter Brenan—Century Road Club of America—New York City, Herman Hadley — Summit Wheelman — Bellefontaine, O., Frank Drorski—Kenosha Field Club — Kenosha, Wis., Olin Bechtel—Century Cycling Club—St. Louis, Mo.

AMERICAN PAYS 150,000 FRANCS FOR COLT AT FRENCH SALE

By the Associated Press.

DEAUVILLE, France, Aug. 8.—Ralph Beaver of Strassburger of Gwynedd Valley, La., in paying 150,000 francs for a strapping chestnut colt at the opening sales of yearlings here today, the highest price of the day, had the distinction of opening what promises to be a season of the most spectacular prices ever paid in France for year-old horse flesh.

Americans were on both ends of this deal, since the yearling Mr. Strassburger purchased came from A. K. Macomber's breeding farm, which formerly belonged to the late William K. Vanderbilt at Poissy.

Can Play Outfield Or Infield

Giants' Star Started as Pitcher—Converted First Baseman Now Making Fielding Record at Second.

By J. Roy Stockton.

THAT National League player trophy contest would be all over now if a man's value to his team were measured by his ability to serve in the greatest number of positions. If versatility were the main issue there would not be any question of who deserved the $1000 prize and the attendant glory.

For there is a man in the National League who can fill a gap in the outfield and perform with the Speakers and Cobbs.

He can shift to the infield and play anywhere in the inner line of defense from third base to first. He can handle ground balls with the deftness of a Gerber or a Scott and he is a sure catch of thrown balls, high, low or to either side. He has one of the greatest if not the greatest arm in baseball.

He has played every position except catch for his team and he even has pitched an occasional game, though now he is so valuable that he is kept in the game, infield or outfield, as a brilliant star, a daily asset, whereas were he used as a pitcher he would be able to serve only once every four or five days.

"High Pockets" Kelly.

WHO is this player? Why, don't you know? Haven't you guessed? George "High Pockets" Kelly, the lanky Giant first baseman, who since being converted into the team's regular second sacker, is well on his way toward a new fielding record at that position.

Johnny Rawlings of the New York Giants holds the league record for the best fielding mark during a season. In 1922 he handled 166 putouts and 252 assists, making seven errors for an average of .984. Kelly has handled 187 putouts and 278 assists this season, including games of Tuesday, and he has made only six errors. His average today is .987, three points better than Rawlings' mark and only five points below the mark of Nap Lajoie, the old Cleveland second-sacker, who in 1908 established the major league record of .991. At that Kelly's record is more impressive, as Lajoie played in only 59 games that year and made only 148 putouts and 177 assists. He had three errors.

If Kelly continues as the Giants' regular second-sacker he will play in many more than 57 games, and his record, because of the greater number of games, undoubtedly will replace Lajoie's record as the recognized standard.

Joined Giants in 1915.

KELLY went to the Giants in 1915 from the Pacific Northwest league. He was a pitcher and first baseman. He was awkward and there were critics who said he'd never make good. Even today he is not a paragon of grace or rythm, but he is generally recognized as one of the best first sackers in the game.

Kelly pitched a few games when he first joined the Giants, but McGraw thought would develop into a star first sacker and preferred a star infielder to what he considered only a fair pitcher.

In 1917, Kelly went to the International League for experience and again in 1919 the Giants sent him out. He returned in 1919 and has been a regular ever since. He has been a strong factor in the success of the Giants, and has played a prominent part in their four successive pennant conquests and in their world series successes.

Kelly knocked in the run that clinched the pennant for the Giants in 1922. In 1921, it was his hit that won the final game of the world series from the Yankees and his great throwing arm gave that final game one of the most spectacular finishes that has ever called down the curtain on a diamond classic.

The Giants were leading by the scant margin of 1 to 0 and the Yankees were rallying in the last inning of that game. A runner was on first when the batter hit a tremendous smash toward right field. Johnnie Rawlings raced over and made a remarkable stop and his throw to Kelly retired the batter by a step. Kelly was drawn out of position to take Rawlings' hurried throw and the runner, who had been on first base, rounded second and was nearly at third when Kelly regained his poise. Like a rifle bullet the ball sped from his arm to third base. Frisch stopped the terrific throw, fell down with the ball to meet the oncoming runner and the world series was over and the Giants were world champions.

It was one of the greatest double plays, one of the greatest throws ever seen and coming as the finishing stroke in the world series, it was dramatic indeed. The stands sat in shocked silence for a moment and then there was a cheer for Kelly.

20 Women in Meramec River Swim Today

Grace Stewart and Arvilla Ressler Start From Scratch in 4th Annual Event.

Twenty women swimmers will compete this afternoon in the fourth annual one-mile handicap Meramec River swim under the auspices of the St. Louis A. C. The race will start at 4:30 o'clock at Spring View Club and the finish will be at Kieffer's Beach at Meramec Highlands. The swimmers have been instructed to report at the starting point not later than 3:30 o'clock.

Grace Stewart and Arvilla Ressler will start from scratch while the handicaps of other contestants range from one minute to eight minutes.

Miss Ressler won the time prize in the event in 1923, requiring 20 minutes and 35 seconds to complete the course. Grace Stewart was second, five seconds behind Miss Ressler.

In 1924 Miss Stewart won the time prize with 18 minutes, 3 seconds and Miss Ressler was second with 18 minutes 24 seconds.

The list of contestants in this afternoon's race follows:

TAKE YOUR KELLY OFF TO KELLY: He Tops Them All in Versatility

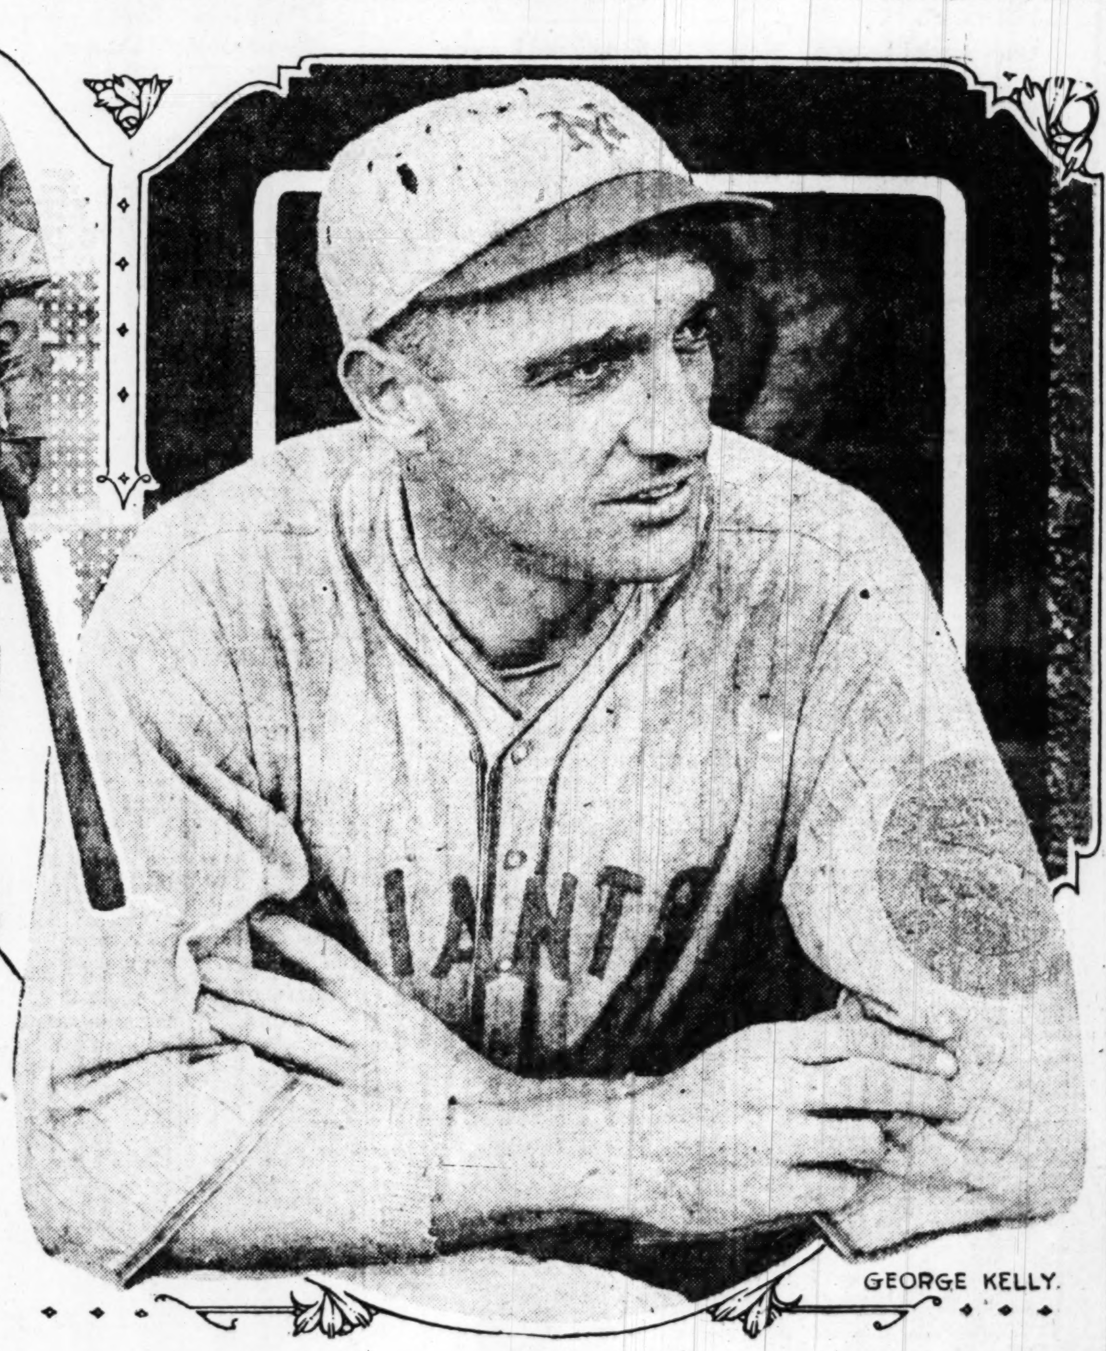
Rivals for All-Round Honors in Baseball

FRANK FRISCH..



GEORGE KELLY.

Can Play Outfield Or Infield

Giants' Star Started as Pitcher—Converted First Baseman Now Making Fielding Record at Second.

By J. Roy Stockton.

THAT National League player trophy contest would be all over now if a man's value to his team were measured by his ability to serve in the greatest number of positions. If versatility were the main issue there would not be any question of who deserved the $1000 prize and the attendant glory.

For there is a man in the National League who can fill a gap in the outfield and perform with the Speakers and Cobbs.

He can shift to the infield and play anywhere in the inner line of defense from third base to first. He can handle ground balls with the deftness of a Gerber or a Scott and he is a sure catch of thrown balls, high, low or to either side. He has one of the greatest if not the greatest arm in baseball.

He has played every position except catch for his team and he even has pitched an occasional game, though now he is so valuable that he is kept in the game, infield or outfield, as a brilliant star, a daily asset, whereas were he used as a pitcher he would be able to serve only once every four or five days.

"High Pockets" Kelly.

WHO is this player? Why, don't you know? Haven't you guessed? George "High Pockets" Kelly, the lanky Giant first baseman, who since being converted into the team's regular second sacker, is well on his way toward a new fielding record at that position.

Johnny Rawlings of the New York Giants holds the league record for the best fielding mark during a season. In 1922 he handled 166 putouts and 252 assists, making seven errors for an average of .984. Kelly has handled 187 putouts and 278 assists this season, including games of Tuesday, and he has made only six errors. His average today is .987, three points better than Rawlings' mark and only five points below the mark of Nap Lajoie, the old Cleveland second-sacker, who in 1905 established the major league record of .991. At that Kelly's record is more impressive, as Lajoie played in only 59 games that year and made only 148 putouts and 177 assists. He had three errors.

If Kelly continues as the Giants' regular second-sacker he will play in many more than 57 games, and his record, because of the greater number of games, undoubtedly will replace Lajoie's record as the recognized standard.

Joined Giants in 1915.

KELLY went to the Giants in 1915 from the Pacific Northwest league. He was a pitcher and first baseman. He was awkward and there were critics who said he'd never make good. Even today he is not a paragon of grace or rythm, but he is generally recognized as one of the best first sackers in the game.

Kelly pitched a few games when he first joined the Giants, but McGraw thought would develop into a star first sacker and preferred a star infielder to what he considered only a fair pitcher.

In 1917, Kelly went to the International League for experience and again in 1919 the Giants sent him out. He returned in 1919 and has been a regular ever since. He has been a strong factor in the success of the Giants, and has played a prominent part in their four successive penannt conquests and in their world series successes.

Kelly knocked in the run that clinched the pennant for the Giants in 1922. In 1921, it was his hit that won the final game of the world series from the Yankees and his great throwing arm gave that final game one of the most spectacular finishes that has ever called down the curtain on a diamond classic.

The Giants were leading by the scant margin of 1 to 0 and the Yankees were rallying in the last inning of that game. A runner was on first when the batter hit a tremendous smash toward right field. Johnnie Rawlings raced over and made a remarkable stop and his throw to Kelly retired the batter by a step. Kelly was drawn out of position to take Rawlings' hurried throw and the runner, who had been on first base, rounded second and was nearly at third when Kelly regained his poise. Like a rifle bullet the ball sped from his arm to third base. Frisch stopped the terrific throw, fell down with the ball to meet the oncoming runned and the world series was over and the Giants were world champions.

It was one of the greatest double plays, one of the greatest throws ever seen and coming as the finishing stroke in the world series, it was dramatic indeed. The stands sat in shocked silence for a moment and then there was a cheer for Kelly.

Likes to Play First Base.

"I'VE played about every position on the team," Kelly said when asked about his versatility record during the Giants' series here recently. "But I prefer first base. I've played the outfield, second and first in world series games, but I feel more at home at first. When I was shifted to second I had to learn the game all over. I had to discard my first baseman's mitt for an ordinary glove. That was a big change. In the outfield it is not such a great change, as most chances are in the air, but the balls hit to second come at a different angle from those hit down the first-base line."

Kelly was mildly interested when informed that he was setting a new world's fielding record for second base, but that failed to move him from his stand that first base was his first love and that he would never have a preference for any other position.

Kelly's first base percentage ranks with the best ever made. During his career as a first sacker with the Giants he has handled 836 putouts, 727 assists and has made only 71 errors, for a grand fielding average of .992.

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, paid a compliment to Kelly for his versatility.

"He can play any position on my team, and play it well," said the Giant manager. "And he always is willing to make any shift. He always has the interest of the team at heart, and is never looking for a soft spot, either in the field or at bat. He has done some great work for me, and has been a great factor in the success of the Giants.

"He clinched the game that gave us one pennant, drove in the winning run in the last game of a world series and turned a play that stopped a Yankee rally in the same final game. I wish I had more Kellys."

Noted for His Arm.

THE Giants' versatile star is six feet three and a half inches tall, and bats and throws right-handed. As previously stated, his arm is one of the strongest in baseball. Occasionally he goes to the pitching mound and throws to the Giants in batting practice. The players do not enjoy the practice much. He throws the ball past them. His control is good, and he whips the ball into the catcher's glove with a speed that rivals the smoke of Walter Johnson when the Fire Ball King was in his prime. The players go to the plate reluctantly, and soon there is a yell to get a pitcher in there that they can hit. They haven't much chance with Kelly.

"If he had a good curve he'd be a great pitcher today," McGraw said. "That's one reason we decided he was a better prospect as an infielder. He always had great control and speed. That control is a great asset in plays where he has to throw to other bases. Also, he is a valuable man at taking a relay from the outfield and cutting off men at the plate. There is no better arm in baseball for this job."

Kelly will have to handle many chances before he raises his mark to the .991 mark of the 1905 Lajoie. Four or five chances make no impression on a fielding record where hundreds of chances are involved. But his errors are few and far between, and men who have been following the Giants closely expect the lanky converted first sacker to set a new record for all time before the pennant race is over, if McGraw keeps him at second base.

Kelly's Only Rival For Versatility Honors Is Frankie Frisch

GEORGE KELLY'S only rival for the honor of being the most versatile ball player in the major leagues, also is a member of the Giants. He is Frankie Frisch, the Fordham Flash, who has played second, short and third base for the Giants in world series games. When the Cardinals were in New York recently, Frisch appeared at three infield positions in as many days.

When the Giants came here for their last series, Frisch played short for three games and then after Lindstrom had performed poorly in the third game, Frisch was shifted to third base.

Frisch, however, is not as versatile as Kelly. He has not played first base, nor has he played the outfield for McGraw and he could not pitch. Together, however, Frisch and Kelly form the most versatile pair in baseball. McGraw could use any kind of a star infielder, no matter what his specialty, because Frisch and Kelly can shift anywhere to make room for new comers. They form a great nucleus for an infield.

Norton, Brown To Take Part in National Meets

Will Team in Doubles at Boston and Play in Forest Hills Singles.

Brian I. C. Norton and Wray D. Brown, local players who recently won the Missouri Valley tennis championship at Des Moines, will participate in the National singles and doubles championships on Eastern courts this month and next. The National doubles opens in Boston on Aug. 24 while the singles play starts Sept. 14 at Forest Hills, N. Y.

Owing to their splendid showing in tournament play this season local tennis officials are raising a general fund to defray the expenses of the two players to the national events. Approximately $500 is needed and any tennis enthusiast in this district is invited to contribute to the fund. Contributions may be sent to R. M. Hoerr, Treasurer, 705 Olive St.

Norton has won the Texas State, Missouri State and Missouri Valley singles titles this season. He won the Missouri State doubles, paired with Joseph Werner, another St. Louis player. Brown reached the singles semifinals in both the National Clay Court and the Illinois State events and was runner-up to Norton in the Missouri Valley championship singles. Brown has lost only three matches this year. In addition to his defeat by Norton in the Missouri Valley tournament Brown was beaten by William T. Tilden in the Clay Court and by William M. Johnston in the Illinois State event. In singles play Brown has defeated George Lott Jr., Harvey Snodgrass and Wallace Johnson, all first 10 ranking players and has also won from Alfred Chapin Jr. and Walter Wesbrook, ranked No. 18 and 19 last year.

58 Men to Start Practice.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 8.—Fifty-eight men have been called for football practice Sept. 15 at the University of Michigan, it was announced at the athletic office here today. Of the regulars of last year, Capt. Bob Brown at Center, Harry Hawkins at guard, R. G. Babcock and Tom Edwards at tackle, William Flora and Charles Grube at ends, and Ben Friedman at halfback are listed to return.

Ainsmith to Tour Orient.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Eddie Ainsmith, Minneapolis catcher, is said to be working out plans for taking a girls' baseball team to the Orient the coming winter. He is now recruiting his team, which will play against school and college girl outfits.

American Soccer Club Owners Grabbing Star British Players

Inducements Offered by Boston, Fall River and New Beford Clubs Sufficient to Get First-Class Men.

The raids of American soccer club owners on the English, Irish and Scottish league clubs grows apace.

Such deep inroads have been made in first division clubs of Britain by Fall River, Bethlehem, Providence and Boston clubs of the American Soccer League that there is a movement on foot in British soccer circles to force the United States Football Association into an agreement for the mutual protection of owers and reciprocal observation of contract obligations.

The inducements offered by Sam Mark, owner of the Fall River (Mass.) club, and G. A. G. Wood of the Boston team and other United States clubs are best illustrated by the statement of Player Charlie Shaw, who was signed by the New Bedford club and later authorized by his club to recruit several first division players from the Scottish League.

Shaw is quoted in a leading Scottish journal as follows:

"Of course, I'm sorry in a way to leave the old country. But I'm an optimist—always was—and I feel certain there's a good time waiting me in America. My guarantees are all right—the minimum I shall earn is double what I had last season from Celtic, and the maximum is double the highest salary I have ever earned in any one year.

"Charlie in Clover.'

"Then the prospects! If what I have been told is true—and I have no reason to doubt my informant—I'll be in clover within a year or two.

"I'll be wanting some players soon for my new club. I've fixed with Cowan, of Clyde and Dunfermline, and with one or two promising youngsters from Ireland.

"Oh, yes, I'll need more. Who they are I cannot disclose meantime. I've got to keep something up my sleeve, you know."

Sam Mark, owner of the Fall River club, winners of the American Soccer League championship, made a personal trip to England and Scotland for the express purpose of signing new talent. A Scottish sports writer comments as follows on Mark's "hustling" tactics:

SAM MARK, owner and manager of Fall River Football Club, U. S. A., is some hustler. On Tuesday last he was in Kirkcaldy, interviewing a Scotsman who has been in America, and who is a cousin of an ex-Raith Rovers half-back.

His business finished he darted to Glasgow. There he met his agent, a lad who had fixed up Hugh Coyle (Motherwell), Tec White (Motherwell), Charlie McGill (Third Lanark), and Martin (Motherwell) for the Fall River club.

To the agent Sam Mark said, "When do they sail?"

"Fourth July," was the reply.

"No use," snapped Sam. "They sail on Thursday with me on the Letitia."

"Thursday! Why, that gives us only two days to get hold of them, to get passports, and to book passages. It can't be done!"

"Can't! There isn't such a word in my vocabulary. Hustle, kid!"

So Sam and the agent got a move on. They met the players and gave them instructions. On Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock I saw the American complete the final arrangements, and at 5 saw the players off to the liner.

From the Fall River man I learned something about the business. Sam Mark said.

$250 for Signing.

The terms, I was told, are very good—the best that any player in the U. S. A. can command. Each got £50 as a signing-on fee. Transportation—second cabin—paid by Sam Mark. £7 a week close season wages is guaranteed. On and after September 1, when the season opens, £13 is the guaranteed figure.

At the end of a year the players is paid by Sam Mark. £7 a week ers will be at liberty to return on holiday. Fare home and back to U. S. A. will be paid, and close season wages will again be given.

More than that, Sam Mark has said to the four who accompanied him, "If you get tired of it, next month or six months after, or at any time at all, you've only to say so, and I'll give you cash on the spot to pay your way home to Scotland.

"Mind you," said the American to me, "I can take more players, and my agent here has a number of names jotted down. In particular, I want a first-class inside forward. He'll be fixed before August, I expect."

Following is still another excerpt from the sports page of a Scotch newspaper:

Fall River, of course, have paid no transfer fees to Motherwell or Third Lanark. Sam Mark points out that there is no need, nor will there be for a long time. When the American clubs have got all they can get from this side, when they have nothing more to learn from us, they may consider an agreement with our football associations.

Meantime there's nothing doing. And the big wages offered by the Americans will attract more and more players each year.

Alec McNab, Johnny Ballantyne, Tommy McMillan and Jock McIntyre of the Boston club are all home on holiday—fares paid, and close season wages in advance. In August they will return, and will have one or two recruits with them.

I shall not be surprised if Ballantyne takes one of his two clever brothers, who last season were with the junior club, Ashfield.

St. Louis Stars Show Gains in Swatting Races

Sisler Adds Seven Points, While Bottomley Jumps to Second Place.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Four veterans and a youngster from the Western end of the American League circuit are topping the sluggers this week, it is shown in averages released today, and which include Wednesday's games.

The quintet is composed of Tris Speaker, gray-thatched leader of the Cleveland Indians, who heads the procession with .394; Harry Rice, young player of the St. Louis Browns, with .391; Harry Heilmann, star outfielder of the Tigers, with .382, and Ty Cobb and George Sisler, with .378 each. Al Simmons of the Athletics is the closest Eastern contender, being sixth with .371.

Sisler fared better than the other leaders, making a gain of seven points over his mark of last week, while Speaker dropped 11 points. Rice, Cobb and Heilmann lost four points each.

Ken Williams of the Browns still leads with 24 home runs. Bob Meusel of the Yankees cracked out one and is trailing Williams with 22.

Johnny Mostil of the White Sox remains at the top in base stealing with 34 thefts and has increased his lead as a run-getter with 93 registrations.

Other leading batters: Lamar, Philadelphia, .368; Barrett, Chicago, .368; Wingo, Detroit, .361; Hale, Philadelphia, .360; E. Rice, Washington, .358; Collins, Chicago, .357; J. Sewell, Cleveland, .355; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .355.

Bottomley Now Second.

Getting nine hits in his last seven games, Jimmy Bottomley of the Cardinals moved from third place among the National League batters to the position of runner-up to his boss, Rogers Hornsby. Hornsby, despite a slump of 4 points, is topping the list by 12 points with an average of .394.

Bottomley, in addition to boosting his mark to .382, broke away from Hornsby for the total base leadership with 256. Two of Jimmy's blows were circuit drives, while two others were good for three bags each. Hornsby added a circuit blow and leads all circuit-drive hitters with 27.

Max Carey, speedy Pirate fly-chaser, cut loose on the paths and by swiping three bases, ran his total to 25.

J. Wilson, catcher of the Phillies, who a week ago was challenging Hornsby among the batters, dropped from second place to fifth. Jack Fournier and Milton Stock, two Dodgers, who also were knocking at the door of the leader, took a tumble down-grade, Fournier dropping 10 points and Stock 8.

Other leading batters: Stock, Brooklyn, .374; Fournier, Brooklyn, .368; J. Wilson, Philadelphia, .364; Burrus, Boston, .358; Harper, Philadelphia, .356; Wrightstone, Philadelphia, .354; Terry, New York, .362; Blades, St. Louis, .351; Barnhart, Pittsburg, .349; Bressley, Cincinnati, .347; Wheat, Brooklyn, .344; Bancroft, Boston, .341; Mueller, St. Louis, .341.

MISS COLLETT AND JESS SWEETSER WIN

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 8.—Miss Glenna Collett, French and Canadian women's champion, and Jess Sweetser, national amateur champion in 1923, defeated Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, women's national champion in 1915, and Richard Jones, 3 and 2, in the preliminary round for the Country Club of Fairfield Gold Balls on the Sasco Hill course today.

Miss Bernice Wall, Wisconsin women's champion, and D. Clark Corkran of Philadelphia won from Mrs. Dorothy Camubell Hurd, national women's champion, and Francis Quimet, national amateur champion in 1914, in the other match.

The winners will meet tomorrow afternoon in a final match of 36 holes.

Bowling League Organizes.

A reorganization meeting of the Independent Sunday School Bowling League will be held at the Rogers alleys Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Churches desiring representation in the league may enter by attending the meeting or by calling E. C. Wenneker at Forest 4772 after 7 p. m. The meeting will be held on the second floor.

Harry Wills-Gene Tunney Bout Sought by Polo Grounds A. C.

Charles Stoneham of the Giants and Jewish Hospital Fund Said to Be Rival Bidders for Big Event — Negro's Manager Cables Offer to Europe.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Rumors of arrangements for a bout between Gene Tunney, light-heavyweight champion, and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight contender, permeated the offices of the Boxing Commission in the Flatiron Building today, when the commission granted permission to the Polo Grounds Athletic Club for the holding of bouts for the benefit of the Jewish Maternity Hospital on the lower East Side.

The reports could not be confirmed at the Boxing Commission, but they persisted, nevertheless, to the point of including Charles A. Stoneham, owner of the Giants and backer of the Polo Grounds A. C., as the promoter of the Tunney-Wills bout.

It was also said that Stoneham was endeavoring to arrange the Tunney-Wills affair as the main attraction of the Jewish Maternity Hospital card.

This was also denied officially at the Polo Grounds A. C. headquarters, it being pointed out that the date set for the Jewish Maternity Hospital fund show is Sept. 9, and Mullins has been offered the Tunney match for Sept. 23 or 25. Mullins has tentatively agreed to the terms offered by the Polo Grounds A. C., but has postponed actual closing of the match until Monday, pending an answer to his cablegram to Wills, who is now in Europe.

TO FIGHT OR NOT TO FIGHT? Question Is Squarely Up to Jack Dempsey

Champion in No Hurry to Meet Wills

Row With Commission Would End if Jack Posted $2500 Forfeit.

Kearns and Dempsey Through, Friends of Champion Are Sure

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 8.

THE world's championship partnership of Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey is really "through," friends here declare.

Not only has their property been divided but things have happened which make a reconciliation seem impossible. It is believed, too, that Kearns is persona non grata with Mrs. Dempsey.

The partnership began in 1918 before Dempsey became champion. Since that time the firm has taken in over $1,250,000 in fight purses and has added almost half that amount more through the movies, theatricals and good investments.

Friends estimate that each has a personal fortune of between $500,000 and $750,000 at least. It is the greatest money earning fight combination in history.

Dempsey admits that he owes everything to Kearns' ability as a manager and to his advice in business affairs.

By John E. Wray.

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

To fight or not to fight?

Hamlet Dempsey seems to be soliloquizing thus over the proposal that he battle Harry Wills and risk that noble meal ticket, his championship.

Thus far Dempsey seems to have talked in the affirmative and voted in the negative. At any rate, there is something highly odoriferous in the pugilistic Denmark.

And it's all because the ghost wants to walk too soon.

It's a well-known legend that the ghost is partial to promenades on pay day. It's also a fact that if the specter parades before the contract of one Jack Kearns expires, about a year hence, Dempsey will receive only half as much as if His Ghostship delayed his stroll until the Kearns agreement ends.

And that, say the cynics, is the Alas P. Yorick in the Dempsey closet.

We do not pretend knowledge of this case. But from the barrage of words that mean nothing discharged from New York, Los Angeles and Michigan City, it is apparent that the squid has no monopoly of the art of concealing his whereabouts. Dempsey seems to be trying to hide his intentions and to stall the commission, and everybody concerned, into believing that he really wants to fight.

Can Quickly End Wrangle.

Dempsey, if he would, could settle the argument in one minute.

By wiring $2,500 to the New York Athletic Commission with the message: "This is my forfeit to guarantee a match with Wills," the clouds would clear away.

Of coure, it will all straighten out. Pressure of public opinion will force Dempsey into line; but not, perhaps, before Kearns' contract has lapsed.

If Dempsey fights before next July 4, it will be against some lesser man than Wills and for a purse inconsiderable compared to what the champion expects for the title bout.

The thought of splitting a $500,000 pay check with Kearns does not seem to set well in the Dempsey household, since Dempsey acquired a life partner.

Dempsey can hardly afford to deal concerning the Wills match with any other promoter than Rickard, despite the talk of a fight in the Middle West. The big money is CERTAIN in New York, it is DOUBTFUL in the Chicago environment, where the biggest gate in history has not yet reached $200,000.

Even the magic of Tex Rickard could lure to Toledo only $412,000 when Dempsey and Willard fought.

Thus Dempsey, although nominally barred in only New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts by the commission's ban, would have a hard time drawing one-fourth of the sum he is expected to lure to Boyle's Thirty Acres, if he fought elsewhere.

Dempsey Stalls for Time.

It now begins to appear that perhaps it was not Kearns that has kept Dempsey from meeting Wills all these years, but Dempsey's own reluctance. It is more than three years since Jack's promise to oppose the negro was made public. Not only has he not kept his promise, but now that Kearns has passed out of the picture, he still is sidestepping the issue, seemingly.

It is beyond belief that Dempsey is afraid of Wills; nature made Dempsey a fighting man. But it surely does appear that he is cautious enough to wait until time softens up the negro for him. At any rate, that has happened and Wills will be in his decline when they

BETTORS TO BE BARRED FROM PHILLIE PARKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—At the request of the Athletics and Phillies the public safety department of Philadelphia has assigned 20 city detectives to get a line on all persons who wager on baseball games. It is understood that once the information is obtained and the bettors "spotted," the gates of the two parks will be closed to them as undesirables.

Park Teams Enter Final Flag Stretch

Municipal Association Officials Plan to Start Elimination Games on September 5.

With the end of the season in sight and a chance for second-place teams to slip under the wire, the clubs in the leagues of the Municipal Baseball Association are putting on their final drive for the pennants and a place in the eliminations. In the more important leagues, with the exception of the City League, where the Lischko Indians have the flag virtually cinched, anywhere from two to four squads are still in the running and waiting for the breaks.

Officials of the association hope to get the eliminations under way by Saturday, Sept. 5, but extra games carried over from the rainy days may set proceedings back a week. Four weeks of play for the Sunday teams and three for the teams playing Saturday remain, with from four to six games left to finish.

To complete the schedule in time, double-headers may be necessary, a condition which is not desired at this crucial stage of the season.

Falcons in Lead.

Today's schedule in the Independent League favors heavily the Falcons, who are leading by a game and a half over the Meletios, their closest rivals. The Falcons play the Motorbus team, which has won only once in 15 starts, and a Falcon victory is almost assured. The Meletios, on the other hand, square off against the Kuhs, who, though beaten twice last week by the Falcons, are still within striking distance of the flag. The other contender, the Shells, take on the Polish Cadets and are favored to win, although the Cadets are dangerous. In any event, no matter how today's games result, the Falcons will retain their lead.

Donnellys Play Swifts.

Today's games in the Mercantile League will decide whether the Donnelly Stars will have their own way in the pennant race. The Donnelly's have a full two games lead over their closest rivals, the Daus and Swifts, who are tied for second place. The contest between the Donnellys and the Swifts will be the feature of the league's schedule. It will be played at Sherman Park grounds No. 1 at 3 o'clock.

A change in the Empire League standing is unlikely as the leading teams play second division clubs. Y. M. H. A. is still leading by the comfortable margin of two and a half games and only a series of breaks or an accident can deprive them of the flag. Today they play the Glascos, an outfit that was dangerous at one time, but which has been beaten regularly lately. The Lacledes are in second place and meet the La Salle A. C. The surprise of the season in the Empire circuit was the sudden fall of the Typos, who were regarded as probable winners early in the race, but have dropped back to a .500 percentage.

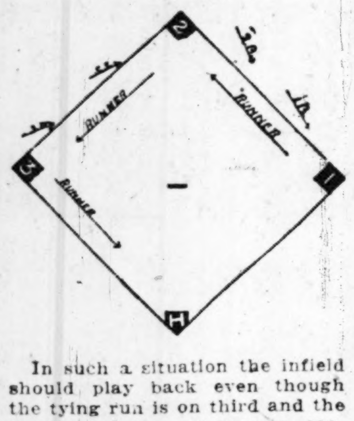
TIPS ON INSIDE BASE-BALL

IT is the first half of the ninth and the home team is leading by one run.

The visiting team fills the bases with one out. The batsman is a right handed batter, known to be a hard hitter, but also rather slow of foot.

What would be the best way to handle this situation as to the playing of the infield?

Diagram of Play.



In such a situation the infield should play back even though the tying run is on third and the scoring of the runner on second would put the visiting club in the lead.

The fact that the batter is a hard hitter, yet slow of foot offers an opportunity for a double play that would retire the side and end the game.

Being a hard hitter a ground ball batted by him will get to the infielder quickly, while his slowness of foot offers a chance for a play at first on him, after a force has been made at second or third.

If the infield is in, the odds are in favor of hitting past the fielders on a sharp grounder. If such was the case, two runs would almost surely score.

By playing back and gambling to get one man and possibly two, the team in the field is making the most of its chances.

If the double play fails, only one man being retired and the runner on third scores on the play, the count is merely tied.

Taking a gamble is by far the wisest play in such a situation.

Municipal Star Breaks His Leg Sliding to Base

Pitcher Quarternik's Spikes Catch in Bag and Throw Him as He Slides Into Third.

Victor Quarternik, 22 years old, pitcher for the Title Guaranty team of the Manufacturers' League, suffered a broken leg yesterday afternoon at No. 4 diamond, Fairground, while playing in a game with the Atlas team.

In the third inning of the second game of a double-header, Quarternik singled to right field. He kept on going when the rightfielder hurled the ball wild to left field and slid into third in advance of the return. His spikes caught in the strap holding the bag and threw him heavily, knocking him out. He was taken to the city hospital, where it was said he had suffered a bone fracture.

Quarternik lives at 2836 Missouri avenue.

Miss Wills Will Play Mrs. Mallory

U. S. Champion Defeats Miss Goss in 38 Minutes—Miss Ryan Defaults.

By the Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Possibility of return match between Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., national champion, and Elizabeth Ryan of California, her conqueror in the Seabright final, was eliminated today in the New York State women's tennis championships when Miss Ryan reported sick and defaulted her semifinal match to Mrs. Molla B. Mallory of New York.

In a semifinal contest, Miss Wills defeated Eleanor Goss of New York, in a match requiring but 38 minutes, 6—1, 6—2.

As a result, the national champion will face Mrs. Mallory of New York, former national champion, in the title round tomorrow.

At Miss Ryan's request, her semifinal match in the doubles, in which she was paired with Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles, was postponed until tomorrow. At that time, provided Miss Ryan has sufficiently recovered, she will pair with Mrs. Bundy against Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., and Eleanor Goss of New York.

Ft. Houston Poloists Win.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 8.—The Fort Sam Houston (Tex.) polo team won its last game of the season here recently, defeating a Colorado Springs no-goal team, 11 to 10, after conceding six goals by handicap. The victory was a costly one, as Capt. C. B. King, captain and No. 1 of the army team, riding hard for the winning goal in the final chukker, broke his right arm in a fall.

Connie Mack Oldest Manager

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—Connie Mack, aged 62, of the Philadelphia Athletics, is the oldest manager in point of service in the major leagues, winner of the most world titles and pilot of a team that finished last the greatest number of times. His teams have won six pennants and three world championships, and for eight straight years finished in the cellar.

Groves Shoot Champ.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 8.—E. W. Nutting of Los Angeles won the Rocky Mountain trapshooting championship for amateurs and J. A. (Diamond Jim) Groves of Chicago won the professional championship of the region here recently. Nutting broke 200 straight and Groves made a similar score.

Wins Links Trophy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 8.—L. A. Brown captured the President's trophy, an annual prize offered for golfers at the Memphis Country club. Brown defeated Le Roy Taylor in the finals by 2 and 1. The affair is a handicap match play tournament.

A Bit of Venice
in the American Tropics

THE BRIGHTEST JEWEL in all the distinctive architecture which is the chief charm of Coral Gables is the Venetian Casino and Pool.

Here is the Land of the Sun. A Sun that pouring down its living and all-pervading warmth, has freed man from the dominion of walls. In this choicest region of the American Tropics it is water that provides exercise and pleasure, comfort and health. It is water to which man turns for recreation and refreshment.

And in this great lagoon with its accompanying casino and towers and bridges and charming leafy isles, its shady porticos and vine-covered loggias, its tea room and dance floor, the leisured life of a whole region finds focus.

George E. Merrick, who planned, and Denman Fink, artist-architect, who executed, produced a thing of beauty, of rare charm, rare perfection. But all Coral Gables is like that—builded with vision, builded in permanent beauty. A great city region, where $25,000,000 already have been spent and $100,000,000 additional will be expended on a further ten-year program—all for the purpose of building to the fullest degree possible the finest place in the world to live.

As a result, Coral Gables is not only an ideal spot for a Florida home, but also a rich field for profitable investment. If you desire further information, or if you desire to visit Coral Gables without transportation cost, clip the coupon below.

REVOLT IN FRENCH SYRIAN EMPIRE

One Cause of Uprising Is Prohibition of Private Hospitality to Travelers.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Loss by the French troops of several tanks with guns aboard when the Syrian rebels attacked a convoy of artillery a few days ago south of Damascus, seems likely to develop into an important political incident when Parliament meets in October, unless the Government takes radical action sooner. The conservative press has begun a demand for the recall of Gen. Sarrail, French High Commissioner to Syria, to whose methods in handling the natives it lays the cause of the trouble.

The French Government is awaiting general Sarrail's full report before taking action, says the Echo de Paris, but it adds that Foreign Minister Briand, however, is in favor of recalling the High Commissioner.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright 1925.
(Copyright, 1925.)

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The French Colonial empire seems to be cracking everywhere.

Hardly had the Moroccan situation been stabilized than rumors of uprisings in Syria were confirmed.

It is true that the Foreign Office, as well as the majority of the press, are inclined to treat the Druse rebellion lightly, calling the sturdy mountaineers "bands of brigands whose only purpose is looting," and Nashib Bey Atrash, whose family has ruled over the Druse tribes for centuries, a "brigand leader."

But similar language was used when Abd-el-Krim started hostilities in Morocco, and today the French are compelled to discuss terms with him on an equal footing.

The Druse uprising causes considerable worry in well-informed circles. The facts appear to be as follows:

The Druses are discontented as a result of vexatious measures of the French authorities, especialy the interdiction upon travelers accepting hospitality in private homes. This is an old custom, dating from the days when a hotel was unknown in the Lebanon Mountains. The Druse families have been accustomed to give hospitality to travelers, who in exchange made adequate presents.

Since the French occupation of Syria, a number of modern hotels have been built, but many travelers preferred the hospitality of the natives to the doubtful comfort of hotels. The French, trying to put an end to this custom, imprisoned several Druses who were found guilty of accepting travelers in their homes.

A Druse leader, who visited French High Commissioner Sarrail at Beyrouth failed to receive satisfaction and on June 20 the Druses started sending their women, children and cattle across the border into Palestine. This sign of a coming uprising was ignored by the French.

French Force Captured.

Actual hostilities broke out July 21, when a small post in the Deraa district was surrounded by rebels, two French officers were killed and the garrison was captured after 24 hours of fighting.

The rebels then advanced toward Soueida, the capital of Djebel. The Druses massacred a squadron of cavalry and occupied the city. When the news reached Beyrouth, Commissioner Sarrail dispatched a battalion to chastise the rebels, but the battalion was attacked by a superior force in a gorge near Debel and forced to halt. Three more battalions with artillery and planes were sent out. They were caught by surprise and the entire force, with airplanes, tanks and guns, captured.

Columns, organized by the French, left presumably today against the Druses, but the situation in Northern Syria is becoming alarming. The Arabs at Aleppo and Damascus, who have been hostile to the French ever since the allies entrusted them to French care, are reported to be restless. They number no less than 300,000.

U. S. WINS BIG TAX CASE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The United States Government was announced victor today in a test case brought by the New York Life Insurance Co. to recover $8,189,918 which the company said was overpaid as Federal taxes in 1921. The ruling, it was said by Assistant United States Attorney Crawford, saves the Treasury Department from refunding $7,000,000 claimed by other insurance companies.

The decision held that the company was not entitled to deduced from its gross income premiums paid on "payments in excess of the actual cost of insurance made by deferred dividend policy holders the year previous." The company based its case on provisions of the revenue act of 1913 which provided for deduction from gross income in any one year of overpayments of premiums by policy holders.

Bible Controversy, Prohibition, And Apathy to Real Issues Are Danger Signals to Nation

Political Expert, After Tour of Country, Finds Voters in Sodden Mental State Except as to Two Questions—Majority of a Small Minority of Population Make Our Laws and Shape Our Policies.

By FRANK R. KENT.

Nationally known political writer for the Baltimore Sun, author of "The Great Game of Politics," who has recently been on a tour of observation throughout the country.

NO open minded man with an inquiring disposition who travels much about this country can very well help feeling pessimistic about it politically. Speaking not at all from the party but wholly from the public angle, it is in a sorry, soggy, sloppy state.

It isn't pleasant to play the role of Gloomy Gus and it is quite true that since the founding of the nation various persons, at irregular intervals, have felt it was headed for perdition and could not be stopped. Somehow or other, it has managed to pull through, bumpily avoiding collapse, even growing bigger and more indecently rich. Probably it will continue to wobble along its unwieldy way in spite of its present deep seated and disgraceful diseased condition.

However, these are not reasons why those who see danger signals should refrain from pointing out the significant symptoms of the present. For one thing, it may help a little in the cure.

Those Who Are Pleased.

The truth is that as things are today there are only two classes pleased with the country politically. One of these is composed of those who, directly or indirectly, profit one way or another from politics. The other embraces those who either do not know the facts or cannot understand them. It must be conceded that this is a very large class indeed. In it are included some of our leading writers of Pollyanna editorials, who tell us what a wonderful country we have, how happy everybody should be in it, and what a dreadful thing it is to pick flaws when we have such a great strong man as Mr. Coolidge to guard us from harm. In it, too, are the numerous business men, who can see nothing wrong in a country where you can make plenty of money.

To be candid, that last is a fairly unanswerable argument. It forces you to admit that as things are now they are all right, and that they will likely be all right for some time to come. But you have a right to look beyond and when you do the menacing clouds are very visible.

Very Much Alive.

Regardless of party, the men with keenest vision and the deepest penetration, in every section of the country, are talking and thinking along the same lines. It is hard to tell what discourages them the more—the issues that do interest the people or the issues that do not interest them. Over either or both there is not the least doubt there is basis for discouragement.

Take first the issues to which they do respond—you can go across the country from coast to coast, stopping in each state to talk and learn as I recently did, and you will strike fire only when you touch one subject—Prohibition. On that they respond but, until a few weeks ago, on no other. It is all very well for political leaders in dry territory to tell you that it is "finished business" in their states and that their people no longer think of the subject, but it isn't true. Today, just as much as it has been for five years past, Prohibition is not only still in politics in every section, but it obscures all other political issues.

The only way in which man can be measured against man is to have them both openly marked with the same brand on this question. And that is what we have come to in nearly every state. Wet runs against wet and dry against dry. That is the test in most of the states today. Nothing else much matters. It is the one thing that really stirs public sentiment. That is, it was the one thing until a short while ago. Now we have another—not basically different, dividing men and women along the same lines, and capable of even more deeply stirring them—to wit, the Bible issue. Perhaps it would have come into politics without the Dayton trial. It was on its way but the Bryan-Darrow battle, the enormous publicity from evolutionist and anti-evolutionist with which the world was drenched while the case lasted, the fight between the scientists and the fundamentalists, which is continuing in nearly every community, has thrust this issue deep into our politics.

More Hypocrisy in Sight.

It is hard to see how it can be other than disheartening to thoughtful persons to grasp the fact that these two issues, neither one of which has the slightest business in politics, are the only ones capable of striking a spark from nine-tenths of the people of the country today. It is impossible to doubt this. Any politician in any state will tell you that on the World Court, the tariff, the League of Nations, the railroads, water power, agriculture, any item of foreign or domestic policy, there is among the masses of the people not only no real interest but a complete and profound indifference. About them they do not know and they do not care. About the other two—Prohibition and the Bible—they don't know either—but they do care.

Shunning the Polls.

Now, then, when you add to those two things, which do ring the bell of the public interest, its astounding inertness, indifference and ignorance concerning its government generally, coupled with the apparently unshakable determination of half of the qualified voters not to participate in its selection, a combination is presented that rather justifies feeling badly over the outlook.

Just a few weeks ago, figures compiled by Simon Michelet of Washington, a recognized authority on the subject, show the United States, in the matter of voting efficiency, practically at the very tail of the long list of civilized nations.

Here are the facts—

In the 1924 election for House of Commons in England 76 per cent of the total electorate voted—in the preceding election 82 per cent went to the polls.

In Germany at the first election of the Reichstag under the Constitution of the German Republic, 75 per cent of all Germans over 20 years of age voted. In the 1924 election the vote increased by four millions and exceeded 80 per cent; in April of this year—the Hindenburg presidential election — the German percentage reached 82.

A 20-year average for the Australian and New Zealand states shows approximately 75 per cent voting in Australia and 80 per cent in New Zealand. In the 1924 election in New Zealand and Queenstown show close to 84 per cent.

Belgium, Holland and Denmark are not far behind. They range from 60 to 90 per cent, with an average over 20 years of 75 per cent.

In Norway and Sweden approxi-

Crisis in Coal Industry Here And Abroad Is New Menace to The World, Says Lloyd George

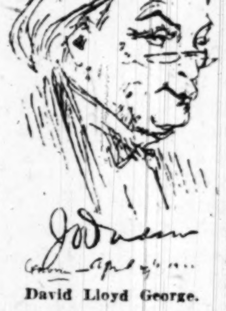
Increasing Use of Water Power, Electricity, Lignite and Oil Have So Unbalanced Mining Industry That Many Collieries Are Run at a Loss and in England Wages Are Below What Is Fair.

If Remedy Is Not Found by English Parliament, He Says, Britain May Well Glide Into Revolution—Coal, Once King, Is Rapidly Being Dethroned by Science and Invention.

"Britain May Well Glide Into Revolution," Says Lloyd George, Unless Coal Industry Is Saved

"EVENTS will now compel them (Conservative leaders) to legislate . . . and, if they have not the courage to do so, Britain may well glide into revolution."

"Coal is smoldering everywhere and may burst into a universal flame which will light up both sides of the Atlantic with pillars of fire. Throughout the civilized world, at the present moment, the coal industry seems to be igniting with trouble."



David Lloyd George.

"To find the real cause we must look at the changes which are being wrought by science in its march forward along the road to civilization. Some of the most startling inventions of the twentieth century have been in connection with the utilization of different kinds of power and King Coal, who was once upon a time an autocrat, is now but a limited monarch. Everywhere his sway and hegemony are being encroached upon and challenged."

"The last knock of all to the struggling British coal industry—one which I venture to call the donkey kick—was the premature return to the gold standard."

"In this country, at any rate, coal miners are underpaid. The wages paid them are less, on the average, in purchasing power than the pre-war rates."

"The industry, it is quite plain, is on the verge of bankruptcy and the solution of the problem is not reached because the coal strike has been averted, or, rather, staved off, at the eleventh hour."

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
LONDON, Aug. 8.

COAL is smoldering everywhere and may burst into a universal flame which will light up both sides of the Atlantic with pillars of fire. Throughout the civilized world, at the present moment, the coal industry seems to be igniting with trouble.

It is not in Britain alone that the position is grave and menacing. In America, a conference has been going on for three weeks to consider the demands of the coal miners, amongst other things, for a 10 per cent increase in wages. Although there the industry itself is by no means in such a desperate plight as in this country, the American miners contend that they do not receive a fair share of the profits and are threatening a strike on this account on Sept. 1. In Canada there are also strikes and rumors of strikes. In France there is a crisis in the mining industry and in Belgium, too, 75,000 miners have struck work. In Germany, the Saar is on the threshold of a struggle between the coal owners and the miners.

Science the Usurper.

What is the reason for this apparently international trouble throughout the world's coal fields? Although, on the face of it, the cause of the strikes in every case appears to be wages or hours or both, that is but a superficial reason. To find the real cause we must look at the changes that are being wrought by science in its march forward along the road to civilization. Some of the most startling inventions of the twentieth century have been in connection with the utilization of different kinds of power, and King Coal, who was once upon a time an autocrat, is now but a limited monarch. Everywhere his sway and hegemony are being encroached upon and challenged.

The fate of the British coal export trade will serve as an illustration of what is going on throughout the coal fields of the world. The high price of British coal during and immediately after the war stimulated the countries which bought coal largely from us—Italy and France for instance—to resort for power to what is known as white coal; in other words, water. Bavaria and parts of Germany have also done the same thing, with the result that there is more Westphalian coal available for external sale than there would otherwise have been.

America is harnessing vast water resources to machinery on a scale and rate quite unknown before the war. In addition to this, large beds of lignite have been discovered in Germany. This has been used extensively for the production of electricity and has still further decreased the European demand for coal. Even places where black coal has been used in the enormous power development since the war, coal is, by that very process, also saved.

The production of coal and lignite in France increased from 40,844,000 gross tons in 1913 to 57,888,000 tons in 1924. This necessarily means that she purchases less abroad. The German lignite output has increased from 79,541,574 tons in 1913-14 to 134,406,469 tons in 1922-23. The Dawes report, too, freeing coal in the Ruhr with the result that it came into the market soon after the London agreement materialized, also very prejudicially affected the British coal trade.

Gold Basis Upset Market.

But one of the most important reasons for depression in the coal industry is the growing rivalry of oil as a means of producing power. The navies of the world are already oil users, as far as modern ships are concerned and the large passenger ships of the world, great consumers not only on account of their size but because of their speed, now nearly all run on oil.

The last knock of all to the struggling British coal industry—one which I venture to call the donkey kick—was the premature return to the gold standard. This had the effect of at least temporarily adding anything from a shilling to a shilling and six pence to the export price of British coal in foreign countries. Sir Josiah Stamp, one of the most eminent living authorities on finance and currency, in an addendum to the report on the coal mining dispute, states frankly that he has been unable to find anything in the actual course or conduct of the industry to account for such a marked change for the worse during the last four or five months, and he comes to the conclusion that the premature return to the gold standard is responsible. He develops the argument in detail. Witnesses before the commission, he adds, "had the general impression that the resumption of the gold standard means a shilling per ton difference in price but prima facie the real effect of it might be considerably greater than the general impression would convey. I am therefore obliged to conclude, firstly, that whatever the effect of the operation of the present agreement might be upon industry in the long run, it was bound to be made substantially worse by that kind of one-sided deflation which has taken place and, secondly, that no other satisfactory or sufficient cause appears to be available, though I give full weight to the general depression in coal consumption abroad."

Vanishing Profits.

All these are not causes for which the owners or the miners are responsible. They are deep-seated and far-reaching and most of them are permanent in their character. Nor can they be settled as between owners and miners only. The commissioners of the court of inquiry state in their report that their opinion is "the present crisis is, to a large extent, the creation of neither party to the dispute. It has arisen, in the main, from without and is due to causes not within the control of either party. They are causes which may continue to operate for a considerable time to come."

Whatever the causes, the profits have vanished and, in this country at any rate, the coal miners are underpaid. The wages paid them are less, on the average, in purchasing power than the pre-war rates. On the other hand, I also agree that it is not the case that the coal owners are unfairly withholding from the workmen a fair share of the realized profits of the industry. The fact is that there is very little profit to divide and what there is is diminishing month by month. In January, 1924, there were in Great Britain, 478 collieries working at a profit and 162 working at a loss. The latest available figures show that, in March this year, 291 collieries were showing a profit and 320 a loss. The eastern area, which was the one prosperous part of the industry, in January made a profit of 635,000 pounds sterling; in February, a profit of 539,000 pounds sterling; in March, a profit of 511,000 pounds sterling; in April the profit was reduced to 78,000 pounds sterling and, in May, there was a loss of 31,000 pounds sterling. June and July were progressively worse. The last figures show, incidentally, that since the beginning of 1924, 29 collieries have been closed. In May last year there were 38,000 miners out of work.

At this moment there are 300,000 receiving unemployment pay and 500 collieries have closed down.

The industry, it is quite plain, is on the verge of bankruptcy and the solution of the problem is not reached because the coal strike has been averted, or rather staved off temporarily at the eleventh hour. When we realize that the industry is one which affords a livelihood to one-tenth of our population, the present position becomes even more alarming.

Lack of Efficiency.

Is there a remedy or must the British miner continue to work at pinched wages to keep the pits from closing down? The commissioner of inquiry reports that there is considerable room for improving the efficiency of the industry as a whole and, in this way affording some aid to its economic position. "Further collective action on the part of the collieries, for example, would enable the facilities and resources to be used in common to greater advantage and would promote economical working." There is no doubt that the organization of the coal fields is unsatisfactory. It is an old industry, which had grown up in ramshackle fashion before 1914. It lacked the stimulus of effective competition.

The position of Britain, in this respect, has been unique, French coal has not been sufficient for French needs. Belgian coal is limited in quantity and inferior in quality. German coal is far removed from the seaboard, American coal, for a variety of reasons, does not compete with ours, one reason being that British ships could export coal more cheaply because Britain, being more dependent upon foreign produce than America, her ships were assured of a return cargo. The freights for oversea transport of British coal were thus halved. Moreover, British coal is within easy reach of sea export, the coal being almost on the seaboard, whereas American coal is inland and difficult of access to the sea.

The considerations I have mentioned account for the fact that, although American coal is cheaper at the pit's mouth, it is so often dearer in foreign ports. American wages, incidentally, are considerably higher than ours but American coal is more get-at-able. The seams are thicker and lend themselves more readily for treatment by machinery. Britain thus dominated the world as regards the export of coal, before the war and this lack of competition has been exceedingly bad for the efficiency of the industry, as the British coal owners were not obliged to exert themselves to produce economically in order to save their trade.

Decline in Exports.

It is sufficient to compare the figures of the British coal export before and after the war to realize the rapid deterioration of the industry and the way in which it is tumbling toward ruin. Before the war, in 1913, the amount of coal exported was 73.4 millions of tons. Last year it was 59.2 million tons. For the first half of this year export has been at the rate of 49.4 million tons, and during the month of June at the rate of 43.7 million tons. During the occupation of the Ruhr we were in a better position, since there was more demand for British coal. Exports in 1923 rose to the high figure of 78 million tons.

Unfortunately for the relations between the owners and the miners, never of the best and often very bitter, when the industry fell upon bad times the first and only resource that occurred to the colliery owners was an attack upon wages and an attempt to economize there. This happened even before the war,

Woman's Bequest of Brain to University Revives Dispute As to Mental Powers of Sex

Late Mrs. Helen Gardener, Author, First Feminine Donor in Effort to Determine Whether We Have Better "Gray Matter" Than Sisters.

By ROWLAND THOMAS,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.

THE act of the late Mrs. Helen Hamilton Gardener, author and Civil Service Commissioner, who died a fortnight ago in Washington and bequeathed her brain to Cornell University for purposes of study, instills fresh interest into an ancient controversy.

Has one sex an inherent mental superiority over the other?

Through a long train of centuries there was only one orthodox answer to that question. The superior mental power of men was taken for granted. Literally and figuratively too, they were assumed to tote "more brains" around in their craniums than did their sisters.

Even as recently as 1912 one of the most famous brain specialists in the world, Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka, set forth the good old doctrine in emphatic terms.

"Woman as a sex will never be the mental equal of man," he declared as the result of his long and arduous studies. "While no one will dispute the fact that an individual woman may excel an individual man, it is a fact that in the mass the brains of women are smaller, less richly and completely fissured and so endowed with less cortical area than those of men."

Hundreds of autopsies and measurements had put one part of this assertion outside the realm of debate. Considering physical mass only, the female has less brains than the male. Where the average man carries round with him just about three pounds of so-called "gray matter," his average sister is somewhat more than a quarter of a pound behind him—5.5 ounces, if precision is called for. But as critics of Dr. Spitzka's position were quick to point out, that discrepancy is one to be expected. The whole physiological makeup of the average woman is smaller. Her hands, her feet, her bones, her height are less than her brother's. She averages to weigh about 110 pounds, where he will average 150. If her thinking machinery were proportionately scaled down, it ought to weigh only 35.2 ounces, instead of the 43 or 44 ounces found by actual observation.

Brain Weight Not Real Measure.

Putting it the other way round, if a man exceeded a woman in brain mass in the same proportion as in other measurements, his skull contents ought to weigh 60 ounces. Either he is three-quarters of a pound shy on the brain-stuff or there is something faulty with the supposition that brain weight is the real measure of mental power, as indeed seems not unlikely when one remembers that the canary, most inane of birds, content to perch and tweet forever in a gilded cage, has for its size the largest brain of any member of the feathered species.

There were two other weak spots in Dr. Spitzka's entrenchments. The first he was frank to point out himself. He had had opportunity to examine 10 times as many male brains as female ones. The second was even more damaging to any claim to impartial study of the two sexes. He had come into possession of the female brains he measured and dissected by mere chance, as morgues, hospitals and prisons furnished him material, whereas, thanks largely to his own initiative, a large proportion of the male brains had been carefully selected.

Quality of "Women Who Think."

Back in 1891 his father, also an eminent specialist, the late Dr. E. C. Spitzka, had helped to organize in Philadelphia the American Anthropometric Association, with the special object of studying the brains of persons of superior intellectual capacity, all active members pledging themselves to bequeath their brains for postmortem examination and study. Later Dr. E. A. Spitzka himself had become "Prosecter" or director of this body, and later still head of the Daniel Baugh Institute, in the basement of which were stored the brains of defunct members of the Anthropometric Association, waiting to yield up their anatomical secrets.

All these points Mrs. Gardener seems to have marked and remembered, as she made clear in her will.

"Having spent my life using such brains as I have in trying to better conditions of humanity," she wrote, "I hereby confirm the bequest of my brain to Cornell, so as to add to the knowledge of the brain quality and characteristics of the 'women who think,' as against the present statistics based on hospital 'pick-ups' and the less fortunate women of the world upon whose brains science has so far based its deductions and conclusions and which it has tabulated and set over against the results obtained from the examination of the best male brains known to the world."

These words have the ring of a challenge in them. Mrs. Gardener was determined that women's brains should at least have equality of opportunity on the dissecting table.

About the same time that Dr. Spitzka set the feminist world abuzz with his pronouncement, another very distinguished physician, Sir James Crichton-Browne, then vice president of the Royal Institution, brought down on himself the peers of his masculine colleagues by asserting he had observed functional differences between the brains of the two sexes.

"Women's delicate powers of sensuous perception," he declared, "Her rapidity of thought and emotional sensibility, are due to a richer flow of arterial blood to the posterior region of the brain. In man the flow of blood is richer in the anterior region, and this accounts for man's greater originality, calmer judgment and stronger will."

Variations in Noted Men's Brains.

This theory of a sex difference in brain function was unsparingly ridiculed, but later it fell to the lot of Dr. Spitzka himself to discover what seemed to be regional difference, accounting for marked variation in mental characteristics between two men of notable brain power.

The brains he studied were those of Dr. Joseph Leidy, an eminent Philadelphia physician and Prof. E. D. Cope, a philosophic anatomist of the same type as the famous Huxley. He found that, whereas the usual ratio of frontal areas of the brain to the posterior areas is 70.30, in Dr. Leidy's brain it was 66.34 and in Prof. Cope's 73.27. The former had slightly more posterior areas than the average; the latter slightly more frontal areas.

Spitzka thus summed up his conclusions from these aberrations, of course, with the advantage of having known both men.

"A relative redundancy of the posterior areas expresses a natural superiority of the powers of concrete conception—emphasis on the development of the frontal area denotes remarkable powers of abstract thought. Cope was

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Program for Liberals.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LET the liberals of America practice a more intensive citizenship. Let them disregard party lines at the ballot box as ruthlessly as do the bigots, intolerants and fanatics, and let them be determined to exercise the right of suffrage in the cause of liberty as zealously as their opponents exercise it in the service of tyranny. Let great, fearless and independent newspapers, such as the Post-Dispatch lead the way in such laudable civic and political activity. Let us begin anew to think for ourselves, and to take no assertion or statement for granted until we have reasoned the proposition out. Then let us teach our children to do likewise. Let us get away from the standardization of the souls and minds of the country's young, by which the inside of one child's head is made to conform as nearly as possible to the inside of another's. Let us accept as the basis of our educational scheme certain fundamental precepts which the experience and conscience of humankind have caused to be generally accepted as being right and proper, and from that foundation let the adolescent reason out and formulate his own philosophy and course of conduct. He will not go far wrong if he does. Certainly he will never conclude that it is a crime either to drink a glass of clean, wholesome beer on a hot July day, or to teach the theory that man descended from an original protoplasm.

Propaganda Aimed at Liberties.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE most dangerous thing in our politics today is submission and silence to all kinds of propaganda that aim to encroach upon our liberties, assiduously creeping into our legislative and judicial system, till I have sometimes felt that even some of the Judges themselves are muzzled.

A study of Thomas Jefferson and adherence to his principles will keep us out of all kinds of religious entanglements.

Madonna of the Tears.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is right to quest for the origin of our species, but let us not overlook man's part in the generation of the race and responsibility thereof.

No two people are alike physically. This fact alone makes reasonable the belief of existence beyond the grave; for the mighty Craftsman of the world and its multitudes could not err in purpose even though He is producing a gradual improvement of the human form—earthly abode of the soul.

Many denounce evolution in belief the theory scorns the birth of Jesus. They overlook the scorning of the Madonna of the Tears that has been going on for centuries. Tradition tells us God pardoned the repentant Magdalen, but the majority evidently still believe the unwedded mother should be stigmatized. Their disrespect of our Savior's compassion in this has propagated vice, not prevented it; whereas men of science have labored munificently to alleviate suffering and lessen toil.

Science should be given free reign to progress, and when mankind stoops to antagonize this great angel of mercy, men of science will experience no qualms of conscience in battling for their rights. Commendable uplift work has been accorded the erring, but what great advancement has been made without the aid of science?

"Indecent Music."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PERHAPS the silliest of all silly puritanical police regulations is that unearthed in the Washington, D. C., regulations, forbidding "music of an indecent character." Backing up the regulation, Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, head policewoman in that city, says "Much of the jazz music being played here is immoral. It puts thoughts into the minds of the listeners that shouldn't be there. I refer to that tom-tommy sort of Oriental music that makes men forget home and the babies. I have listened to dance music in Egypt, India and other Eastern countries, but this modern jazz has it beaten for suggestiveness."

Who listens to music—every listener being individual, with his own experience and his own qualities—necessarily injects into the music what suits his idiosyncrasy. Beethoven composed his Sonata for piano and violin in A, Opus 7, and dedicated it, not to a woman, but to his violinist friend, Rodolphe Kreutzer. Listening to this music, Leo Tolstoy, the great Russian reformer, conceived it to mean something immoral, and wrote his well-known novel, "The Kreutzer Sonata," in which he placed the modern conventional marriage in a hideous light. Of course, Beethoven did not dream that his music would lead to such a result.

Music may be lively or slow, gay or sad, inspiring or depressing. But it has not nor can have the power to stir up moral or immoral thoughts in the listener, without suitable environment, or unless the listener is so disposed. And, to invest a police department with authority to pass upon the moral quality of music is, of all things, the acme of absurdity.

WHY, GOV. BAKER?

In addition to charges of irregularities in the State Board of Health, in connection with which the resignation or ousting of Dr. Cortez F. Enloe, member of the board, is demanded by the president, Dr. North, and the secretary, Dr. Stewart, Gov. Baker has to deal with charges just made public of graft in State Prison purchases under the State Penal Board, of which Dr. Enloe is head as director of penal institutions.

In the first-mentioned case Gov. Baker must choose between the getting rid of Dr. Enloe and losing the services of the president and secretary, Drs. North and Stewart, unless the latter withdraw from their stand, which would reflect seriously upon their own sincerity.

In the case of the graft in State Prison purchases the record indicates gross neglect of duty on the part of Gov. Baker. Knowing that purchases for State prisons were made in an irregular manner without competition between Jan. 12 and June 17, the Governor has covered up the charges and attempted to correct the illegal and crooked methods of dealing without taking action to punish those guilty of irregularity or to protect the State by ousting them from office.

The charges were made by State Senator Larry Brunk of Aurora, who was appointed purchasing agent of the board by Gov. Baker himself. The facts are these: Senator Brunk was appointed on May 19, and wrote Gov. Baker on June 17 that he had been ignored by the State Prison Board in the purchasing of supplies and that supplies had been purchased illegally without competition at prices far above the prices that could have been obtained under competition and that ought to have been obtained.

In his letter to the Governor, Senator Brunk specified the purchases in which there were overcharges. One was from G. A. Fisher Drug Store in Jefferson City in which he states there was an overcharge of at least $800 in a total bill of $1390. In another bill of $1528.38 from the Jefferson City Produce Co., the overcharge, he states, was approximately $260. We understand a list of similar overcharges was submitted with the letter, but has never been made public. Altogether, of $28,000 paid for supplies, $22,000 was expended without competitive bids.

Under the Hyde administration Dr. Enloe was secretary of the State Board of Health at a salary of $2400, and was Health Commissioner at a salary of $5000, making in all an official income of $7400. Dr. Enloe resigned the offices of secretary of the Health Board and of Health Commissioner, retaining membership in the Health Board, to accept the directorship of penal institutions at a salary of $4000 with residence. He was appointed Jan. 12 and still holds the office. It was during his directorship of penal institutions that the irregularities and overcharges, of which Senator Brunk complained, occurred.

Who is responsible for the irregularities and the graft in the purchase of prison supplies between Jan. 12 and June 17? What are all the facts with regard to the overcharges and the irregularities? Why was an assistant purchasing agent deprived of authority and what was done with him? What were the reasons for action in his case and who directed his activity? Why has no investigation been made of the conditions during that period? Why has there not been full publicity of the facts and why have not steps been taken to protect the public State funds in future by ousting from office whoever was responsible for this crookedness?

Gov. Baker must answer these questions. Concealing and condoning illegality, irregularity and graft in the State's business is the worst possible policy. If Gov. Baker intends to follow it, God save his administration and God help the State.

AS HERBERT SPENCER PUT IT.

Sixty-three years ago Herbert Spencer said:

On both sides of this great controversy (between religion and science), then, truth must exist. An unbiased consideration of its general aspects forces us to conclude that religion, everywhere present as a weft running through the warp of human history, expresses some eternal fact; while it is almost a truism to say of science that it is an organized mass of facts, ever growing, and ever being more completely purified from errors. And if both have bases in the reality of things, then between them there must be a fundamental harmony. It is an incredible hypothesis that there are two orders of truth in absolute and everlasting opposition. * * * He who contemplates the universe from the religious point of view must learn to see that this which we call science is one constituent of the great whole; and as such ought to be regarded with a sentiment like that which the remainder excites. While he who contemplates the universe from the scientific point of view must learn to see that this which we call religion is similarly a constituent of the great whole; and being such, must be treated as a subject of science, with no more prejudice than any other reality.

The pity is that so little progress toward reconciliation of religion and science has been made since Herbert Spencer's time. Intellectual growth is painfully slow, but there need be no despair that the reconciliation of these two great forces will not take place. Mankind's peace of mind demands it.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER.

It is interesting to note that while our agrarian politicians are devising subsidies, Government monopolies and nostrums of every device to pacify our farmers the tillers of the land just across the border in Canada are going ahead and organizing in co-operative societies which will gradually put into their hands the power of regulating supply and demand and of thus influencing prices. That they will profit from the control of distribution facilities and the elimination of middlemen and speculators goes without saying. And that the consumer also will profit from these economies seems probable.

The Co-operative Union of Canada embraces 22 associations including the grain growers, grape growers, turnip growers, berry growers and co-operative creameries. Then there are the United Farmers' Co-operative of Ontario, the Maritime Farmers' Co-operative, the Saskatchewan Pool Elevators, the Federated Co-operative Societies of Quebec, and so on down to the tobacco growers and wool growers.

Authorities on the Grain Marketing Co., the most ambitious experiment in co-operation in this country, which recently suspended operations, and even the enemies of the project, as it was organized, do not believe that its abandonment means the end of farmer co-operation in the United States. It was an instructive experience, and from it the farmers at least derived no losses. With so much activity and success in co-operation just across the border, and with the approach of the end of expectations from political panaceas, the day when the farmers of the land will cease to be the victims of speculators and market manipulators is approaching.

COOLIDGE IN 1928.

John T. Adams of Iowa, who filled in for a short and troubled period as chairman of the Republican National Committee, says that Mr. Coolidge is more popular in the Middle West now than he was in November when he swept the country. The statement, made at Swampscott, where Mr. Adams had been summoned to discuss the state of politics with the President, may be correct. Other observers have said in effect the same thing. The explanation is found in the nation's abounding prosperity.

Should this prosperity continue Mr. Coolidge will doubtless be a candidate in 1928, and politicians like Mr. Adams may be right in declaring that the third-term tradition "will not run against him." Meantime it may be remarked that Mr. Coolidge's second term is still ahead of him. It will not begin actually until the December session of Congress. Prophecies as to Mr. Coolidge's strength in 1928, therefore, may wait upon the results of his administration, the development of his policies and his success or failure in impressing his views upon Congress.

Thus far Mr. Coolidge has shown no capacity for effective leadership. To be sure, he labored under peculiar disadvantages. A President by circumstance instead of choice, he faced a Congress in which his own party, nominally in control, was actually a minority. Those disabilities have disappeared. He is now an elected President and the insurgent element in his party, reduced numerically in the last election, has been morally shattered by the death of La Follette, with nobody qualified by experience, capacity and temperament to take his place. The President should have easier going with the next Congress, provided he has a program to put through.

Mr. Coolidge thus far has been a passive figure in the presidency. Perhaps that is exactly the kind of man the times required. It seems unlikely, though, that inaction in the White House will meet the necessities of the next three years. Even now our prosperity is not universal. The American Woolen Co., for example, has come upon evil days, notwithstanding the excessive "protection" it asked and received from the Fordney-McCumber tariff law. Its recent drastic wage reduction is the culmination of two distressing years which have witnessed the passing of dividends, the depreciation of its stock in the market quotations and the failing public demand for its products. Here is an industry laid low by protection—by import duties on wool that have driven the price of woolen goods beyond the American consumer's ability or willingness to pay. Meanwhile the enormous tax levied on the American people by the tariff law cannot be paid indefinitely. Nobody can predict how soon the country will demand tariff reform, but soon or late it is inevitable.

Then there is the farmer. Agriculture has emerged from the black despair that gripped it—a despair that was brightened just in time to chill the prospects of La Follette's independent candidacy—but agriculture will never be permanently secure or content so long as it is denied the substantial privilege and favor which the Government paternalistically bestows on other interests through the medium of the tariff. There is, too, the funding of the debts owing us upon practical terms to our debtors and the whole vast problem of foreign relations, material and moral, which must be solved with vision and courage. And there is the consolidation of the railroads which the President intends to make the "vital domestic policy of his administration in the next few years," according to the news from Swampscott.

Mr. Coolidge has his work cut out for him. He may perform it, to be sure, with adequate resolution and statesmanship. If he does he will be the only figure on the political horizon in 1928. If he does not the Coolidge myth will be exploded.

RACING IN KENTUCKY.

Once more the Kentucky antiracing faction has met defeat, this time in the State-wide primary which has determined the character of the next Legislature. Heretofore, while the pari-mutuel law has been a constantly recurring issue, it has been more or less in the background. This time, it was the big outstanding issue of the campaign which ended last Saturday. It was a knock-down fight and the horses won.

For two years more, then, Kentucky racing remains in statu quo. The new Legislature will permit the race-horse betting law to remain on the statute books. But this recent decision of Kentucky voters by no means ends the fight. The antiracing crowd is accustomed to defeat, and has proved itself a glutton for punishment.

All disinterested observers of Kentucky politics understand that it is only a question of time before the antiracing crowd wins its fight. Consider the sources of its strength. 1. The fight against the race-horse betting law has been conducted along evangelistic lines. Each year the rural populace, which used to care nothing about racing one way or the other, is being aroused by fiery orators who make their appeals on moral and religious grounds. 2. The farmers are being promised that if they vote against racing their taxes will be lowered. This, supposedly, is to be accomplished by levying heavier taxes upon coal operators.

Thus the antiracing faction is using two of the deadliest weapons in current American politics: fanatical zeal and the pocketbook argument. Behind the scenes cunning and calculating politicians stand ready to reap the fruits of the victory when it comes. Their interest in morality and in moralists extends no further than the point to which they contribute to political success.

Kentucky's most influential newspaper, the Courier-Journal, which recently flopped after being one of the chief defenders of the ancient sport, and numerous church organizations are, wittingly or unwittingly, the allies of the political bosses who are using the racing issue as a stepping stone to power.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"The Nation has just turned 60 years and ought therefore to be old enough to know what it is talking about when it tells us what is in store for us," Mr. Antwine said.

"It thinks the witch-burners have just discovered their power in the United States and that from this on we may expect to learn what life in Europe was like during the Inquisition.

"The witch-burners, so the Nation says, dug up something not long ago that was worth finding out. They had for a long time thundered about desultorily, but were always without any political power. We regarded Salem as a pleasantry, and thought of cotton Mather as a nut. Thus the now-powerful Anti-Saloon League 30 years ago was the Band of Hope.

"What the witch-burners suddenly hit upon is that the politician is a coward. Threatened with political extinction by the reformers if he refuses to support their reforms, he readily sells us out and inflicts upon us whatever the witch-burners will.

"This discovery has completely revolutionized life in the republic. It has taken rule from the hands of a tolerant majority, which had made this the home of freedom, and delivered it into the hands of an intolerant minority.

"The consequence is that the witch-burners are everywhere lighting their fires and gleefully anticipating the reforms they are going to put over. It is to be a political barbecue the like of which history has never seen. The Nation says there will be a flood of bills offered in the spirit of the Tennessee law against evolution when the State Legislatures meet again. It predicts that Kansas will be made to seem worldly by comparison.

"Not a pleasant prospect, is it? Not a cheering thought to recall that we freed ourselves from England, now called the most liberal country in the world, only to turn ourselves over to a self-intolerance of which Europe can have no conception!

"Yet this is what history is. It answers the question raised among us a few days ago when we asked what civilization was doing in the 2500 years since 'Electra' was written. It was out witch-burning."

Sir: That was a fine poem of Harry C. January's entitled "Years." A recent thought persists in spite of its effective image of the ever-recurring birds as a background for the evanescent years.

The birds themselves are subject to the same law of change and in a shorter cycle even than ours. How much more permanent we must appear to the birds when they return than they do to us!

A ST. LOUISAN ABROAD.

ENGLAND.

An Englishman is a human machine in perfect balance. His enthusiasms are deep. He is a combination of calm and courage, of firmness and courtesy, of deference and self-esteem. His interests are varied. He may be great, manufacturer and able archaeologist, at the same time seeing value in both. A physician who is spending his vacation at this remote place surveyed the field of local entomology before coming here and gets from a meadow as much fun as others do from automobile tours. A better doctor for having other interests in life. The ebb and flow of conversation between some of these men is a liberal education. Their hobbies are varied—photography, architecture, birds, brasses, wood carving, stained glass and what not. Nothing sissified about these chaps. Life to them is broad and rich with something more than money-making as its end and purpose. A fireplace and a garden more desirable than an oil burning furnace and a garage. I heard a man telling of a troop ship torpedoed during the war—3500 men aboard on command formed into companies, the boat slowly sinking—company after company was taken off in perfect order, the last to leave patiently waiting, calm, smiling, chatting, no raised voices, very few blanched faces, some few lives lost—of such the world and its seas. Some day someone will write a book entitled "Hotel Hunting I Have Done." It's great sport if you don't take it too seriously. Your train rolls into town, you begin to consider the list of available hostelries, Royal, Crown, Imperial, Palace, Castle, Kings, all equally magnificent in name. Making a decision you pile your luggage into a taxi and the sport begins. Turning into a narrow dingy street or a wide spruce looking avenue may develop varying degrees of hope and despondency, but the experienced hunter knows that these are not reliable signs. You pull up at the entrance of your choice. Shining brass, flowering window boxes, crisp curtains or the lack thereof, should give some clue to inner conditions and comforts, but are often delusive and frequently cover up a contradictory interior.

Frigidity or warmth of reception enters into the game, a hearty wholesouled welcome gives hint of cozy rooms and well-cooked meals; a cold fish-like eye as you sign the register quickens within an uneasy feeling that you, the hunter, have been trapped. A hotel with running water is a real find and the sensation of bringing to the surface a room with bath is like that of landing a record trout or of bagging a deer.

But when you strike it right and after depositing your bags in a dainty room, come down to a steaming dinner immaculately served, then wander into a cosy lounge warmed by a glowing fire that lights up lovely old china and burnished copper, you stretch your legs, light your pipe and contentedly grunt, in the words of Briggs, Oh! ain't it a grand and glorious feeling!

Sir: Now that the Russian soviets have started a "John T. Scopes fund" for the propagation of natural science, the seal of the devil is finally placed upon the doctrine of evolution. Belief in the natural depravity of man is thus shown to be bound up with the politico-economic depravity of those frightful Russians. All things are seen to work together for the greater glory of God and the greater gaiety of nations.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE RADIOBILE.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A DRIVERLESS automobile making its way along Broadway and Fifth avenue in New York, is the latest. It was bound to come and Philadelphia would have welcomed it just as New York did. The radiobile wobbled about in the traffic, took all the chances and ducked them, ending with only one little collision that didn't amount to anything.

Of course, the radiobile is not driverless but the driver sits in another machine and directs its course by wireless and the power transmission is through radio waves. And nothing worked just right on the experimental trip. The "wobbles" were not designed to exhibit directing skill and accuracy in the radio device. They were there because the possessed machine probably felt like all possessed.

The radiobile is not going to be immediately popular as a pleasure vehicle either. What with the directing machine behind carrying the apparatus, chauffeurs standing on the running board and a flotilla of other machines needed to convey the strange contraption, it is bound to be an expensive luxury for some time to come. Nevertheless, the principle and the mechanism of power transmission having been worked out, it is hardly to be doubted that improvements will follow in rapid succession; and if an automobile can be driven and controlled from without, the experiments on radio-directed ships in the sea and the air should reach results at no distant day.

THE OFFICIAL "DRY" PLEDGE.

From the Vancouver Sun.

If officials should take the pledge not to drink, why not insult them further and demand a pledge not to steal?

SEEING THE WRONG SIDE FIRST.

From the Nation's Business.

PEOPLE are divided into two classes by their attitude toward new things.

Some jump at them; others shy at them. Some anticipate their advantages; others perceive their dangers.

When Faraday, in 1832, showed before the British Association at Oxford that a spark could be produced by magnetic induction, a dean of the university who watched the experiment shook his head and said: "I am sorry for it." He then turned and walked away, repeating: "I am sorry for it." As he passed out of the door he turned again and said: "Indeed, I am sorry for it. It is putting new arms into the hands of the incendiary."

Nobody can deny that his apprehensions have been justified. But the learned gentleman overlooked the electric light of the future.

In the time of Charles II a law was enacted to prohibit coaches on the streets of London because of "the destruction caused by their wheels to the paving stones."

There was undoubtedly reason for such legislation. So do trucks nowadays. But it would be better to strengthen the paving than to abolish the trucks.

mately 76 per cent of the men and 60 per cent of the women consistently vote.

On an average, the French vote is slightly above 70 per cent and in many districts much higher. In the recent parliamentary election in Italy, 64 per cent of the total adult population, men and women voted. In Switzerland, the record for years shows better than 75 per cent, and in Canada the average is 70 per cent, as compared to our 50 per cent.

Latin America, where they have to cope with an Indian and negro illiteracy ranging from 40 to 80 per cent, and the United States, are fairly even in this matter of voting. In the last Cuban election and in the recent Mexican election as close to 50 per cent of the qualified voting population was polled as we did in 1920.

Once Leaders, Now Trailers.

Now, the above figures and facts, as compiled by Mr. Michelet, are new, important and authoritative. There is no guess work about them, no easy way of explaining them. Very definitely, they place us, with our average of 50 per cent voting efficiency, at the very bottom of the heap, with even Mexico and Cuba threatening to outdistance us in a few more years. It is a disquieting thing upon which to meditate—that we, who started out to show the world what a democracy really ought to be and how beautifully a great people could govern themselves and how sound an experiment ours was, that we should so far fall back that fully half of our population is so little concerned about its Government, and so slightly interested in our political system that it does not go to the polls at all—that in political intelligence, information and activity we grade with Mexico and the Latin-Americans—far below every nation in our class. The cold truth is that we have slipped. If, from 1880 down to 1896, an average of 80 per cent of American voters voted, why, since 1896, have we been steadily decreasing the proportion until today we can barely claim 50 per cent?

When all allowances are made for the various elements, which for one reason or another are disfranchised, it is still clear that the great bulk of the 50 per cent of nonvoters are persons who fail to vote, not because they cannot vote, but because they will not vote.

It isn't only that they do not vote in the general election, but, what is worse, in very much greater numbers, they do not vote in the primaries, which, under our political system, are infinitely more vital. The primary in this country is really the key to all politics. It is the gate through which 99 per cent of all candidates must pass in order to get on the ticket.

Our rulers are chosen in the last analysis, not by a majority, not even by a majority of a majority, but actually by a majority of an exceedingly small minority.

There is not space here to go into the reasons for the political inertia, indifference and ignorance of the American people toward politics. The fact is no one is certain about the reasons. It can be blamed on the movies, on the newspapers, on the politicians, on the propagandists, on the absorption of business, on the general prosperity, on sports, on any number of things.

Are the Newspapers to Blame?

The favorite place to unload responsibility is on the newspapers and, certainly, an argument can be made against them. It is met, of course, by the answer that the newspapers give the people what they want. Many of those who own and control newspapers today regard that as an adequate reply. It means that their conception of a newspaper is a low one, that their aim in running one is to get circulation and make money uncomplicated by any feeling of responsibility for community, civic more creative and constructive—Leidy was a far keener observer of things, quick at seeing analogies and comparisons, a good visualizer and possessed of good powers of memorizing. Cope busied himself much more with abstract generalizations."

So even if it should prove that Crichton-Browne was right and the blood supply pours more richly into the back rooms of the feminine brains and into the front ones of the masculine, there would be no special ground for humiliation or jubilation. As long as woman is "quicker on the think" than her brother, what should she care if he can more clear-headedly thread his way through the empty mazes of mathematics and metaphysics?

POST-MORTEM GENEROSITY SPREADS.

Since those Philadelphia pioneers formed their strange little society, putting up their own brains as a fraternal pledge to science, the fashion of such post-mortem generosity has gradually spread until on the shelves of the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia are stored more than 1000 cerebral bequests, awaiting comparative study. THE OFFICIAL "DRY" PLEDGE.

From the Vancouver Sun.

If officials should take the pledge not to drink, why not insult them further and demand a pledge not to steal?

SEEING THE WRONG SIDE FIRST.

From the Nation's Business.

PEOPLE are divided into two classes by their attitude toward new things.

Some jump at them; others shy at them. Some anticipate their advantages; others perceive their dangers.

When Faraday, in 1832, showed before the British Association at Oxford that a spark could be produced by magnetic induction, a dean of the university who watched the experiment shook his head and said: "I am sorry for it." He then turned and walked away, repeating: "I am sorry for it." As he passed out of the door he turned again and said: "Indeed, I am sorry for it. It is putting new arms into the hands of the incendiary."

Nobody can deny that his apprehensions have been justified. But the learned gentleman overlooked the electric light of the future.

In the time of Charles II a law was enacted to prohibit coaches on the streets of London because of "the destruction caused by their wheels to the paving stones."

There was undoubtedly reason for such legislation. So do trucks nowadays. But it would be better to strengthen the paving than to abolish the trucks.

Neophobia is a dangerous disease.

Bible Controversy and Dry Law Called U. S. Menace

mately 76 per cent of the men and 60 per cent of the women consistently vote.

On an average, the French vote is slightly above 70 per cent and in many districts much higher. In the recent parliamentary election in Italy, 64 per cent of the total adult population, men and women voted. In Switzerland, the record for years shows better than 75 per cent, and in Canada the average is 70 per cent, as compared to our 50 per cent.

Latin America, where they have to cope with an Indian and negro illiteracy ranging from 40 to 80 per cent, and the United States, are fairly even in this matter of voting. In the last Cuban election and in the recent Mexican election as close to 50 per cent of the qualified voting population was polled as we did in 1920.

Once Leaders, Now Trailers.

Now, the above figures and facts, as compiled by Mr. Michelet, are new, important and authoritative. There is no guess work about them, no easy way of explaining them. Very definitely, they place us, with our average of 50 per cent voting efficiency, at the very bottom of the heap, with even Mexico and Cuba threatening to outdistance us in a few more years. It is a disquieting thing upon which to meditate—that we, who started out to show the world what a democracy really ought to be and how beautifully a great people could govern themselves and how sound an experiment ours was, that we should so far fall back that fully half of our population is so little concerned about its Government, and so slightly interested in our political system that it does not go to the polls at all—that in political intelligence, information and activity we grade with Mexico and the Latin-Americans—far below every nation in our class. The cold truth is that we have slipped. If, from 1880 down to 1896, an average of 80 per cent of American voters voted, why, since 1896, have we been steadily decreasing the proportion until today we can barely claim 50 per cent?

When all allowances are made for the various elements, which for one reason or another are disfranchised, it is still clear that the great bulk of the 50 per cent of nonvoters are persons who fail to vote, not because they cannot vote, but because they will not vote.

It isn't only that they do not vote in the general election, but, what is worse, in very much greater numbers, they do not vote in the primaries, which, under our political system, are infinitely more vital. The primary in this country is really the key to all politics. It is the gate through which 99 per cent of all candidates must pass in order to get on the ticket.

Our rulers are chosen in the last analysis, not by a majority, not even by a majority of a majority, but actually by a majority of an exceedingly small minority.

There is not space here to go into the reasons for the political inertia, indifference and ignorance of the American people toward politics. The fact is no one is certain about the reasons. It can be blamed on the movies, on the newspapers, on the politicians, on the propagandists, on the absorption of business, on the general prosperity, on sports, on any number of things.

Are the Newspapers to Blame?

The favorite place to unload responsibility is on the newspapers and, certainly, an argument can be made against them. It is met, of course, by the answer that the newspapers give the people what they want. Many of those who own and control newspapers today regard that as an adequate reply. It means that their conception of a newspaper is a low one, that their aim in running one is to get circulation and make money uncomplicated by any feeling of responsibility for community, civic and political standards, or any desire to supply real moral or mental leadership.

There are, of course, some notable exceptions in every section, but it is none the less true that a majority of the papers of the country are incredibly common and coarse. Away from the Atlantic seaboard, amazingly few make any pretense at reasonably full reporting of political matters, state or national. Interpretive and analytical articles on public men and public issues are utterly unknown in the great bulk of newspaper offices. It is further true that the farther you get away from the Atlantic coast the scantier and sketchier becomes the Washington news in the daily press. Here again there are exceptions—such as the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Kansas City Star and the Detroit News, but it holds good for the majority of them.

When it is considered that the newspapers constitute the only channel through which the people as a whole can get information of any sort, and when the power and influence of the press is appreciated, it does seem as if part of the responsibility for the terrific popular indifference to politics properly rests on them. However, the real answer to the charge that, in America, it is the fault of the newspapers, is that the British papers, with the largest circulation, are just as trashy and tawdry as the worst we have here. Yet they print more politics than ours do because the people want more. It is more or less of a puzzle. Nobody can be certain about the reasons for our unfavorable comparison, in the matter of voting, with the rest of the world. It is enough to know that the facts are true without having to explain why they are true. There is, however, one basic thing of which we can be sure—that the evils of politics in every community are exactly equal to the indifference of the voters to the primaries. That is a provable proposition and it is about the only thing you can prove about the situation except that it exists.

Questions to Answer.

Actually, when the vital nature of politics to every individual is considered, when it is reflected that it touches the lives of us all directly and indirectly in scores of ways, and that there is no possible escape from its influence and effect, the steady lessening of political clarity, political interest and activity among the masses of the people, and the unfavorable light in which the Michelet figures show us in comparison with other nations, is a distant reflection upon our intelligence as a people. There isn't any doubt about that.

It raises a number of interesting questions.

Is the country too big to govern itself well?

Is there a point in the development of a democracy where it becomes too unwieldy to work as such?

Is the United States approaching that point and are we entering a transition period?

Through the force and solidity of the governmental machinery that has been seasoned by centuries we can keep going under existing conditions even if they become more extreme—for an indefinite time. Of course, there is going to be no collapse and, of course, no one need feel unduly alarmed about the country's future. It will wobble out of these depressing conditions as it has wobbled out of many others.

However, it does make a joke out of the good old doctrine that "the people rule" with which we have for so long kidded ourselves. Also, it renders rather ridiculous, in the face of the facts, the idea that this is the most enlightened and intelligent nation of them all. It isn't a fatal disease—this political inertia complicated by religious blindness and bigotry with which the people are afflicted—but it ought not to make any thoughtful man happy to think about it.

Woman Bequest of Brain Renews Dispute on Sex

more creative and constructive—Leidy was a far keener observer of things, quick at seeing analogies and comparisons, a good visualizer and possessed of good powers of memorizing. Cope busied himself much more with abstract generalizations."

So even if it should prove that Crichton-Browne was right and the blood supply pours more richly into the back rooms of the feminine brains and into the front ones of the masculine, there would be no special ground for humiliation or jubilation. As long as woman is "quicker on the think" than her brother, what should she care if he can more clear-headedly thread his way through the empty mazes of mathematics and metaphysics?

POST-MORTEM GENEROSITY SPREADS.

Since those Philadelphia pioneers formed their strange little society, putting up their own brains as a fraternal pledge to science, the fashion of such post-mortem generosity has gradually spread until on the shelves of the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia are stored more than 1000 cerebral bequests, awaiting comparative study. McGraw Hall at Cornell, where the Cornell Brain Association has fostered a similar movement, is said to be equally well endowed with selected specimens, each of which may add something to our knowledge of the delicate and complex structure where consciousness resides.

So far as is recorded, Mrs. Gardener is the first woman to make such disposition of her brain, though almost 20 years ago a Miss Louise Randolph, gifted with unusual powers of memory, was reported as promising her brain to the Anthropometric Association on her death, and just at the outbreak of the World War press dispatches from Athens, Ga., told how Miss Celeste Parrish, a teacher and pedagogist, had sold her brain for $40,000 for examination after death. It was said she could read a chapter once from any volume handed her and then repeat it word for word.

No two human brains are exactly alike, according to brain experts. In the matter of weight alone the range of variation is, comparatively speaking, enormous. While the "normal," or average, weight of the male brain is 48 ounces, that of Turgeneff, the famous Russian novelist, weighed more than 74 ounces.

12 Heaviest Brains Recorded.

This is the heaviest brain of which there is any record. After that in order, according to list prepared by Dr. Spitzka, follows:

Joseph Bouny, French jurist, 68.5 ounces; George Cuvier, Franco-German naturalist, 64.7 ounces; E. H. Knight, American mechanician, 64.2 ounces; Franz X. Kraus, German theologian, 63.3 ounces; John Abercrombie, Scottish physician, 63.2 ounces; Benjamin F. Butler, American soldier and politician, 62.2 ounces; Edward Olney, American mathematician, 60.2 ounces; Herman Levi, German composer, 59.8 ounces; A. Winchell, American geologist, 58.9 ounces; W. M. Thackaray, English novelist, 58.6 ounces, and Rudolph Lenz, German composer, 58.5 ounces.

These are the 12 heaviest brains ever weighed and recorded. All belonged to men who won fame, national or international, ephemeral or lasting. On the face of such a list it might seem that the heavy brain is the big brain, intellectually rated.

But lower on such a roster would be found names of men at least equally illustrious, whose brains were weighed after their demise. That of Daniel Webster weighed 63.8 ounces; that of Napoleon 53.1 ounces.

The brain of Louis Agassiz, Franco-American naturalist and still world famous, weighed 52.9 ounces. Charles Babbage, one of the ablest of English mathematicians, had a brain weighing 49.8 ounces, or just about that of the average man. The brain of Baron Liebeg, German chemist, tipped the scales at only 47.8 ounces. If unprecise measurements are to be credited, the active fertile brain of Walt Whitman, the "good gray poet," weighed only 45.3 ounces, and Louis Gambetta, French statesman of renown, got along with only 41 ounces of gray matter.

Quality as Well as Bulk.

Quality evidently counts as well as bulk. When the brain of the famous German linguist, Dr. George Sauerkein, who wrote and spoke 50 languages, was examined after his death, there was found "nothing to distinguish it from that of a country lout who cannot speak his mother tongue correctly."

On the other hand, the anatomist who removed the brain of Anatole France, intellectual and artistic giant of his generation, found it the "most beautiful brain one could dream of seeing. The convolutions were marvelous in their number, variety and delicacy of design. It is a unique specimen."

One of the strangest of all bequests to the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia was the brain of Jules Rosendale, labor writer, who in his will expressed a wish to have the scientists find out, if possible, why alcohol did not affect his mind. His life long, he said, he had drunk copiously and never once had felt its effect. The brain proved to be wholly normal in appearance and structure.

There are many puzzling secrets hidden in these few pounds of cerebral tissue which make the difference between humanity and all things else in creation. And one of these secrets Mrs. Gardener determined to help uncover.

Have men any right to assume they have more brains and better brains than their sisters?

"CRISIS IN COAL NEW MENACE ABROAD AND HERE," LLOYD GEORGE

and in 1912 a serious strike resulted. In 1921 another strike occurred for the same reason and lasted for months, but the owners were not persuaded, by these happenings, to pull themselves together to increase the efficiency of their business and use every expedient for cheapening production.

If, this time, the trouble has the effect of forcing the industry to reorganize, it will be all to the good. If they can be induced to save overhead charges by amalgamation, to utilize power to better advantage, to improve equipment and concentrate upon more accessible and better seams, there is some hope. Royalties, too, must be tackled. They are tributes levied on the industry by the land monopolist; the only capitalist who contributes nothing to the development. The commissioners unanimously agree that these imposts are responsible for some of the trouble.

The Liberal party in England have good reason, to congratulate themselves that the recommendations of this impartial committee, appointed by the Government, are, in the main, on the lines of the report made by a committee of Liberals last year and published under the name of "Coal and Power." This has brought that report into greater prominence than ever. The party made no effort, after publication of the report, to press it upon the public attention and it has arisen now into visibility on the crest of an upheaval without any effort at all being made by its authors or their party to give publicity to it. The two great independent publicists of the Unionist party, St. Loe Strachey and J. L. Garvin, welcomed it on its appearance. Their perspicacity has been justified by the event. The Socialist ministry of the day received it with a sneer and the Conservative leaders with slight contempt. Events will now compel them to legislate on those lines, and if they have not the courage to do so Britain may well glide into revolution.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

(Since this article was writen, the House of Commons has granted the Government's request for $50,000,000 to pay a subsidy to coal mines. The Government subsidy averted a strike set for July 31. The Government subsidy to the mines, to enable them to pay wages which owners said they could not afford, will continue to May 1 and the Government will maintain some measure of control over the coal mines.)

John C. Hall, who formerly conducted the John C. Hall Realty Co. here and in East St. Louis, died at Columbus, O., early yesterday. Details of the cause have not been learned here, but he had been ill for a week.

Hall, who was 75 years old, was born in Carrollton, Ky., and resided here for 40 years, until he went to Columbus four years ago to make his home with his daughters, Mrs. R. R. Lippincott and Mrs. [illegible] Sparrow. Hall was a member of St. John's M. E. Church throughout his residence here and was a past master of Tuscan Masonic lodge. Another daughter, Mrs. O. L. Houts, resides at Santa Rosa, Cal., and there is a granddaughter residing here, Mrs. R. Y. Woodward, of the Eugene Field Apartments. Hall is survived also by three brothers and a sister.

The funeral will be held here at 4 p. m. tomorrow, from an undertaking establishment at 3621 [illegible] street, with burial at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Emma Wenzel Estate $104,000

Mrs. Emma Wenzel, 922 Kingshighway Park, who died June [illegible], left an estate valued at $104,772.67 as shown by an inventory filed yesterday. She bequeathed the bulk of her property to her five children—Fred Wenzel, Martin Wenzel, Mrs. Tillie W. Richling, Mrs. Rose Hedding and Mrs. Marie Ridgway. Mrs. Wenzel was the widow of Herman Wenzel.

HIGH SCHOOLS FOR NEGROES, EAST OF GRAND, ASKED FOR Senior and Junior Institutions Requested of Board of Education by Ministers' Council.

STATEMENT ON SUBJECT PRESENTED

Restoration of Seventh and Eighth Grades to Elementary Buildings Now Without Them Also Sought.

The Board of Education has been requested by the Negro Interdenominational Ministers' Council to provide a senior and a junior high school east of Grand boulevard and to restore the seventh and eighth grades to elementary schools for negroes now without them.

A similar request was made of the board in 1922 by the Central School Patron's Association, an organization of negro professional and business men. Last Thursday a committee from the ministers' council conferred with Superintendent of Instruction Maddox and his assistants, and presented a statement on the subject.

Cites "Crying Need."

"There is a crying need for another senior high school for negro youths living east of Grand boulevard," the statement reads. "Between sixty and seventy thousand of our group live east of Grand. This section will remain densely populated by them because it is a great tenement district and will remain such for years to come. The reasons are patent. The large industries between the river and Grand and those in the growing factory centers on the East Side will require negro labor, who will naturally live as near to their work as possible.

"Most of the large negro churches and grade schools are located east of Grand. As there are clearly two well-defined groups of negro population—that east of Grand and that west of Grand, each group ought to fare alike in school privileges. A high school east of Grand is simple justice to hundreds of colored children in that section."

Attention Called to Sites.

The Board is asked also to establish a junior high school for negroes east of Grand, if it is the policy of the board to extend the junior high system in St. Louis. Attention is called to the fact that the board owns a site for either school, or both, on Laclede avenue.

A request is made that the seventh and eighth grades transferred from most of the elementary

STATEMENT ON SUBJECT PRESENTED

Restoration of Seventh and Eighth Grades to Elementary Buildings Now Without Them Also Sought.

The Board of Education has been requested by the Negro Interdenominational Ministers' Council to provide a senior and a junior high school east of Grand boulevard and to restore the seventh and eighth grades to elementary schools for negroes now without them.

A similar request was made of the board in 1922 by the Central School Patron's Association, an organization of negro professional and business men. Last Thursday a committee from the ministers' council conferred with Superintendent of Instruction Maddox and his assistants, and presented a statement on the subject.

Cites "Crying Need."

"There is a crying need for another senior high school for negro youths living east of Grand boulevard," the statement reads. "Between sixty and seventy thousand of our group live east of Grand. This section will remain densely populated by them because it is a great tenement district and will remain such for years to come. The reasons are patent. The large industries between the river and Grand and those in the growing factory centers on the East Side will require negro labor, who will naturally live as near to their work as possible.

"Most of the large negro churches and grade schools are located east of Grand. As there are clearly two well-defined groups of negro population—that east of Grand and that west of Grand, each group ought to fare alike in school privileges. A high school east of Grand is simple justice to hundreds of colored children in that section."

Attention Called to Sites.

The Board is asked also to establish a junior high school for negroes east of Grand, if it is the policy of the board to extend the junior high system in St. Louis. Attention is called to the fact that the board owns a site for either school, or both, on Laclede avenue.

A request is made that the seventh and eighth grades transferred from most of the elementary schools for negroes east of Grand to the John Marshall School, 4342 Lucky street, be restored this fall to save time and money for the pupils. During the last seven yers, it is estimated, pupils in these two grades have spent $85,000 to $95,000 in carfare to and from the Marshall school. Last year 77 per cent of the 1300 pupils at that school resided east of Grand.

In the event the board does not restore these two grades to elementary schools, so negro children may attend school in their own neighborhoods, the request is made that their car-fare be paid out of school funds.

"For the last seven years, since Marshall has been operating, at least two-thirds of the children living east of Grand, on account of carfare and long distance, have been able only to secure a sixth grade training, or, at most, the seventh grade," the statement continues. "In times past when the eighth grade was in the school nearest to where the children lived, between 80 and 90 per cent would finish the eight grade.

"Present conditions tend to blight the minds of our children, giving such a trend to their characters that our juvenile delinquency and crime are on the increase, for which the community is paying dearly."

O'Brien Funeral Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. William H. O'Brien, who died at her home, 3846A Cleveland avenue, yesterday from heart disease, will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery. Mrs. O'Brien, who was 65 years old, is survived by her husband, William H. O'Brien, an attorney in the Central National Bank Building; two sons, the Rev. Father William H. O'Brien Jr., assistant pastor of St. Philip Neri's Catholic Church, and James J. O'Brien; and three daughters, Mrs. John Boland, Loretta O'Brien and Catherine O'Brien.

SUIT TO BLOCK ERECTION OF STORE BUILDING IS HEARD

Controversy Involving Property on Newberry Terrace Taken Under Advisement.

A suit filed by Nathan Fisher of 4704 Newberry terrace, to enjoin Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leventhal from permitting the erection of a store building on property owned by them at 4700 Newberry terrace, was taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Rosskopf.

The suit sets forth that the property is located in a subdivision laid out 35 years ago under restrictions confining the tract to strictly residential purposes and excluding stores or business of any kind. The defendants, it was stated, plan to rent the proposed store building for use as a delicatessen shop.

The defense contends the restriction against business has been waived through use of other property in the same subdivision for business purposes. It was pointed out that the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, at Taylor avenue and Hodiamont tracks, is in this subdivision as well as stores and other similar places in the same tract. Further, it was contended, some of the property owners have used premises in the subdivision for boarding and rooming houses. Another defense urged in court was that the character of the district in question has changed so that now the subdivision is in the heart of a business section.

Market St. Merchants Organize.

Merchants on Market street between Twelfth boulevard and Ewing avenue, and on adjacent side streets, have formed the Market Street District Business Men's Association, to work for civic and commercial improvements in that district. Another meeting to complete the organization will be held in two weeks, when officers will be elected.

'SUNSHINE SAMMY,' NEGRO BOY FILM ACTOR, IN ST. LOUIS

Droll Member of "Our Gang" Comedies Is at Booker Washington Theater.

"Sunshine Sammy," negro boy movie actor, is appearing in person at the Booker Washington Theater, on Market street, this week.

In real life "Sunshine Sammy" is Frederick Ernest Morrison. He is known to movie fans as the droll little colored boy of mischievous innocence and prankish smile in "Our Gang," which have made him a comedian among the screen celebrities. In his stage act he appears with his "buddy" and a young woman, the trio presenting a song and dance program, ending with "Sammy's" song hit, "That's Why They Call Me Shine."

ADAPTO SHOES
for STOUT WOMEN

The weariness and discomfort that come from swollen, burning feet during these long, warm days are more often due to the shoes you wear than to the actual heat. Especially is this true with stout women, whose activities are even more over-taxing.

There is a way out! A way to secure for yourself the summertime enjoyment shared by slender women for whom the thermometer holds no terrors.

Slip your feet into a pair of comfortable, perfectly-fitting ADAPTO Shoes and notice the difference right from the start. You will be lighter on your feet; walk and stand with comfortable grace and, at the same time, enjoy the knowledge that you are smartly shod.

If you suffer from any manner of foot ailment, visit our Foot Service Department for a free consultation. This completely equipped department is the only one of its kind in this city and is under the constant supervision of Dr. B. Hunnington, Foot Specialist. Our service also includes the professional supervision of shoe-fittings, free upon request.

Railroad Seeks Connection With St. Louis for Freight Traffic Only.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Tentative plans have been outlined by the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad for a direct connection with St. Louis. Only freight would be carried over this route.

Use of the Litchfield & Madison Railroad through a junction at Staunton, Ill., would enable the Northwestern to run its freight trains into St. Louis.

"We have tentative plans drawn up and hope to carry them through for a direct connection with St. Louis," said President Sargent. "The proposal will come before our board of directors next month and if they approve we will seek to acquire the use of the Litchfield & Madison route by lease."

Sargent explained the plan did not contemplate operating passenger trains into St. Louis, but said that if the lease of the Litchfield & Madson route went through his company would concentrate on freight business.

The plan, President Sargent said, involved the use of about 30 miles of track of the Litchfield & Madison road, from Benld, Ill., to East St. Louis, the construction of about three and one-half miles of connecting track by the Chicago & Northwestern, and a one-mile connecting link by the Litchfield & Madison. No compensation except package rights would be involved, he explained. It is understood here that directors of the Litchfield & Madison already have acted favorably on the plan, and if approved by the Northwestern's directors it will be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for its approval.

PIERCE DENIES RESPONSIBILITY FOR NORTH SIDE NASH FAILURE

Former Head of Defunct Company Is Returned to St. Louis to Face Charges of Fraud.

Lee M. Pierce, organizer and head of the bankrupt North Side Nash Co., who has been indicted for alleged fraud in obtaining a loan of $1699 from the Remedial System of Loaning, returned to St. Louis from Miami, Fla., Friday, in custody of Detective Sergeant Agee.

Pierce denied responsibility for the company's failure, and asserted the charge against him should have been settled in a civil suit, rather than a criminal action. Since going to Florida "broke" last January, he said, he has prospered, and he intends to return there at the first opportunity.

Lieut. Agee also arrested Joseph F. Peck in Miami, but Peck obtained his freedom on $2000 bond, pending a hearing by the Florida Supreme Court on his application for a writ of habeas corpus. Peck is charged with obtaining $6000 by fraud from Louis Fishman, 3417 North Ninth street.

COLLECTOR HELD UP IN WEST END AND ROBBED OF $200

Intercepted as He Leaves Kroger Store by Three Men Who Take His Coupe.

Three robbers, one with a revolver, intercepted Roy McGinnis, 4447A De Tonty street, collector for the Kroger grocery stores, as he emerged from one of the branches at 6002 Pershing avenue, about 2 p. m. yesterday, ordered him into his Ford coupe into which they crowded, and commanded him to drive west. A block away, they ordered him to halt and surrender his collections, about $200, after which they ejected him from the car and drove away.

Bernard Goldman, 1479 Clara avenue, collector for an insurance agency in the Buder Building, reported to the police that he was halted at noon yesterday by a negro, near 2400 Biddle street. The negro, he said, held his hand menacingly in his coat pocket and forced him to surrender his collections, amounting to $56.

Miss Mary Hunt Turner Weds Felix Thomas in New York City

GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, the best known, next to Trinity, of all the New York Episcopal churches, and built many years ago in the heart of the metropolis, was the scene yesterday afternoon of the wedding of Miss Mary Hunt Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Fitzhugh Turner of 4943 Lindell boulevard, St. Louis, and Felix Thomas of New York.

The arrangements were simple. The guests were limited to the two families and there were no attendants. The Rev. Clarence H. Horner performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Turner went East for the event, as did Mrs. Montreville Cogswell of Williamsport, Pa., a sister of the bride and Mrs. Alfred Thomas of Dayton, O., mother of the bridegroom. An informal supper followed at the home of Mrs. N. L. Drake, aunt of Mrs. Thomas, 1246 Madison avenue, who lent the house to the Turner family until after the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will sail Wednesday for the West Indies on their wedding trip and will make their home in New York. The bride attended Mary Institute and Stuart Hall, Staunton, Va. Mr. Thomas is a graduate of Cornell University and served overseas during the war.

A mid-summer wedding of interest which took place Thursday morning was that of Miss Marian Katherine Thiebes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Thiebes of 3242 Longfellow boulevard, and Andrew J. Moore, son of Mrs. L. J. Moore. The ceremony was performed at the Immaculate Conception Church by the Rev. Father O'Connor, and was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Thiebes home. Mr. and Mrs. William Bramman, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Moore were matron of honor and best man, respectively The bride was gowned simply in flesh colored chiffon, beaded, and her hat of the same material was adorned with a spray of orange blossoms. Her flowers were pink rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Bramman wore a lavendar chiffon gown and hat. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will be at the Commodore Hotel in New York for a few days before going to the North Shore of Massachusetts. They will make their home temporarily at the Forest Park Hotel on their return.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Jessie Rebecca Jarvis, daughter of Mrs. W. T. Long of Webster Groves, and Dr. Ernest L. Coffin of St. Louis. The marriage will take place Oct. 3 at the home of the bride's mother. Miss Jarvis is a former resident of Kansas and studied music in Kansas City until her removal to St. Louis a year ago. Dr. Coffin formerly made his home in Maine. He attended Cornell University for three years and completed his course at Washington University, after which he specialized in England.

Mrs. Adolphus Meyer, 3954 Flora boulevard, announced the engagement of her daughter, Dorothy, to Oliver Robert Kraehe at a small bridge yesterday afternoon. Mr. Kraehe is a graduate of Washington University Law School and a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Of interest to society here and in the East is the engagement of Miss Emily Milliken, daughter of Mrs. John T. Milliken of the Forest Park Hotel, and J. D. Wooster Lambert, millionaire sportsman, which was announced Tuesday by Mrs. Milliken in Denver, where she and her daughter are spending a few weeks. Mr. Lambert motored west to join them a few days ago.

Miss Milliken is a graduate of Mary Institute and Mme. Skertin's School in New York. She made her debut three seasons ago and is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Lambert is a Princeton graduate and a member of the St. Louis Country, Racquet and Noonday clubs. The wedding will take place in the fall, and Mr. and Mrs. Lambert will occupy the spacious home which he is building on the St. Louis Country Club grounds.

Washington People Guest of Coolidge On the North Shore

Summer Pause in Social Affairs at Capital Broken by Reception in Honor of Anniversary of Bolivian Independence.

NEWLYWEDS LIKE MOTORCYCLE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Motor cycles are rapidly acquiring the name of "bridemobiles" in Germany, due to the fact that this summer's crop of honeymoon-couples is finding the motorcycle the cheapest and most convenient method of making the wedding journey and seeing the beauties of the German country.

The honeymooning bride usually rides perched upon an extra seat behind her husband.

German newlyweds enthusiastically declare that the "bridemobile" renders them independent of train schedules, enables them to break their journey wherever they please and permits them to make stopovers in small towns off the beaten path where they can enjoy their honeymoon undisturbed by noise and bustle.

Paris says 'shorter skirts'

Reduce your ankles and legs with DR FOLT'S soap

Any fat woman can wear short skirts IF she reduces her legs with the simple, easy formula given below—

Go today to a good drug or department store, buy a cake of DR. FOLTS' SOAP for 50c, or three cakes for $1.20, and use it every night and morning for a few days. All you need to do is to make a good lather, rub it on fat parts you want to reduce then wash off.

DR. FOLTS' SOAP is a scientific formula containing reducing ingredients which are absorbed by the tissues and melt away fat almost under your very eyes! Guaranteed to make your skin smooth and beautiful and not to leave tissues flabby or wrinkled after the reducing has taken place.

DR. FOLTS' SOAP when used as per directions never fails—two to three cakes generally are sufficient for wonderful results, but save yourself from disappointment—DO NOT ACCEPT A CHEAPER IMITATION. ASK FOR THE GENUINE REDUCING SOAP CALLED DR. FOLTS'.

If your druggist does not carry Dr. Folt's Soap in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check to the Scientific Research Labs., 1841 Broadway, New York City.

LUNCHEONS, OTHER AFFAIRS OF WEEK

Mrs. Phillips McAuliffe of 5591 Page boulevard, gave a luncheon Tuesday in honor of Mrs. John Gleason, of Chicago, and her daughter Virginia, who were her guests. Those present were Mmes. R. Sullivan, R. Fitzgerald, J. O'Leary, J. McAuliffe, J. Barry and Misses B. Sullivan and Al Conlisk.

A party given on the steamer J. S., last Thursday included Mmes. J. H. Bleakney, F. H. Britton, H. R. Culling, L. E. Wilcox, George P. Dorris, Brandt Leitch, W. B. McSorley, W. B. Stanza, and Mrs. Emile Grimmer and Mrs. F. J. Stimson, the honor guests, who, with their families, will go to Chicago soon, to make their homes.

Mrs. John Cleary, of 6407 Suburban avenue, entertained last week with her mother, Mrs. Joseph Bourette, in honor of Mrs. Walter S. Gifford, of New Orleans, formerly of this city. The afternoon was spent in playing euchre. Luncheon was served. Many old friends were present to bid Mrs. Gifford farewell before leaving for home next week.

The Case Committee of the Big Sisters are holding their bimonthly meeting next Tuesday, in the Big Sister office, 805 Equitable Building. The seven members of this committee are doing active Big Sister work.

Miss Margaret Skow and Mrs. Joseph Dambacher gave a bridge shower yesterday at the latter's home at 3434A St. Vincent avenue, in honor of Miss Alice V. Nuss, whose marriage to Harold Kreyling of 3541A California avenue will take place in September. Miss Nuss is from Bloomfield, N. J., but has lived in St. Louis for several years. Those present were: Misses Dorothy and Gladys Kreyling, Hilda Hyatt, Adelaide Strubbe, Henrietta Rubin, Adele Graf, Aetna Juede, Tress Schults, Louies Sammeree and Margaret Skow and Mmes. D. Our Annual August Sale of

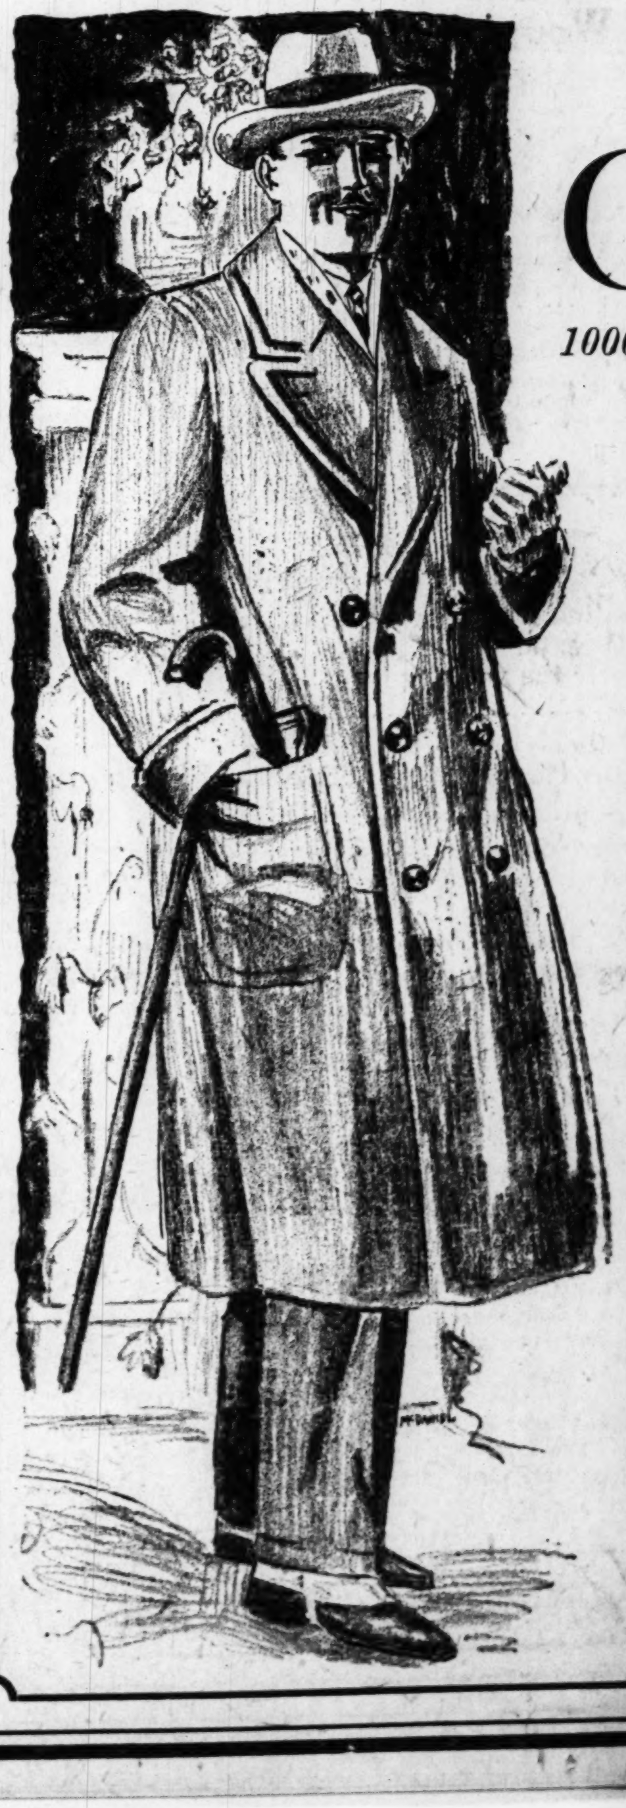
Men's and Young Men's Winter

Overcoats



1000 Overcoats at One Remarkable Price

$27

Overcoats From Leading Makers

Several of the most prominent American overcoat manufacturers co-operated with us for this great event. We went to them during their dull season and placed these orders when they were in need of work to keep their factory forces intact. As a result we secured big concessions, making it possible for us to offer these Overcoats far below the prices that will prevail next Winter.

Every garment in this sale was made according to our exacting specifications. We selected the newest advance styles and demand all the finer details of workmanship. As a result we have the greatest collection of Winter Overcoats that we have ever displayed. Every garment in this sale made of fine all-wool fabrics—plaid backs and through-and-through fabrics.

Showing the new Double Breasted Ulsters, and Ulsterettes with ½ belts and belts all around; also the new Single and Double Breasted Loose English Styles draped straight from shoulder without belts.

We have the one you want—and we'll keep it for you—if you hurry.

Pay $5 Now

—and either have your Overcoat laid away for you or begin immediately to pay a small amount each week until it is paid for.

Either way you will be sure of a fine brand-new stylish Overcoat when Overcoat weather comes around.

French Repulse Syrians.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—A Havas dispatch from Beirut, Syria, officially reports that the French military authorities have regained control of the Jebel Druse region south of Damascus where Syrian rebels a few days ago attacked a French detachment and were reported to have captured Suediah, principal city of the district. The dispatch adds that the rebels surprised a French convoy, but that a punitive column accompanying the convoy repulsed the natives.

RECENT MARRIAGES OF ST. LOUISANS

Announcement has been received in St. Louis of the marriage of Miss Charlotte Thalleker, daughter of Mrs. J. Thalleker of Webster Groves, and Edward C. Bardwell of 37 Vandeventer place, which took place July 25 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Manley, cousins of the bride, in Chicago, with whom she made her home. She is a graduate of McKinley High School. Mr. Bardwell attended the University of Illinois and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon. Mr. and Mrs. Bardwell will make their home in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Purvin of Chicago announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Janet Fredericka, and Clarence Edwin Mange of 3011 Longfellow place.

Miss Florence Keating of Marcus avenue became the bride of Michael Kleinkort of Raymond avenue on Wednesday, July 29, in the Church of the Visitation. The bride's brother, the Rev. George Keating, performing the ceremony. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary Dwyer, while Mr. Kleinkort's borther served as groomsman.

The bride's gown was of white satin and georgette embroidered in crystal beads. She carried bridal roses and valley lilies. The bridesmaid was attired in yellow crepe Romaine and carried sunburst roses. Immediately after the ceremony the couple departed on a honeymoon tour through the West.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Rose Steinberg and William Kohn, son of Mrs. Sarah Kohn of 5624 Maple avenue, Sunday, Aug. 2. The couple have departed on a wedding trip to Canada and California.

Miss Lois Kester Kercheval became the bride of Julius J. Schnatmeier at the home of the bride's father, Joseph C. Kercheval, on North Fifth street, St. Charles, Mo., last week. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Olin J. Gary of Webster Groves, preceded by Donald McKee's violin solo, "The Lamplit Hour." Mrs. Harry Gray played Lohengrin's chorus for the procession.

The bride was attired in gold lace over canary satin and carried an old-fashioned shower bouquet of asters and delhpiums. The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Kercheval, sister of the bride, wore a costume of gold lace over green georgette and wore a corsage of tea roses. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Robert Schnatmeier.

The bride, formerly a teacher in St. Charles, now is connected with the American Educational Society of St. Louis. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Schnatmeier departed for their honeymoon trip, which will include Tennessee, Mississippi and the Ozarks. They will be at home at 209 North Fifth street, after Aug. 15.

Mrs. Augusta Norden of 3803 McRee avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Helen, and Joseph Frederick Parsons, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Parsons, on Saturday morning, Aug. 1, at 9 o'clock. Miss Idella Norden and Arthur R. Parsons were the only attendants.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate families and relatives at Bevo Mill. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Chicago and on their return will reside at 3657 Gasconade avenue.

Confesses Killing His Wife.

KOUNTZE, Tex., Aug. 8.—Sam Hair, farmer, surrendered to Hardin County officers yesterday following the death of his wife at their home, nine miles north of Silsbee. Hair confessed, officers said, that he beat his wife with a chair and then shot her through the back following a quarrel.

Autumn Frock Arrivals

Nowhere is the arrival of Fall so apparent as in Sonnenfeld's Costume Salon, where every trend of the new mode is portrayed in scores of Fall and Winter Frocks—duplicates of those being shown on Fifth Avenue.

Satin continues its bid for popularity, with tailored long sleeves, bodices slightly molded and skirts flaring. Capelets and back fullness appear. Cloth Frocks are particularly good, emphasizing the smartness of the tailored line. Black, purple, pencil blue and new shades of tan are conspicuous. Prices

FAT PEOPLE!

HERE IS SOMETHING REAL

A New Discovery!

A Pleasant Reducing Chewing Gum

which safely takes off fat at the rate of several pounds a week. Nothing to take Internally — No Diets — Dangerous Drugs — Exercises.

"Silph" gives lasting relief from excess FAT—brings back your figure to youthful slenderness.

Through a most marvelous recent discovery scientists have been able to incorporate the extract of sea plants known for years as wonderful reducers into a delicious, refreshing chewing gum called "Silph"—Doctors—medical authorities, and grateful users, who had been burdened with obesity for years, are amazed at the quick and astonishing results produced by "Silph" in most obstinate cases where everything else seemed to have failed.

The above picture of Mrs. N. of Brooklyn shows you what Silph Reducing Gum has done for a woman who had been overburdened with fat for years and years. Today she is back to her normal weight. All she did was to chew Silph Reducing Gum for a few weeks and here is the result. You can do the same—already hundreds are reducing with Silph everyday.

The moment you start chewing Silph you feel a wonderful change in your system—stomach and intestinal troubles vanish—no more pains or aches—through the flow of saliva mixed with the gastric juices and these extract of sea plants, Silph eliminates from your system certain elements which causes for FAT and you will be amazed how easily and quickly you can lose all excess weight.

Silph is not a drug, nor a laxative, but a pleasant reducer in candy form. What could be more pleasant than to chew two or three pieces of gum a day and know that your excess fat is gradually and surely going for good.

Silph not only appeals to people already overburdened with excess fat but to those who have a tendency to obesity. It is a wonderful way to prevent FAT to accumulate on the figure—it is harmless and recognized as a wonderful tonic—recommended to men, women and children, not only for reducing, but to do away with all worn out, tired feeling—Silph sells for 50 cents a box, enough for one week at all drug stores. BEWARE of imitations; "Silph" is the real thing! On sale at any of Speckart Bros.', Enderle, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson's, Kranson Bros.' or Johnson Bros.' Drug Stores. If your druggist can not supply you, you can buy Silph direct from the Silph Medical Co., 9 W. 60th St., N. Y. City. Send one dollar for a two full weeks supply. It is enough to show wonderful results.

Heart Beats After Breathing Stops.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 8.—A case that was puzzling physicians today resulted last night in the death of Florence Asposipo, 8. For two hours, her doctor reported, she was unconscious; her heart was beating normally but she did not breathe. During those two hours, her physician, Dr. Charles I. Maggio, and Dr. Morris Bernard of Homeopathic Hospital, worked over the child, endeavoring to restore respiration, but all attempts failed. An autopsy will be performed today.

METHODIST UNIVERSITY PLANS UP TO BOARD

Southern Branch Has Already Approved $5,000,000 Project in Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have agreed upon plans for establishing a great university in Kansas City. A $5,000,000 project is under consideration. A country tract of 200 acres has been donated for the site and arrangements have been completed for an organization campaign to be launched through the two churches early in 1926.

Negotiations to bring several Kansas City colleges, with a combined student body of 2000, into the university are under way, but have not advanced to a point justifying definite announcement of the proposed consolidation.

Special Board Meeting.

Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf of Kansas City, chairman of the Organization Committee, told colleagues here today of the recent action of the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in approving the project. The board of education of the Methodist Episcopal Church has not yet acted on the matter, but Bishop Waldorf has submitted the matter informally to a majority of the members, all of whom have expressed enthusiastic approval of the plan. Formal support probably will be given at a special meeting here next week.

W. S. Bovard, secretary of the Board of Education of the Northern Church, is gratified by the progress of the enterprise and believes the Bishops will warmly indorse the project next week.

School for All Creeds.

"Members of all denominations will be on the Board of Trustees, although the university will be under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Student enrollment will be open to all creeds and all faiths on an equal basis. The institution will be supported by voluntary subscriptions and by the Methodist Episcopal Church. The university will be a great center of spirituality as well as learning."

Bishop Waldorf has secured pledges of enthusiastic support for the project from virtually the entire committee of Bishops, including W. F. McDowell, Washington, D. C.; Thomas Nicholas, Detroit; Edwin Hughes, Chicago; Ada Leonard, Buffalo, and Theodore Henderson, Cincinnati.

The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with the churches in the enterprise.

The university will be "distinctly religious," but will be of a grade ranking it with the leading institutions of higher learning in the United States.

"Christianity will be right at the heart of the institution," Bishop Waldorf told his colleagues. "Education with God in it will be the ideal, with the moral and spiritual values carefully cared for, but the institution will be primarily one of learning."

The institution has been made possible by the generosity of Mrs. Kate W. Hewitt of Kansas City, who transferred to the church a 147-acre site near the State line.

AMERICAN, 60, TO WED SCOTCH GIRL OF 23

Hugh M. Annat, Said to Be Flordia Millionaire, Was Nursed by Her.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Fairy tales sometimes come true and if a Cinderella of real life does not, perhaps, get as handsome a Prince as the one in the story-book, at least she may find one as rich. That has been the romantic fate of Miss Bessie Dunlop, a pretty 23-year-old Scottish lassie, who has just become engaged to Hugh M. Annat, Scottish-American millionaire and real estate man from Miami, Fla.

On a Fishing Holiday.

Annat has been spending a fishing holiday in his old home land, and staying at the Glemisla Hotel, near Alyth, Forfarshire, the Scottish country which Sir James M. Barrie has made familiar to many readers. While out fishing in a remote glen he was caught in a severe storm. Night came on and he could not find his way back to the hotel.

A searching party eventually discovered him lying behind a sheltering rock in an exhausted condition and carried him back to the hotel, where Miss Dunlop, a friend of the proprietor's family, was helping during the busy tourist season. She immediately appointed herself Annat's nurse and, finding that he was feverish, wrapped him in blankets and put him in an extemporized bed before the kitchen fire. Thus, did she ward off a threatened illness.

The episode was the beginning of a romance which resulted a few days ago in their engagement. Until the publication of the story in the papers, it is said, the girl had no idea of her fiance's great wealth.

Will Go to Florida.

The wedding will take place at the rural parish church in sight of the hotel where the romance began. After a honeymoon in Scotland and a six months' tour of the world, the couple will go to Florida, where, according to report, Annat has a magnificent home and large land holdings.

The prospective bridegroom is 60 years old. He was born in Kerrie Muir, Barrie's home town, and began life in the drapery trade in Scotland. Later he emigrated to Ohio and was engaged in the dry goods business in Bellefontaine for 29 years. Five years ago he sold out and entered the real estate business in Florida. He was remarkably successful, according to reports.

BENEFIT SHOW FOR BABIES' FUND TONIGHT

Dancing to Follow "Peppery Potpourri" at Y. M. H. A. Clubhouse Lawn.

All indications point to a capacity crowd tonight at the "Y. M. H. A. Peppery Potpourri," which will be given on the clubhouse lawn, 3645 Delmar boulevard, for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. Fifteen hundred tickets at 25 cents each have been distributed by members of the association, and parents and friends of members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association are assisting in the final preparations for the vaudevilel show and dance.

The entertainment features of the evening will include a one-act play by the Girl Scouts, "The Heathen Chinee," a "Collegiate Uke Revue," an old-fashioned dance in costume, numbers by the boys' quartet and a farce, "My Dear," by the dramatic group. Taking part in the entertainment will be, Cecile Herman, June Sachar, Babette Herman, Dora Silverman, Sylvia Gutenberg, Fantine Shanfeld, Ruth Epstein, Pearl Horwitz, Clara Geller, Ruth Rubenstein, Sylvia Krelitz, Sam Schneider, Ben Kessler, Irv. Hasgall and Sid Jacobs. Grace Levin will play the lead in the farce, supported by Jeane Smissman, Ann Barack, Gertrude Hertzman, Morris Levin, Leon Yampolsky, Jack Goldstein, and Master Raymond Epstein.

Dancing will follow the show, with music by the Girls' Jazz Band of the Y. M. H. A. The entire proceeds of the evening will go to the babies' fund.

SOVIET SPIES IN POLAND

Two Polish Ex-Officers Among Five Arrested in Week.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WARSAW, Aug. 1. — Hardly a week has elapsed of late without arrests of soviet spies in Poland. Not long ago two members of the soviet legation in Warsaw had to leave the country, and last week five persons, including two Polish ex-officers, were arrested on a similar charge.

It is stated that important documents were found on them, which left no doubt that they received their instructions direct from Moscow. The chief of the party had managed for a long time to elude the vigilance of the police. He had large connections in society circles, and, thanks to the funds placed at his disposal by Moscow, he was able to spend money freely and was a habitue of all the fashionable night clubs. Another member of the party was a woman who came from Paris, where she was well-known in the Polish colony. It is interesting to learn that the spies arranged their meetings regularly in one of the Warsaw churches during service.

"LURED" INTO MARRIAGE

Young Wife Says She Was Overpersuaded; Seeks Annulment.

Suit was filed yesterday by Mrs. Ermina Zepeda, 19 years old, to annul her marriage to George Zepeda, both living at 3813 Washington boulevard. She alleges that when she married Zepeda, April 25 last, at St. Charles, he induced her to falsely state her age.

The petition states they became acquainted at the Washington boulevard address. The defendant, it is alleged, became infatuated with the plaintiff at first sight and followed her about the house so that she had very little privacy, even with her mother, who was also at the same house. "By false statements and representations, artifices and overpersuasion and by alluring and visionary promises defendant induced plaintiff to marry him," the petition states. She wants the marriage declared void. Zepeda could not be reached for a statement.

Cubans Plan Washington Statue.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HAVANA, July 27.—A committee headed by Dr. Oswald D. Guerrero, newspaperman and politician, is raising funds for the erection of a statue of George Washington. It is proposed to place the statue a short distance from the Maine monument.

CAMP CLARK DRAWS VISITORS FROM TOWN

Nevada, Mo., Folk Go Nightly to See Air Stunts and Tank Maneuvers.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP CLARK, Nevada, Mo., Aug. 8.—The first week of the two weeks' training period at Camp Clark closed successfully unmarred by accident or other unfortunate incident. Favored by ideal weather conditions, instructors were enabled to carry out a full training program with the result that the Sunday rest period was welcomed by all. The opening week of the program included terrain exercises for officers, close order drill for the infantry and engineer organizations and maneuvers for the air service and tank units. In addition rifle and machine gun were kept constantly popping on the range from early morning until evening mess call.

Good scores were made by a number of the riflemen and the firing will be continued throughout the encampment period.

Training for the air squadron included a cross-country flight to Richards Field, Kansas City, and return by six planes of the unit last Friday. The flight, covering a distance of approximately 180 miles, was made with but one forced landing, due to fuel line trouble in one plane. Tomorrow the unit will fly to Springfield to participate in the opening of the State American Legion convention in that city. Gens. Raupp and Rumbold will be passengers on the flight.

Prize for Cleanest Kitchen.

Col. A. E. Deitsch, commanding the 138th Infantry, announced the offer of a $50 prize to the company maintaining the most cleanly kitchen during the encampment period. To date one of the rural units in the regiment has made the best record for orderliness in mess operations.

That Camp Clark has a greater attraction for the citizens of Nevada than Nevada has for the personnel of Camp Clark is demonstrated nightly by the number of townfolks who motor to the camp site for a view of the evening parade and the subsequent boxing and wrestling matches which are held nightly at brigade headquarters. Entertainment for the visitors also include stunt flying by pilots of the air unit and occasional grotesque maneuvers by the six tanks in camp.

A comparatively limited number of troopers make their nightly way to Nevada, with its one picture show and courthouse square for amusement. It is three and a half dusty miles to town and Nevada provides few thrills for members of the St. Louis contingents here.

The athletic program last week resulted in a series of preliminary boxing and wrestling matches and in baseball victories by teams representing the 140th Infantry regiment and the air unit over the engineers and the 138th Infantry representatives. The victors will meet for the championship of the camp next Wednesday. Other athletic events will be held under intercollegiate rules with an experienced athletic instructor officiating as referee. Preparations are being completed for the reception of Gov. Baker, who will visit the encampment next Friday. A suitable program is being prepared.

Body Will Be Sent to Jerusalem.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Aug. 8.—An American Jew will be buried in Palestine. The body of Louis Gans, founder of the New Britain Zionist organization, will be taken from its temporary resting place in Beth Alom Cemetery, this city, and sent to Jerusalem for burial among the remains of the ancient rulers of the Kingdom of David. Gans died here Wednesday night. He was 60 years old and had devoted his life to the success of the Zionist movement.

RICH DUKE FELT PRESSURE FOR MONEY

Estate Is Valued at $4,000,000 But He Had to Close House.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—"How It Feels to Be Poor on a Million Sterling" might have been the title of an unwritten book which could have been penned by the late Duke of Rutland.

The Duke, father of Lady Diana Duff-Cooper (nee Manners), was always reckoned to be a poor men—poor for a Duke, anyway.

His wife, the present Dowager Duchess, did not mind making out of her drawings and portraits, and she admitted that she needed money. Lady Diana, belle of society for many seasons before her marriage to Lieut. Duff-Cooper, pursued a busy profesional career, writing for newspapers and magazines, acting for the movies, taking the leading role in "The Miracle." She continued working after marriage.

The Manners family were blue-blooded and proud, but seemingly they were poor. Yet the Duke's will was proved in the courts for £930,700—virtually a million sterling, or well over $4,000,000.

Heavy Inheritance Tax.

Yet even with that fortune the Duke was, indeed, poor, and his son, the new Duke, will be even poorer when the British Treasury has grabbed of £268,000 for inheritance taxes, etc.

The Rutland fortune included the Belvoir Castle and Haddon Hall estates, which, aside from being entailed estates that go with the title, could not be easily disposed of—certainly not at their officially estimated value.

It is not everybody who can afford to keep a Belvoir Castle going, with its hosts of servants, ground staff, stables, kennels and farms. The Duke used to admit that he couldn't keep it up properly, but being Duke of Rutland, he had to keep it—and found it cheapest to live in it almost exclusively.

Haddon Hall, the famous Derbyshire estate and historic home of Dorothy Vernon, has long been closed. Part of the estate has recently been sold, and Haddon Hall itself is in a bad state of repair, as the Duke always said that he could not afford to pay for its upkeep.

The Duke's widow is selling her London residence in Arlington street, and the present Duke will have to get along at Belvoir Castle, saddled with expenditures which he cannot curtail. How he is going to pay the Treasury a quarter of his father's alleged fortune he probably has not the remotest idea, but as the Treasury allows an extended period for payment of inheritance taxes in the case of complicated estates, it will probably be done somehow.

Visit to Ravinia Open-Air Ope Adventure in B

Multimillionaire's Hobby Enlists M and Chicago Stars, Chicago Sym chestra, and Repertory of Opera Classics.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

Music and Drama Critic of the Post-D

A ST. LOUISAN standing for the first time Chicago's famous open-air operatic instituti curl a supercilious lip. What a toy theater seats, in comparison with the Municipal Theater the Garden Theater's 3000! And what a tiny pee 36 feet wide and 29 feet high—in contrast wit Theater's 120-foot proscenium, bounded in altitude ment!

A chorus of 40, you are told, and think patronizingly of our own choirs of from 96 to 250. The price of seats, one learns, ranges from $2.10 to $3.50—which includes a fee of $1 for admission to the grounds—and smug thoughts arise of our democratic scale of 25 cents to $2. And as a final contribution to one's condescending mood, an official, learning that in 1922 the Municipal Theater Association earned profits of nearly $50,000, remarks musingly: "We'd be glad if our losses each year did not exceed the profits of your best season!"

Performance of "La Boheme."

ATTENDANCE at a single performance, however, is sufficient to transmute the visitor's civic complacency into an emotion resembling chagrin. He rediscovers the truth that a miniature panel may contain a masterpiece and a huge mural may frame only a daub. He perceives that an enterprise may lose tens of thousands of dollars and yet win an opulent profit, or that it may earn thousands of dollars in profits and at the same time lose every cent.

The performance witnessed by the writer a few evenings ago was one of Puccini's "La Boheme." In the cast were Marie Sundelius, Mario Chamlee, Giacomo Rimini, Leon Rothier, Louis d'Angelo, Margery Maxwell and Paolo Ananian. The chorus consisted of picked voices from the Metropolitan Opera House, together with a few singers from the Chicago Civic Opera Co. The orchestra was composed of 50 selected musicians from the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The director, Gennaro Papi of the Metropolitan, was one of those Italians of glacial exterior and sparse gestures for whom an orchestra plays like a volcano.

A Superlative Orchestra.

WITH the first bars of the introduction there came, with a sinking of the heart, a realization that few St. Louisans have the least conception of what a first-class orchestra actually sounds like. No orchestra of sovereign rank has been heard here since 1915, when Dr. Karl Muck led the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon. The Chicago orchestra, on the testimony of connoisseurs, ranks with the supreme orchestras of the world.

Its playing that night was that of a 50-fold Kreisler. What a shimmer of silken, sunlit hues in the texture of the strings, like a vari-colored fabric streaming along the wind! A golden sheen of horns, an organ-like opulence of brass, and now and then a snatch from oboe, flute or clarinet with the exquisite phrasing of Elena Gerhardt's interpretation of a song! The music was like an enchanted mirror in which one saw externalized the very emotions pulsing in one's own soul.

The Chorus a Revelation.

THE principal voices—so powerful and yet tender, so rich and still so fastidious! And the chorus—was it only 40 or was it a host? There have been singers at both the Municipal and Garden Theaters who were acclaimed with all the honors of principals, and who would not be considered a moment as candidates for membership in this choir. In vocal munificence, polish and elan its singing was a revelation.

No less a disclosure was the address with which the stage manager, Paolo Ananian of the Metropolitan, contrived his mass scene at the Cafe Momus. Here were no regimented and mechanical gestures, no blithesomely loping entrances, no meaningless brandishings of arms and legs. Each chorister acted differently from all the others, and yet the effect was oneness. There was freedom within the bounds of design, the classic ideal of unity in variety.

The conviction grew that here was something approaching perfection — and we recalled Prof. Santayana's saying that this very quality of perfection is the rational justification of art, in that it liberates us from the compromises and frustrations of actual life into a world in which perfection is not merely practicable, but familiar. Whatever the philosophical explanation, we arose from the per-

Visit to Ravinia's Open-Air Opera Is Adventure in Beauty

Multimillionaire's Hobby Enlists Metropolitan and Chicago Stars, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Repertory of Grand Opera Classics.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.
Music and Drama Critic of the Post-Dispatch.

A ST. LOUISAN standing for the first time at Ravinia, site of Chicago's famous open-air operatic institution, is tempted to curl a supercilious lip. What a toy theater it is, with its 1500 seats, in comparison with the Municipal Theater's 10,000 and even the Garden Theater's 3000! No orchestra of sovereign rank has been heard here since 1915, when Dr. Karl Muck led the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon. The music was like an enchanted mirror in which one saw externalized the very emotions pulsing in one's own soul.

The Chorus a Revelation.

THE principal voices—so powerful and yet tender, so rich and still so fastidious! And the chorus—was it only 40 or was it a host? There have been singers at both the Municipal and Garden Theaters who were acclaimed with all the honors of principals, and who would not be considered a moment as candidates for membership in this choir. In vocal munificence, polish and elan its singing was a revelation.

No less a disclosure was the address with which the stage manager, Paolo Ananian of the Metropolitan, contrived his mass scene at the Cafe Momus. Here were no regimented and mechanical gestures, no blithsomely loping entrances, no meaningless brandishings of arms and legs. Each chorister acted differently from all the others, and yet the effect was oneness. There was freedom within the bounds of design, the classic ideal of unity in variety.

The conviction grew that here was something approaching perfection — and we recalled Prof. Santayana's saying that this very quality of perfection is the rational justification of art, in that it liberates us from the compromises and frustrations of actual life into a world in which perfection is not merely practicable, but familiar. Whatever the philosophical explanation, we arose from the performance with a thrilling sense of spiritual exaltation and renovation.

Costs Him $1000 a Performance.

OUTSIDE the theater stood a plain, stout and radiant little man, whose mien was particularly debonair in view of the fact that with every 60 seconds of the performance a $5 bill took wing from his purse, never to return. His subordinates estimate that it costs Louis Eckstein $1000 every time he sees a performance at Ravinia; and as the program calls for 73 performances this summer, and he never misses one, his loss for the season may be reckoned at upwards of $75,000. This is scarcely a bagatelle even for a multimillionaire publisher, which Eckstein is.

But he was not thinking of money. He agreed, without much enthusiasm, that Ravinia this year has reached the highest standard in its history. The fact is that this eccentric opera-lover is haunted by a vision. Floating before his eyes he constantly beholds the mirage of a "perfect performance of grand opera." By this he means a cast in which every voice, from chorus to prima donna, will be equally good and all of them of first rank. A cast and chorus, from top to bottom, of Martinellis, Raisas, Bourskayas and Lazzaris!

Ravinia's History.

HE withdrew from his vision long enough to sketch the history of Ravinia. You must not, by the way, speak of it as Ravinia Park. The title of the enterprise is Ravinia Opera and Concerts. A good many years ago, an electric line between Chicago and Milwaukee built an amusement park 21 miles north of the loop, in the then unsettled wilderness of the Lake Shore region. The hope was that it would serve as a feeder of fares, and as attractions there were baseball games, fireworks and balloon ascensions.

The road went into the hands of a receiver, who operated the park at a loss for two years, and then gladly sold it for a song to Eckstein and a group of associates who owned property along the Lake Shore and feared it would depreciate in value if a Coney Island grew up in their midst.

Among the variegated occupations of his youth, Eckstein had once been a violinist in an orchestra, and it was at his suggestion that Ravinia entered the musical field. It began 14 years ago with programs of classic and modern dancing, and with orchestra programs, which remain today an important feature of the enterprise. As an experiment, one-act excerpts

Municipal Season Ends With 'The Merry Widow'

THE Municipal Theater Association's season will close this week with a repetition of Franz Lehar's operetta, "The Merry Widow," which, when given at the Forest Park auditorium in 1923, established the highest mark as to attendance and receipts in the history of the light opera organization.

Miss Yvonne d'Arle, who has been absent from the cast for two weeks, will have the role of Sonia, who gives the work its title. Ralph Errolle will take the part of the Vicomte de Jolidon, Forrest Huff will return to the cast as Prince Danilo, and Miss Elva Magnus will be intrusted with the important character of Natalie, in reward for her success in "The Count of Luxembourg."

Other assignments are: William J. McCarthy, Nish; Detmar Poppen, Baron Popoff, and Roland Woodruff, Marquis Cascada. Seven small roles will be given to members of the chorus.

Book After Meillhac's Novel.

THE libretto of "The Merry Widow" was adapted by Victor Leon and Leo Stein from Henri Meillhac's novel, "L' attache d' Ambassador." The operetta was produced in 1905 and brought to the United States two years later, being played from coast to coast by six touring companies between 1907 and 1912. Col. Henry W. Savage, who owns the American rights, has released the work but twice for performance in stock—both times to the Municipal Theater Association.

According to the story, Prince Danilo of Marsovia, a legendary kingdom in the Balkans, falls in love with Sonia, penniless daughter of a farmer. His uncle, the King, sends him to Paris to recover from his infatuation. Sonia marries an aged millionaire, who obligingly dies a week later, leaving her a million francs for each of her 20 years. She goes to Paris to celebrate her widowhood, and after a network of amorous intrigues is duly united with her Prince, and the Marsovian treasury is preserved from insolvency. The featured musical number, "The Merry Widow Waltz," is universally popular.

Golf Is Theme of New Broadway Comedy

By Wells Root,
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.

GOLF seems to have cut its way deep into the fiber of our pioneer hardihood. You can tell about things like that from the theater. As soon as a pastime begins to inspire plays it has ceased to be a fad and is a fixture. Managers will not risk plays on specialized subjects which only the few can fathom. Only the few, indeed, can fathom golf. But the five million can flub away at it, knowing its heartaches.

I do not know whether A. H. Woods goes around in 76 or 112. I suspect he does not go around at all. It is very like A. H. Woods to produce a play of which he is genially ignorant of the subject matter. He buys plays by the handful, as one would tear out hair, and flings them to the tenderloin mercies of a director and a band of actors. He seems to have dozens for this season. "Spring Fever" was his first.

The play had nothing to do with spring. That, too, is like the Woods office. They title their plays by volume. About three times a week, while a Woods play is in the preparation period, a new title suddenly occurs to someone in the office and is promptly Numerous revues, one-act dramas and spectacles are promised. Frank Panus has been reengaged as orchestra leader.

Grand Opera Fete Begins Next Week

Metropolitan and Chicago Singers Engaged by Impresario Golterman for "Aida," "Cavalleria" and "The Music Robber."

THE grand opera festival in Forest Park, which opens a week from next Thursday evening at the Municipal Theater, will enlist singers from the Metropolitan, Chicago and San Carlo Opera Companies for its productions of "Aida," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "The Music Robber."

Six performances of "Aida" will be given on successive evenings, beginning Aug. 20. On the evenings of Aug. 26 and 27, "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be presented, together with a program of ballet divertissements arranged by Miss Florence Rudolph, premiere classique of the Metropolitan. The first act of "The Music Robber," a new American opera in jazz rhythm, based on an episode in the life of Mozart, will be given on the evenings of Aug. 28 and 29, in conjunction with "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Prima Donna in "Aida."

TO alternate in the title role of "Aida," Impresario Guy Golterman has engaged Maria Escobar, Charlotte Ryan and Elda Vettori. Mme. Escobar, who made her career in Italy and South America, sang here last summer in "Carmen." Miss Ryan is a soprano at the Metropolitan and has served this summer as prima donna of the Municipal Opera season at Atlanta. Miss Vettori, a St. Louisan, has enjoyed a prominent and successful career in grand opera.

Rhadames will be sung in turn by Manuel Salazar, Forrest Lamont and Ludovico Tomarchio. Salazar, who has appeared here frequently and who sang a record number of performances in "Carmen" at the Municipal Theater last year, was formerly a member of the Metropolitan, and ranks as one of the best dramatic tenors of the country. Lamont is a leading draamtic tenor at the Chicago Civic Opera Co., and Tomarchio made his career in South America.

Makes American Debut Here.

THE role of Amonasro will be divided between Giuseppe Interrante, of the San Carlo company, and Joseph Royer, who sang numerous performances of the Toreador in Geraldine Farrar's production of "Carmen." Marta Wittowska, Polish contralto, formerly of the Chicago Opera Co., and Mme. Rhea Toniolo of the Bracale Opera Co., will alternate in the role of Amneris. Mme. Toniolo will make her American debut at these performances.

The parts of Ramfis, the Messenger, the Priestess and the King, will be given, respectively, to Giovanni Martino of the Metropolitan and Ludovico Oliviero, Miss Elizabeth Kerr and Antonio Nicolich, all of the Chicago Opera Co.

The characters of "Cavalleria Rusticanna" have been assigned as follows: Santuzza, Miss Vettori, Mme. Toniolo and Mme. Escobar; Lola, Anne Yago; Turiddu, Salazar, Lamont and Tomarchio; Alfio, Royer and Interrante, and Lucia, Miss Kerr. Miss Yago has sung contralto roles this summer at the Municipal Opera in Atlanta and is a pupil of Miss Estelle Liebling of New York, who is also the instructor of Yvonne d'Arle and Joan Ruth of the Municipal Theater Association.

Vettori, Lamont and Preston.

THE following cast will be enlisted for "The Music Robber," with score by Isaac Van Grove and libretto by Richard L. Stokes: Mozart, Forrest Lamant; Constanze, Gladys Swarthout; Franz Suessmayr, his pupil; Joseph Royer; Nancy Storace, an opera singer, Miss Vettori; Josef Haydn, Ludovico Oliviero; Ludwig van Beethoven, Clayton Quast; Emanuel Schikaneder, a theatrical manager, Amund Sjovik, and Count Johann von Walsegg, Howard Preston. Messrs. Quast and Preston took their present roles at a rehearsal performance of Act I of "The Music Robber," which was given on June 14 at the Central Theater, Chicago.

Miss Rudolph's program of dances has been devised for the following musical numbers: "Oriental Dance," Pascha; Furiana, from "La Gioconda," Ponchielli; "Dutch Dance," Lortzing; "Dance of the Hours," from "La Gioconda," Ponchielli; "Rhapsodie Espana," Chabrier; and the Walpurgis Night ballet from Gounod's "Faust," consisting of Valse, Adagio, Dance of the Bacchantes, Variations and Galop Finale.

The ballet will muster 50 advanced students of local dancing schools, and there will be a chorus of more than 200 volunteer St. Louis singers. An orchestra of 50,

GOLF AS A LEADING MOTIVE IS TRIED IN A BROADWAY COMEDY

pasted over the current one. Probably someone thought of "Spring Fever" in a general way. It is, indeed, a fair name for a play. The Vincent Lawrence comedy was the only play that they had at the moment and therefore the play was awarded to "Spring Fever."

Just Like a Woman—Maybe.

THERE are, however, two fevers under discussion. The foremost is the fever which sets in when you first break a hundred, and the second the fever which runs practically permanently in everybody. Love is the common or garden name.

Both fevers are artificially forced up the theatrical thermometer. James Rennie is presented as a champion of brilliant golf, and he swings like a yawing sloop. Love is depicted as the triumph of man over money. He secured a wife because she thought he had $80,000,000. Then he told the truth, and made her like it. Just like a woman, you will say, and we will devote a whole paragraph to asking:

Is it?

But we are slowly getting to the point. The point may be put in the two words which, unless the world is weaker than we think it is, will be carved in the tombstone of Mr. Woods: to-wit, "Bedroom Farce." After this long healthy evening on the golf links with everybody in short trousers, the play is suddenly snatched away to the intimacies of a hotel suite and striped pajamas. Just what this had to do with the play we cannot at the moment stop to figure out. But we think it will have a great deal to do with whatever success may reward the advent of "Spring Fever."

It is, to be dangerously prophetic, doubtful if this success will be considerable. "Spring Fever" is only fairly funny; obviously an imitation; and just about fit to be warmed over into a musical comedy for next season.

Communique on Maude Adams.

WE talked last week with someone who had recently seen Maude Adams. Apparently she is unchanged in her decision to stay off the stage. She is still experimenting with strange lighting systems, said to have their objective in the movies. It will be recalled that Miss Adams laid plans to do "Kim" before the camera. This was some time ago and as yet she has not set sail for India.

The usual wish that she would reconsider her decision and act again was worrying the conversation to a close. Then it was that one closely versed in her temperament concluded the topic. He said that the one slim chance of her return lay in the work of J. M. Barrie. If that great playwright would write a play so good that none except herself could play it, and if she realized his feeling in the matter and the irresistible brilliance of the work, she might return. Money would never bring her back. Only a frail fancy could play upon her stiff determination.

W. C. Fields in the Movies.

THE advent of W. C. Fields in the movies as a star comedian is one of the conspicuous events of the theatrical week. Prophets say that Mr. Fields, if he stuck to the studios, could rival Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton and even Charles Chaplin before 50,000 feet of him had been released. He appeared in "Sally of the Sawdust," D. W. Griffith's comedy, and played Eustace McGargle as he did when the piece was on Broadway in the form of "Poppy."

So great was his success that reports started flying of his contracts with Hollywood impresarios which would eliminate him from stage productions for a year. Philip Goodman, producer of "Poppy," scotched this rumor promptly with the statement that Mr. Fields will star in a musical comedy called "The Showman" late this autumn. It is, however, known that Mr. Fields' picture salary arched abruptly and that he is playing "That Royle Girl," also for Mr. Griffith, for a vast return.

W. C. Fields is the comedian who used to travel around for Mr. Keith doing a pool table act and juggling cigar boxes. In those days he never spoke a word. Pantomime was the basis of his humors. He drifted into the "Follies" and became established. Still his lips were sealed. Of a sudden he started talking in "Poppy." He came to rank with Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Ed Wynn and the sparse celebrities of comedy. Pantomime was still his fundamnetal.

Stage as Feeder for Cinema.

IT is not surprising that he has adapted himself to the cinema with such success. It would be less surprising if he deserted the stage after "The Showman." Fortunes like Mr. Lloyd's make a thousand or so a week in the "Follies" seem tip money. At present he is playing and doing movies on the side. Granted his success continues, such a break will be about the best the stage can hope for.

Probably the time will come when all great stars are movie actors. The stage will be simply a feeder for the studios. In those days all great singers will subsist on radio. Enforcement of prohibition will have driven people to private tippling. A sheet on the wall, a loud speaker on the table and a bottle on the sideboard. Perhaps in those days the children will stay home of nights.

Band Concerts This Week.

Henry J. Falkenhainer's band will give concerts during the week as follows: This afternoon, Forest Park; tomorrow night, Christy Park; Tuesday evening, Lafayette Park; Wednesday night, Gravois Park; Thursday evening, O'Fallon Park; Friday night, Carondelet Park, and Saturday night, Fairgrounds Park.

VISIT TO RAVINIA'S OPEN-AIR OPERA IS ADVENTURE IN BEAUTY

from grand operas were hazarded, the performers being principals of the Aborn Opera Co., which sang in English. Ravinia remains small in physical dimensions, but from such origins it has grown into one of the great opera houses of the world.

Principals and Repertory.

ITS orchestra, though smaller than those of the Metropolitan and Chicago opera houses, is of finer quality, and should probably be ranked as the best operatic orchestra in the country. For its casts Ravinia takes its pick of both opera companies, and there are several principals this year who individually draw and are worth weekly stipends exceeding the total salary list of the Municipal Theater chorus.

The principals this season include Lucrezia Bori, Florence Macbeth, Rosa Raisa, Marie Sundelius, Merle Alcock, Ina Bourskaya, Mario Chamlee, Giovanni Martinelli, Tito Schipa, Armand Tokatyan, Mario Basiola, Giuseppe Defrere, Giacomo Rimini, Paolo Ananian, Virgilio Lazzari and Leon Rothier. The conductors are Gennaro Papi and Louis Hasselmans, with Wilfred Pelletier and Giacomo Spadoni as assistants.

Performances are given every night except Sunday, the bill is changed every evening, and no work is repeated more than three times during a season. This summers' repertory consists of "Martha," "la Traviata," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Rigoletto," "Aida," "Mignon," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Tales of Hoffman," "Carmen," "I' Pagliacci," "Madame Butterfly," "Faust," "Tosca," "Jewels of the Madonna," "La Boheme," "Secret of Suzanne," Massenet's "Manon," Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," "Romeo and Juliet," "Il Trovatore," "The Barber of Seville," "Lakme," "L'Elisir d'Amore," "L'Amore dei Tre Re," "Don Pasquale," "La Navarraise," "Fedora," "L'Amico Fritz," "Linda di Chamounix," "Samson and Delilah," "Fra Diavolo," "Andrea Chenier," "The Masked Ball" and "La Juive."

Amid Trees and Flower Beds.

RAVINIA itself is a pleasing spectacle to the eye. The theater, a large scenic studio and a refectory lie in the midst of a grove of elms and maples which stand on 40 acres of lawn and flower beds as well-groomed as the garden of a gentleman's country estate. There still stands a baseball stadium, which is not used.

The theater, unlike the outdoor stadiums here, has a roof. The sides are open, and there are waterproof tarpaulins which may be drawn in case of rain. An unroofed theater would be impracticable beside Lake Michigan, where rain is the rule rather than the exception. It rained on the night of "La Boheme," and it seemed homelike to hear the manager speculating on the effect the weather would have on the attendance, and to see the audience gathering with raincoats and umbrellas. A reminiscence of the Garden Theater came during Mimi's death song, when an express train from Milwaukee roared past only two blocks away.

As has been said, admission to the grounds is $1, and it is possible, without additional cost, to view the performance from 600 chairs outside and at the flanks of the theater. Moreover, there are usually 200 or 300 standees on a platform outside the theater at the rear. Ravinia, by the way, draws only a portion of its clientele from Chicago. It relies mostly upon dwellers in the hotels and residences in the North Shore district. Under the direction of Eric de Lamarter, assistant to Frederick Stock, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra gives concerts on Monday nights and Thursday and Sunday afternoons. The Thursday matinee concerts are for children.

Acoustics Exceptional.

WHEN the audience has gathered, Japanese lanterns glow softly from the roof, and lights gleam from the trees and the crown of a water tower. The acoustics are so admirable that Otto H. Kahn has compared the theater to the inside of a Stradivarius. It is partly for fear of destroying this elusive and mysterious virtue that Eckstein has hesitated to put into effect his plans for enlarging the stage and increasing the seating capacity by a few hundreds.

Ravinia is not and never will be a self-sustaining enterprise. It is the hobby of a very wealthy man, with a passion for quality instead of quantity. The writer was told that Eckstein lives in a modest home not far from the theater, and that his personal expenditures are on the scale of a man making $15,000 a year. His devotion to his plaything is such that he has not been outside Chicago in 14 years, except for annual trips to New York to engage his casts.

Eckstein Absolute Monarch.

HE has a board of guarantors, but apparently for the purpose of being sociable more than anything else. Their share of the annual deficits is nominal. So that he reigns as Tsar over the enterprise, it being his firm belief that artistic success is possible only under autocratic rule; and that committee government is fatal to any esthetic enterprise. In a committee, he remarked, the standard is gradually worn down to the level of the member with the lowest intelligence.

The stage at Ravinia is to all intents and purposes an indoor stage, so that it has made no contributions to the new science of open-air stagecraft which is growing up in St. Louis. Its lighting ranks between that of the Municipal and Garden theaters. There are no atrocities, but also there are no strokes of imagination and poetry. The use of electric current there is for the sensible but prosaic purpose of illumination alone.

mostly members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, is promised.

Book Praised by Otto H. Kahn.

THE directors for the season will be Isaac Van Grove, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera, and Vittorio Verse and Giuseppe Cesati, both of the Metropolitan. Alex D. Puglia, of the Metropolitan, will be stage director. Lester Luther, of the Chicago Musical College, will design the scenery, and has been especially engaged to stage "The Music Robber."

Writing to a St. Louis correspondent, Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Co., stated that he had read the first act of "The Music Robber" with "much appreciation of the attractiveness of the story, and the cleverness and 'singableness' of the text." He added that "I am particularly desirous of attending the performance, and if it is at all possible for me to manage it, I shall not fail to put in an appearance in St. Louis on Aug. 28."

Local Chorus in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—Gaetano Merola, director of the grand opera company here, has engaged Giuseppe Papi to form and train a local chorus for the performances beginning at the end of next month. He is a brother of Gennaro Papi, director at the Metropolitan and Ravinia, and has conducted four seasons at La Scala, five at the Colon Opera House in Buenos Aires and six seasons at the San Carlos in Naples.

GOOSE EGG PRODUCES TWINS

Half Pound Egg Included in Setting as Experiment.

By the Associated Press.

VISCOUNT, Sask., Aug. 8.—From a setting of five goose eggs, Mrs. J. J. Elliot, of this district, was surprised to find six fine goslings had been hatched, one egg having produced a splendid pair of birds.

The egg from which the pair was hatched weighed half a pound and was included in the setting primarily as an experiment.

Science Finds Reducer For Over-Fat People

By Lewis Baker, M. D.

Scientific minds have delved into the secrets of the ductless glands of the human body and some are so bold as to declaim that with the further study of this subject man or woman can be thin or fat, ugly or beautiful, dull or brilliant, old or youthful, etc. One outstanding fact is that obesity (over-fatness) can often be controlled when we know that one of the important glands of the body is causing the abnormal fleshiness. Impaired secretions of the thyroid gland does cause many to become quickly fat. By supplying this element, aiding the process of nature as it were, many pounds of superfluous fat can be banished.

I confidently recommend five grain Arbolone tablets as a home remedy (non-secret as to ingredients) to those men and women who wish to reduce successfully.

I print by permission some of the letters I regularly receive from those who rejoice when free from the embarrassing, annoying condition.

If directions are followed there are no harmful results from the use of Arbolone. The formula on the package may be submitted to your own physician.

Reduced 10 Pounds in Two Weeks

Dear Sir: "I have followed directions, and lost 10 pounds in two weeks, thanks to Arobolone tablets. Please send me your Health and Beauty Book." (Signed) Mrs. Geo. Harris, 1022 St. Clair St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Did Not Gain After Reducing

"Most of all, I thank you for the benefit I have received from the use of Arbolone tablets. I reduced from 138 to 125 pounds. Then I quit taking them for two weeks to see if I would regain. I did not gain an ounce. Am taking them again to reduce to 115 pounds." (Signed) Mrs. W. L. S——, St. Joseph, Mo.

Now Has Better Health

"It is with great pleasure that I tell you of the benefit derived from Arbolone. I am reduced to the desired weight, as well as enjoying better health. Very truly." (Signed) Mrs. H. F. ——, El Dorado, Ark.

Lost 35 Pounds—New Way

DETROIT, MICH., Mrs. T. Hoffman, 6028 Dix Av., writes: "I'm more than pleased with Arbolone Tablets. I have taken other medicine, but never had any good results. I weighed 230 when I started to take Arbolone Tablets. I am down to 195 and expect to lose more. The tablets do not harm me in any way. Etc."

Arbolone tablets are sold and recommended in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson, Johnson Bros., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores and by good druggists everywhere.

WHEN WILL HUMANITY BE UNIVERSALLY CIVILIZED?

Asia, oldest of Continents; Africa, not yet fully explored; South America with its barbarous tribes; many South Sea Islands; all of those inhabited by semi-civilized or savage humans some cannibals among them and the world is yet young!

Not until all humans are brought to a realization of the purpose of their creation will humanity be ready to accept the GOLDEN RULE.

ENGLISH CRITICS NOT SURE ABOUT NEW DANCE

Spectacular, Eccentric and Grotesque, They Call the "Charleston."

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—England's latest dance importation from America—the "Charleston"—has met with the usual ardent opposition that greets new dance figures from across the Atlantic. Experts are at a loss to predict whether it will finally achieve ballroom popularity or fail, as did some of its forbears, notably the "Blues," the "five-step" and the "camel walk," which never enjoyed more than a brief session of popularity.

The Charleston's first appearance a few weeks ago in one of the revues brought forth the comment by critics and dancing experts that it was "eccentric" and "grotesque." It was described by an even more damning word in English eyes—"spectacular." There was a move among some to bring the new dance so far as the stage is concerned, under the ban of the Lord Chamberlain, whose latest effort in the censorial lines was to forbid the production of Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms." An organized protest, however, has not materialized to that extent.

In the meantime the Charleston is not much in evidence in public ballrooms. It has gained considerable vogue at certain private dances in the Mayfair district of London, but those who have taken part in the dances are severely criticised by dancing teachers.

New York will also contribute the head musical director to the festival, Josef Stransky, former conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, having accepted this key position. The operas to be given are "Cosi Fan Tutti," "The Magic Flue," "The Elopement From the Seraglio," "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni."

WAR CLAIMS FOR VOLTAIRE

History Student Says Frenchman Invented Tank About 1756.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—News that tanks are beginning to play a more important role in the Moroccan warfare has led one student of history and Voltaire to declare that Voltaire was the real inventor of the armored tank.

According to this claimant, Voltaire announced the invention about 1756 of the "Assyrian chariot," which was armed like the modern tank. With this invention, Voltaire proclaimed that he could crush the armies of Frederick the Great, then waging the Seven Years War. Marshal de Richelieu, however, turned down the invention, and Voltaire, in 1770, offered it to Czarina Catherine of Russia, who was then engaged in war with the Turks. Catherine ordered a pair of the tanks, but later informed Voltaire that they were useless except against troops in massed ranks, as she personally had seen them tested.

WATCH BABY'S HEALTH CLOSELY IN SUMMER

U. S. Public Health Reports Show Terrific Increase in Infant Mortality From Intestinal Disease During Hot Weather

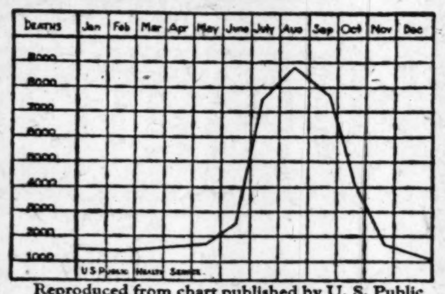
"Summer is the purgatory of motherhood," according to Assistant Surgeon General W. C. Rucker and Surgeon C. C. Pierce of the United States Public Health Service, in a Supplement to the Public Health Reports.

From 12 to 20 out of every 100 babies born in the United States die during the first year, and the majority of these deaths occur during warm weather.

The principal contributing causes are given as improper feeding and intestinal disorders. Many valuable suggestions are made for proper feeding, sanitation and general care of children in summer.

The mother should nurse the child for the first year if possible; if not, modified milk is the best substitute. Keep baby cool during hot weather, especially by proper clothing and frequent bathing in tepid water. Give plenty of boiled water. Keep flies away from baby and all utensils used in preparing its food. Never consider any disturbance of baby's bowels as unimportant, or "only summer complaint."

At the first sign of bowel disorder the disturbance should be immediately remedied. In thousands of homes Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is relied on to correct and regulate the bowels. This mild, pleasant laxative, free from injurious drugs, can be given to even the tiniest babies with perfect safety. It can be bought at any drug store.



Reproduced from chart published by U. S. Public Health Service to show appalling increase in the number of infant deaths from intestinal diseases during hot weather period.

DEL-A-TONE
Removes Superfluous Hair

Europe Producing Less Sugar.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

ROME, July 22.—Acreage devoted to beet sugar growing in European nations, producing three-quarters of the world's supply, decreased from 1,963,000 hectares in 1924 to 1,905,000 hectares in 1925, statistics gathered by the International Institute of Agriculture show. The decrease was greatest in Spain and Italy. On the other hand, a large increase was reported from Russia.

Retail Salesmen Wanted

by the

J. C. PENNEY CO.

NATION-WIDE INSTITUTION OF DEPARTMENT STORES

Capable salesmen are needed—young men between the ages of 25 and 35 years who have had thorough experience in one or more of our lines, and who can give us the highest references.

Our company, which started in 1902 with one store, now operates 676 retail stores in 44 states. We sell dry goods, shoes, notions, clothing and furnishings for men, women and children. We do a strictly cash business. Our sales in 1924 were $74,261,343.00. We opened 115 stores in 1920, 59 stores in 1922, 104 stores in 1923, 96 stores in 1924, and 105 stores in 1925.

By industry, study and determination your progress will be rapid in our organization. Under our experienced managers you are trained to become a manager. When you have qualified in which you own a one-third interest, to be paid for out of the profits of the business.

Experience has taught us that some of the greatest successes come from the ranks of average men. What we need are young, healthy and capable salesmen who have had thorough experience in a small or medium-sized department store, or are experienced in general store work in special lines. The investment of money is not necessary for your success with us. The financial backing of our company is ample. Briefly, this is our proposition—tested and proven over a period of 23 years:

You come to us first as a salesman in one of our stores. During the period of proving your ability you learn the greater possibilities of co-operative effort. Your progress depends upon your ability and effort. As our new stores are opened, managers are selected from our sales force.

When you make a success of the management, you are sold a one-third interest in a new store and become its manager. You may afterward acquire a partnership in other stores which are the outgrowth of the one in which you first received a financial interest. If you do not possess the capital to purchase a one-third interest in a new store, the money is loaned you by the J. C. Penney Company, and you repay it from subsequent profits of the store.

Write today for our booklet, "Working Plan of the J. C. Penney Company." Give your age and number of years' experience in our lines of merchandise in your first letter. We may arrange for a personal interview later. All correspondence strictly confidential.

PSYCHOLOGY URGED AS REMEDY FOR CRIME

Criminal Psychologist Claims 90 Per Cent in Chicago Is Due to Mental Debility.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The psychologist and the policeman make a battery against criminals which experts anticipate eventually will reduce outlawry in American cities.

Through the Psychopathic-Laboratory of the Municipal Court of Chicago, the old-line criminologist whose faith was in brass knuckles and the hangman's rope gradually is being replaced by exponents of a new dispensation, who regard crime as an effect of psychic irregularities and work for its eradication through science rather than shotguns and sentences.

Laboratory directors conclude that the whole American system of criminal jurisprudence is long overdue at the junk pile. For the present order in criminal procedure they consider the offender a patient instead of a prisoner.

The laboratory is a branch of the Municipal Court, which is unique as the largest court in the world. In 1924 there went on this court's docket 94,000 civil and 225,000 criminal cases for the consideration of its 37 justices.

Chief Justice Harry Olson established the laboratory after 20 years' experience as assistant prosecutor and Criminal Court Judge in Cook County, to test his hypothesis that crime is fundamentally a problem of the mental and emotional disorders. Dr. William J. Hickson, widely known criminal psychologist, and his wife, Mrs. Marie Hickson, have been directors of the laboratory since its foundation in 1914.

Here are the conclusions Dr. Hickson draws from his 11 years' experience in the laboratory:

Mental debility is the primary factor in crime.

Virtually all criminals lack mental equipment or emotional stability.

Ninety per cent of the crime in Chicago is attributable to some form of mental debility, usually not apparent to laymen.

In more than 80 per cent of the criminally inclined mental weaklings, the delinquency is manifested before the period of adolescence.

Crime could be completely wiped out in one generation by properly caring for youths of criminal inclinations.

A large majority of persons convicted of major crimes, such as murder, robbery and assault, have been in court previously for some minor offense.

Punishment is not a deterrent to crime in the eyes of most criminals.

Criminal inclinations in mental weaklings is a dominant impulse quite as irresistible as the healthy socal impulses of normal individuals, and the criminal, because of his debility, does not regard punishment as retribution, but merely as a conspiracy of society to rob him of his right to self-expression.

The degree of viciousness and brutality in revolting crimes is in a fixed relation to the degree and nature of the mental derangement.

EDUCATION WILL FREE WORLD OF ALCOHOLISM

Dr. Cherrington Declares Other Countries Will Follow Lead of United States.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WESTERVILLE, Aug. 8.—After more than five years of work of the World League Against Alcoholism, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, its general secretary, declares that its program of education ultimately will reach every nation and convince all peoples that they should follow the lead of the United States and adopt prohibition.

"The program of the World League Against Alcoholism for years to come," his statement says, "is one which is to be devoted primarily to getting the truth about alcohol, the liquor problem, and prohibition, to the people of all nations, believing that the knowledge of the truth will free the world from the curse of alcoholism. The first task of the World League was that of organization. Beginning with 14 national temperance organizations representing about the same number of countries, the official membership of the league has grown until there are now 48 national temperance organizations representing 30 countries.

"The moral and religious forces of America are under obligation to assist the effort to carry the gospel of prohibition to other countries of the world, so as to save prohibition in America and to keep the organized liquor forces of the world busy defending themselves in other countries against a temperance movement rather than to permit those forces to concentrate on breaking down prohibition in the United States of America.

ST. LOUISAN TO GO ON BIG GAME HUNT IN ALASKA

Dr. J. Lewis Hutton of 4400 Arsenal street will be one of a party of 10 sportsmen who will be on their way shortly to mountains in the southern tip of Alaska, near British Columbia, for about seven weeks of big-game hunting.

He will leave St. Louis tomorrow for Vancouver, B. C., there to take ship for Wrangell, Alaska. His companions will be from Boston, Philadelphia and Williamsport, Pa. Moose, bear and caribou will be the quarry of the party, principally. The party will go up the Stikine River from Wrangell, with a pack train, guides and tents.

Dr. Hutton visited the Klondike last year and got the "fever" for this sort of big-game hunting. The party expects to return late in October.

Time to Face the Facts

"So much has been said against the use of patent medicines that I have had a strong prejudice against them. But after four years doctoring with six different doctors, without results, for acute indigestion, gastritis, constipation, appendicitis and other ailments I was said to possess, I was encouraged to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, seeing what it had done for a friend similarly afflicted. I also was entirely relieved of my trouble, and am sure this medicine will do all and more than is claimed for it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores and druggists everywhere.

GRATITUDE EXPRESSED BY HUSBAND AND WIFE

One Had Been Afflicted 17 Years, and the Other 4 Years. They Had Both Tried Salves and Ointments Without Success. They Had Endured Great Suffering for All These Years. Now Advises Anyone Similarly Afflicted to Come to Me and Get Cured, and Wish a Long Life Because of the Benefit to Suffering Humanity.

The business conditions from every standpoint, whether it be agricultural, commercial, or the trades are better than ever before in the history of the United States, therefore, every man or woman who is afflicted with rectal troubles, should not put off treatment one day, but should make an effort to arrange for a cure at the earliest possible date.

The various forms of rectal troubles never get well of themselves, or by the use of salves, ointments, etc. They must be treated and cured by a physician (specialist) who understands what is necessary to do, and is able to do it.

I have been in rectal practice over 30 years. I have under treatment all the time, many patients afflicted with rectal troubles. I have cured them by the hundreds, and have on file in my office, hundreds of letters just like the one I publish in this advertisement, written by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Scheer. Letters of this kind are not written without due and careful consideration on the part of the writer, because their whole thought is to assist other sick people to a cure, such as they themselves received. Read their letter and then call at my office or write to me.

Remember, you are under no obligation unless you wish to place your case in my hands for a cure.

St. Louis, Mo.,
July 21, 1925.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe,
501 Pine St.

I want to write and tell you how thankful my husband and myself are that we have been cured of those painful piles, with which I suffered for 17 years and my husband for about 4 years. We had tried all salves and ointments without success, and I do want to tell this to anyone who is suffering with piles, not to wait as long as I have as it is only delaying their being cured by you. I know you can cure them with your gentle and mild treatment. Mr. Scheer did not lose any time from work while you were treating him.

If anyone is in doubt of being cured by you ask them not to hesitate to call at my home and I will give them the best of references, and I know they cannot help but go to you and be cured the same as my husband and myself did.

I wish you success and a long life. Again we thank you for what you have done for us.

Respectfully.

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON'S INTERVIEW IN IRELAND

Your Government Is Functioning; We Know It Is Going to Stand," He Said on Visit There.

A copy of an interview with Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, published July 17 in the Derry Journal, an Irish daily newspaper, has been received in St. Louis. Besides biographical paragraphs, the article is as follows:

"'I congratulate the country upon the appearance of stability that marks your Government, and I am quite optimistic about the future,' said Most Rev. Dr. Glennon, Archbishop of St. Louis, a native of County Meath, in the course of an interview. His Grace is on a visit home, and was last in Ireland in 1914.

"'It is no easy task,' he continued, 'to form a new Government, especially in Ireland, when you consider that, with the withdrawal of the English troops and the disbanding of the R. I. C., Ireland was left with no Government, inexperienced as the people were to create a Government anew.

"'In America, for instance, where it is claimed there is great capacity for self-government, it took from the Declaration of Independence in 1776 until 1789 before the Constitution was written, and even then it was incomplete until the bill of rights was added, whereas in Ireland after three years your Constitution is written, your Government is functioning, and we know now it is going to stand.

"'In Ireland there exists, as in most countries, a struggle between what we might call the ideal and the practical. I believe that Ireland's present immediate task is in her economic development, in her balancing her budget, and the continued functioning of her Government as a progressive Government.

Ideals and Debts.

"'Anyhow, it will not interfere with the preservation of a nation's ideal to set to work in paying the debts that press upon her. As one of your speakers has said with a good deal of truth, you do not erect milestones of progress along a pathway strewn with ashes.

"On the question of finance, his grace said:

"'I would be quite possible for Ireland to float a large loan in the United States at a very moderate rate of interest. It appears to me, however, that such a step is not necessary, since there appears to be money enough in the Irish banks; and, furthermore, a loan raised at home, being subject to the laws of the country, can be made more serviceable to the country from an economic standpoint.

"'In this, too, Ireland is to be congratulated, because she alone among the new nations is the only one who has not been compelled to go outside to borrow.'

"Discussing the possibility of Irish-Americans investing money in this country, Dr. Glennon pointed out: 'You must regard it largely on commercial lines. The sentimental may enter somehow, but there has to be reasonable prospect of a dividend; otherwise the Irish-American will abstain.'

Tourist Development.

"Besides the industrial side," said the Archbishop, "there was tourist development. If, as this development went along, Ireland was exploited from a scenic standpoint, 'you will,' he declader, 'certainly see an ever-increasing volume of Irish-American visitors coming to Ireland.'

"Thousands, he knew, would come as soon as they knew they could have ideal golf links, motor transport, good roads, and good hotels.

"Speaking of the Irish in America, his Grace said they continued to maintain a position of respect and prominence. Their devotion to the United States was unquestionable. By their willingness and ability to serve, they were found nearly everywhere but particularly in the avocations that demanded energy and intelligence.

"It was said the Irishman naturally took to politics, but his Grace thought that the Irishman felt service might be given and success attained in more serious ways than in politics."

Archbishop Glennon visited Ireland on his way to Rome.

PARIS UTILITIES RAISE FARES

Passengers Fight for Second-Class Seats to Avoid Rate.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The progressive increases in street car and autobus fares in Paris seem finally to have reached the straining point. The French have talked a good deal in recent years of "prices and taxes hitting the ceiling and then bounding back again," by the force of economic laws. Now they are wondering whether they have proof of that theory. As a result of the increase of first-class fares in autobusses, passengers are now flocking into the second class, at a lower fare.

The first-class fare has increased to one franc for a continuous ride from Paris suburbs to the center of the city. The same ride, second class, costs 80 centimes. Passengers are now fighting for places in the second-class compartments of the busses, and there is a question whether the total revenues of the company will not be decreased rather than increased because so few persons are riding at the higher first-class fare.

There is a rule, however, that all passengers must pay first-class fares on Sunday whether they are in first or second class compartments.

POPULAR SAINT LOUIS WAREHOUSE MANAGER PRAISES HERB JUICE

Says Among the Hundreds of Remedies Tried, It Is the Only Medicine That Ever Relieved His Condition.

MR. MICHAEL J. CRONIN

"I hardly know how to commence to tell you about the wonderful things that your Herb Juice has done for me, and in such a decidedly short time," said Mr. Michael J. Cronin, well-known and respected warehouse manager, who resides at 2307 North Market St., Saint Louis, Mo., when he called to personally express his gratitude to the Herb Juice man very recently.

"Before I started taking Herb Juice," continued Mr. Cronin, "it seemed to me at times that I could hardly go. I was in a very badly run down condition, and suffered a great deal from chronic constipation, indigestion, gas on the stomach and rheumatic pains all through my body. No matter what I ate, it seemed to disagree with me. It just seemed that my food would not digest. After eating I would have a heavy lump in the pit of my stomach, and would suffer intensely with pains around my heart, and a tight bloated feeling, caused from gas. Of course, this condition made me extremely nervous, and at times it was almost impossible for me to get any rest at night. I believe this conjestion in my stomach poisoned my entire system, because in recent years I have suffered a great deal with muscular rheumatism. It goes without saying that I tried hundreds of remedies for these ailments, but nothing seemed to give me any relief. A friend of mine advised me to take Herb Juice, telling me what wonderful results he had obtained from its use. So I finally decided to try it. And I am telling you now that I have never found anything that worked such wonders as has your Herb Juice. I have only taken three bottles, but before I had finished my first one, I knew that I had the right medicine. My bowels are as regular as a clock. I now eat anything I want and digest it properly. I never have any more of those pains around my heart; the heavy lump in my stomach has disappeared, and my nerves and the rheumatic pains never trouble me any more. I can now enjoy a peaceful night's rest without any disturbance whatsoever. There is nothing I could say in the praise of Herb Juice that would express my feeling for it, because I think without a doubt it is the greatest remedy ever offered to the American public. I shall always be pleased to have the opportunity of recommending Herb Juice to any one suffering as I did."

Hundreds are calling daily to see the Herb Juice man, who has established headquarters at Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 514 Washington Ave., giving statements for publication and praising Herb Juice that their friends may be induced to try the great remedy which is relieving so many sufferers in St. Louis.

Returns from an even dozen benefits and three cash donations have added $317.38 to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund during the last 10 days, bringing the fund to a total of $2319.13. Bills for ice distributed during the month of July amount to $2300, and with the $2000 already expended for ice during June, the obligations of the Ice Fund at the present time exceed the receipts by approximately $2000. Unless friends of the babies respond to the situation and make up the deficit the work among tenement children will be seriously curtailed.

Since the agency is "the only source of hot-weather relief for families in the congested districts, all the other charitable agencies of the city working with and through the Ice Fund, it is hoped that St. Louisans will realize the usefulness of its work and supply the funds needed to continue its activities.

A two-night vaudeville entertainment and comedy presented July 28 and 29 at the home of Mrs. H. Schwartzberg, 1377 Granville place, under the direction of Miss Gertrude Marks, 1392 Granville place, netted $81 for the fund. A miscellaneous program of vaudeville numbers was given by the following children: Bud Shriber, Leona Schneider, Leila Kallis, Dorothy Deane, Augusta Kravitz, Florence Frenzel, Margaret Post, Hildegarde Shriber, Leona Schneider, Doris Bick, Adele Pechersky, Dorothy Jane Bradshaw, Lloyd Casey, Milton Schwartzberg, Mary Young, Haskell Schwartzberg, Bernice Rader and Rose Feld. The following sold tickets and assisted at the refreshment stands: Sidney Harris, Milton Kravitz, Allen Charleston and Junior Post. Miss Marks managed a similar entertainment last year for the babies' fund.

Raise $60 by Plays.

Twenty-two young men and women earned $60 by presenting two plays, "Whiskers" and "Sewing for the Heathen" at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Juergens, 3703 Utah place. More than 200 persons from the neighborhood attended the performance and the refreshment sale which followed under the management of Mrs. Juergens. The workers were: Clara and Olivia Juergens, Emelia Sacks, Edith and Fern Mauerer, Virginia, Victoria and Isabel Stricker, Fanchon and Colette Graf, Catherine O'Brien, Edna Neibling, Pauline Weber, Marie Theiss, Florence Jockstein, Erma Springmeyer, Hertha Steiner, Dorothy Guth, Vera Kinzel, Edna la Borenz, Gladys Edinger and Frieda Bullmann.

Five small cousins residing at 5548 Vernon avenue gave an afternoon show, "The Follies" recently and far outdistanced the record they made with last year's show for the babies. They earned $50.01 for the fund. Of this amount $47 came from the sale of 5 and and 10 cent tickets and $3 was earned by a refreshment sale following the show. The Liberty Soda Co. donated soda for the sale. The children who did such good work for the babies' fund were: Estelle Pokres, Buddy and Dolly Bierbaum and Ruth and Marcella Pokres. Their production was directed by their mothers, Mrs. L. Pokres and Mrs. L. Bierbaum.

Shows Given by Children.

A show given July 24 at 3011 Union boulevard added $45 to the ice fund. The following children took part in the show: Virginia Burke, Olyve Mae Burke, Bertha and Mavis Spetner, Anna and Virginia Hamm and Margaret Smith. Donations were received from Union boulevard and Easton avenue business firms, the Larmore & Kramer Ice Cream Co., the White Rock Mineral Water Co., Honey Queen and National Soda companies.

Nine children gave a show at 3233 Copelin street July 29 and earned $30.50 for the fund. Those in the performance were: Eloise and Richard Burg, Berenice and Barnard Purcell, Elmer and Virginia Kleykamp, James Harris, Ruth Miller and Melvin Barkon. Chairs were donated by the Peetz Undertaking Co.

A show at 5565 Vernon avenue netted $24.53. Those in the cast were: Gertrude Slavin, Mollie Schachter, Mary Alice Casey, Adele Zorky, Esther Aguado, Annette Seltzer, Dorothy Cooper, Rose Mary Noland and Alexander Herskvitz. These workers who also have helped the babies in former years, sold refreshments after the performance. W. Zemlich of the City Bottling Co. donated soda and Mary Alice Casey and Mrs. F. Lectenberg furnished cakes.

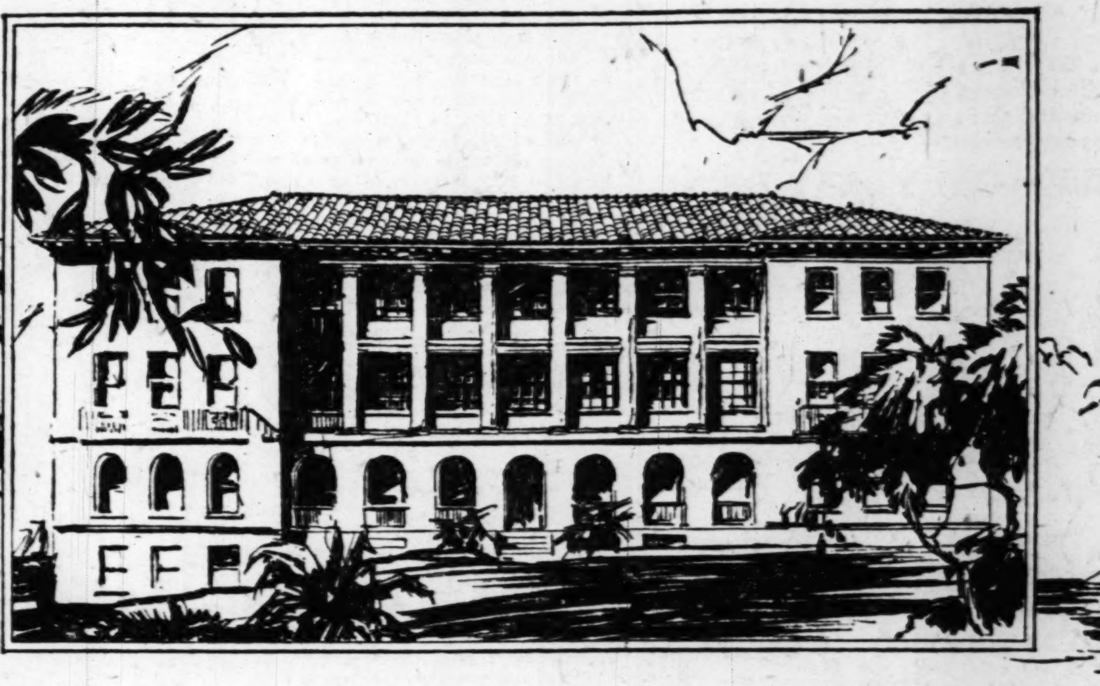
Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery

An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. S. McCleary, the noted specialist of Excelsior Springs, Mo. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for twenty-six years and in more than nine thousand cases. The book is sent postpaid free to persons afflicted with piles or other rectal troubles who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, 566 St. Louis Av., Excelsior Springs, Mo.

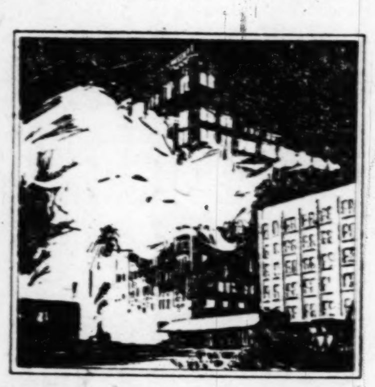


Why this tremendous swing to the use of SHEET STEEL?

—for industry—on farms—and in homes

FOR the past decade the public has demanded sheet steel and sheet steel products on an ever-increasing scale simply because more people are learning its value. Roofs of sheet steel cover us, we sleep in beds made of sheet steel, warm air furnaces built largely of sheet steel keep our dwellings warm and healthful, at less cost.

We ride more safely on railway or highway in sheet steel cars. Steel desks, doors, filing cases and partitions add to the convenience and safety of the offices in which we work? Housework has been halved by kitchens of sheet steel, finished in lustrous white enamel. In literally thousands of ways, sheet steel is increasing comfort, giving added durability or lowering costs, for commerce, for industry, for farms and for homes.



The Burlington Building and west side Chicago, was saved by firemen fighting from the vantage point of a sheet steel fire door. Authorities state a further use of sheet steel, for furniture and at windows, would have saved the entire contents of the building.

Roofs That Protect, Beautify and Endure

Consider the sheet steel roof. It protects not only the occupants and contents, but the very building itself, from the ravages of sun, wind and rain. A neighboring building burns; in an instant, white-hot sparks and flaming brands have covered the roof. But this roof is of sheet steel. Its non-inflammable surface stops the fire at the building's most vulnerable point. Even lightning is rendered harmless by simply providing this roof with the proper ground connection.

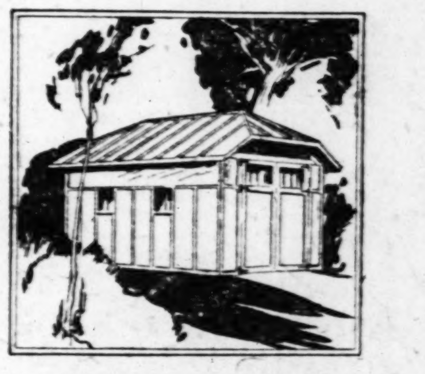
Roofs of unusual beauty are fashioned of this practical material. It is readily formed to give those delightful contrasts of light and shade, found in Mission and French Tile. On the other hand, for barns and industrial buildings, corrugated sheets give added strength and eliminate much of the cost and fire risk of the usual wood sheathing.

Furnaces That Insure Both Heat and Health

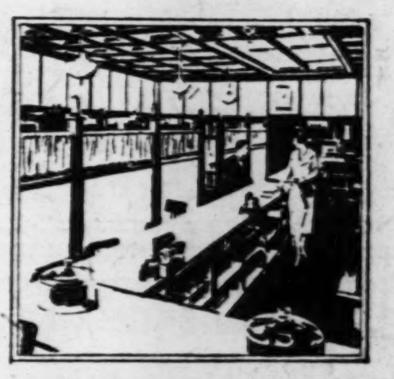
Sheet steel has helped solve the furnace problem for home or business. With correct furnace construction, warm moist air may now be provided for any room as required. Leading medical authorities state that the moisture content of the air is even more important to the health than the temperature. In addition, where proper moisture is provided, lower temperatures are required for comfort, so that radical savings can be effected in fuel bills.

Sheet Steel, the Universal Material

Light, strong, tough, pliable, easily formed and fabricated, sheet steel is used in countless products. Now to these practical qualities of economy, rugged strength and durability, may be added surpassing beauty. New developments make possible finishes that resist fire, acids and water. Spilled perfumes, forgotten cigarette stubs and plumbing leaks hold no terrors for the owner of sheet steel furniture. Steel ceilings, doors, partition and trim retain their original appearance through the life of the building. Hospital furniture, refrigerators, tables and kitchen equipment in enduring porcelain enamel provide sanitary cleanliness and lasting beauty.



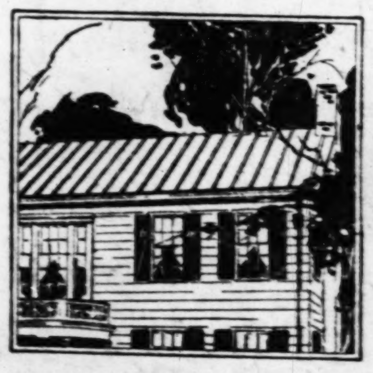
Sheet steel garages are fire-resisting, strong, durable, and economical to build. Such structures have shown their ability to confine an exceedingly hot fire for thirty minutes without imparing the value of the building.



Ceiling, walls and counters in this attractive restaurant are all of beautiful sheet steel. White enameled steel is sanitary and easily cleaned. The sheets adjust themselves to building settlement without shattering or cracking.

Because of this wide variety of services, sheet steel has today become the servant of millions in America, in ways that a few years ago were unknown. That is the reason the sheet steel mill tonnage has been increased more than fivefold in almost a decade. Each day finds added numbers of users, who have secured increased safety, better appearance or greater economy, through the use of this wonderful material.

Whether it is a new building or new equipment that you require, for your office or your home, discover the advantages of sheet steel now. Investigate its strength, its durability, its cleanliness, its beauty. Our booklet "THE SERVICE OF SHEET STEEL TO THE PUBLIC," will bring you many interesting and valuable facts about sheet steel and its uses. Your name and address will bring you a copy by return of mail.



The vertical lines of this rib-type sheet steel roof gives a delightful touch to this Colonial house—beautiful, fire-safe, durable.

TRY LEMON JUICE TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Tests Show Ford Can Run 60 Miles on Gallon of Gas

The amazing fact that a Ford can run 60 miles on a gallon of gasoline was recently brought to light thru tests conducted by America's foremost engineers. Great strides have already been made in this direction by the recent invention of a simple attachment which can be installed in a few minutes without any alterations to motor. A. C. Winterburn made 41.4 miles on 1 gallon of gasoline after this device was attached. B. O. Weeks, famous aviator and inventor, wants agents and will send samples for trial. Write him today at 426-1429 Eleventh St., Milwaukee, Wis.

AUTHOR IS NATIONAL HERO OF FILIPINOS

Manuscript of Jose Rizal, Sentenced to Death by Spaniards, Offered Government.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1925.)

MANILA, July 2. — Resident Commissioner Isauro Gobaldon, who is also a Representative-elect to the Philippine Legislature, will offer a bill in the Legislature to acquire the original manuscript of "El Filibusterismo" by Jose Rizal for the Philippine library and museum. This rare document is now the property of Valentin Ventura, an old Filipino scholar, who offers it to the Government for $5000, although refusing three times that sum from various collectors.

This attitude is very characteristic of Filipinos, and is one of the explanations of the fine quality of their friendship. They will often bestow as a gift what otherwise is beyond price to them, and they say "hay cosas que no hay para vender"—"there are things which may not be sold." This was not taught them by Spanish chivalry, but arises from native custom.

Author National Hero.

Dr. Jose Rizal has become during the American regime the national hero of the Philippines: Pass any marble shop and one will see in course of completion one or more statutes of Rizal, destined for erection on public squares. His books, "Noli me Tangere" and "El Filibusterismo," the one first published in Berlin in 1887 and the other first published in Ghent in 1891, thoroughly exposed (in the allegorical form in which the Filipino loves to receive or impart facts) what Rizal believed to be the defect of Spanish Government in the islands—the overpowering influence of the friar priests as opposed to the secular priests.

The books trace a story of the diabolical machinations of certain friars, and deftly describe the more conspicuous aspects of the Spanish government in the decade preceeding the insurrection of 1896, when the friars forced the government to its decision to shoot Rizal at Luneta park. Charles Derbyshire's excellent English translations of these two novels, the power of which proved more than that of rifles, are under the name of "The Reign of Greed" and "The Social Cancer."

Books Read Secretly.

The European editions and those published later in Buenos Aires were proscribed by the government, but were smuggled in through may ingenious schemes. It was a grave crime to have either book in one's possession; to a Catholic it meant excommunication if discovered. Nevertheless the books circulated widely. One who could read even the dialect translations and who secured the books would assemble his neighbors in his house at midnight, where by the dimmest light and with windows and doors tightly closed, the reading and exposition would proceed night after night to the close of the volumes, unless meanwhile the terrible "guardia civil" were apprised of what was going on.

There were no schools then except those conducted by the religious orders which the books so vigorously criticized. In two of these schools Rizal had been taught before his university study in Europe—at Heidelberg and elsewhere. Students in these schools were determined to have the books, and a way was found. A Dominican friar had written a natural history which was used as a textbook. Editions of Rizal were made to fit into the covers of this text, from which the students would remove the dry pages of natural history and insert the forbidden books. The scheme, is seems, was never discovered.

Friar Estates Bought Up.

By 1896 public opinon against the friars' activities in governmental as well as business affairs was so strong that armed protest could be made against it and receive general support. The movement was primarily against the friars, not the church itself or the Government. When it was revived by the American occupation and friars were taken prisoner, they were generally subjected to very severe treatment if not tortured and killed. Governor-General Taft saw that abuses had existed, so he early arranged, with approval of President McKinley, to buy up the friar estates and remove them as big factors in business. Their undue influence with the Government terminated at the time of the American exception, too.

The original manuscript of "Noli me Tangere" was given by Dr. Rizal to his sister Lucia, and was acquired from her for the Philippine Library some years ago. The Philippiniana collection in the library, the best in the world, was begun under Dr. James A. Robertson, who as librarian under Gov. Taft carried to successful completion the task of writing a 55-volume history of the Philippines during the Spanish regime from 1565 to 1898 in collaboration with Miss Emma Hellen Blair. Only 489 copies of this remarkable work, little known outside of academic circles, were printed, and already complete sets are rare.

Watch 200 Years Old Keeps Time.

By the Associated Press.

NOCONA, Tex., Aug. 8.—R. H. Price of Nocona is in possession of a watch 200 years old, which was made by Smitton & Hutton in London. This ancient timepiece has been passed down in his family for generations. Although somewhat large, wound by a key and of the "chain drive" variety, it keeps good time. The watch has been on exhibition at two world fairs and will be exhibited at the Old Soldiers' Re-union here August 6, 7 and 8.

RAPID PROGRESS NEAR COLUMBIA ON STATE ROAD 2

Some Pavement Opened Between College City and Boonville — More Will Be in Use Soon.

By a Special Correspondent.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 8.—Record-breaking road construction may be seen only a few miles from here, toward Boonville, where road gangs are working on No. 2, Missouri's greatest cross-state highway. Already a few miles of hard-surfaced road is open between here and Boonville. Several more miles have been laid and will be opened as soon as the concrete has stood the length of time prescribed by the State Highway Commission.

All of the grading between Rocheport and Boonville has been finished. After following the Old Trails route for a mile out of Rocheport, the motorist is detoured onto the new highway. After climbing a slightly sloping hill, one drives along the top of the Missouri River bluffs on a smoothly graded dirt road, some 60 feet wide. This road will be hard surfaced by October.

Upon reaching the river bottoms, the road passes between two bluffs through which the contractors have made a deep and wide cut. At the end of the bluffs is a concrete viaduct which passes over the M.-K.-T. tracks, and, after a hundred feet or so of earth, lands the motorist on a stretch of concrete about a mile long. When the remainder of this road has been opened, there will be almost a straight 10-mile run from Lloyd's Station, where the viaduct is, to the end of the Boonville bridge on this side of the river. There are no longer any steep hills between here and Boonville, as in the past, for the dirt road has been graded and bluffs cut through until only gentle slopes remain.

When the new road is completed and opened, it will mean only a run of 45 or 50 minutes to Boonville from here, with no fear of mud in the river-bottom lands, or steep and dangerous hills to be climbed.

Another central Missouri road project which is rapidly being completed is the stretch of concrete running from the M.-K.-T. tracks near the Missouri River bluffs into Jefferson City. From the tracks to the Missouri River bridge one can travel on concrete virtually all the way. The new viaduct is similar to the one on the Boonville

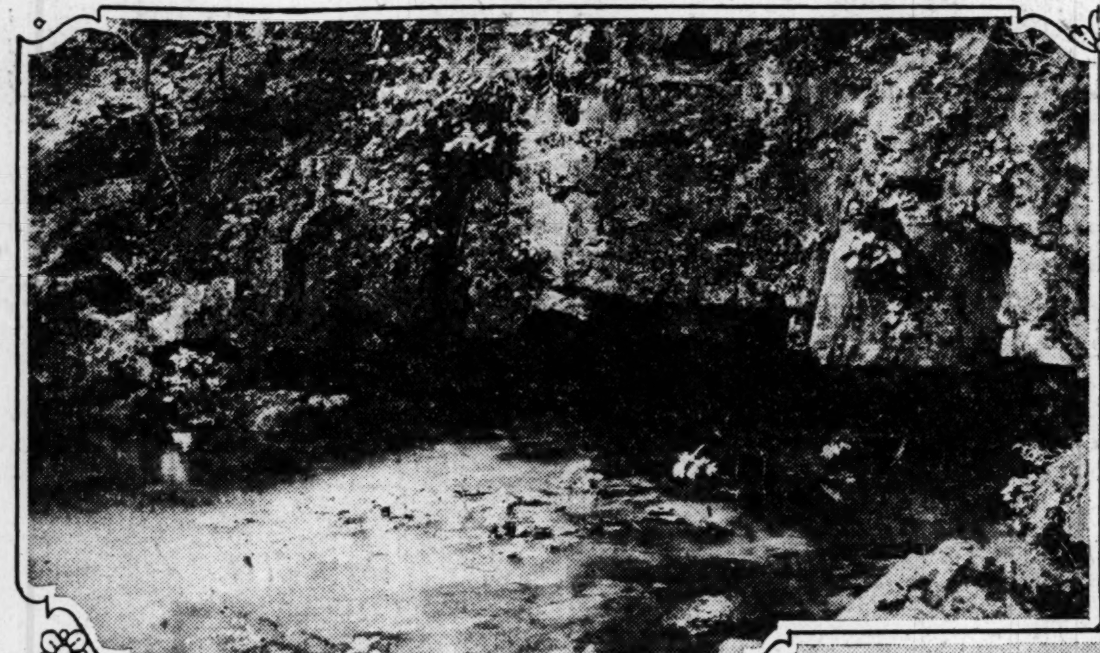
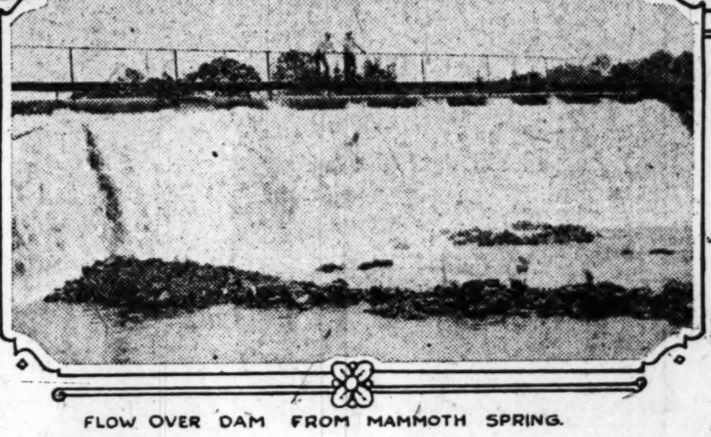
Tour to Spring Said to Be Largest in the United States



WHERE ROUND SPRING COMES FROM UNDER THE HILL

JACK'S FORK RIVER WINDING THROUGH VALLEY IN SHANNON COUNTY NORTH OF EMINENCE.



FLOW OVER DAM FROM MAMMOTH SPRING.

By JAMES HENDRICKSON.

ANOTHER interesting vacation tour out of St. Louis combines parts of tours previously described, but has Mammoth Springs and Grand Gulf, Ark., Round and Alley Springs and "The Sinks" in Shannon County, Mo., as high lights. Most of it is over surfaced roads, and offers inspiring scenery, interesting "freaks of nature," good fishing and fine camping.

This tour starts over the Lemay Ferry road and goes via Festus, Hematite, De Soto, Flat River and Farmington to Fredericktown, then south on State Highway No. 23 to Poplar Bluff, then west on No. 23 for 11.8 miles to No. 42, which goes to Alton, county seat of Oregon County, a typical mountain town. From Alton the route is south for 19.6 miles over Highway No. 19 to Thayer, thence on No. 7 to the State line. A good road leads from the State line half a mile to Mammoth Springs. This route takes the motorist over beautiful winding, shady roads which twist their way along the ridges and valleys and across Eleven Point River through Butler, Ripley and Oregon counties. The road from Alton to Mammoth Springs is not a completed State highway, but was constructed by the county several years ago and is surfaced with gravel.

Several miles out of Alton there are plenty of evidences of great earth convulsions of the past. Probably the New Madrid earthquake had something to do with topographical conditions along this route. Large holes in the form of bowls may be found on top of the ridges along the route. They remind of shell holes in France.

Thayer is a little mountain town, on the main line of the Frisco Railroad, and is a division point. The highway leads through the business part of Thayer, then up a steep second-gear hill. The town of Mammoth Springs has a population of approximately 1000. It is widely known as a summer resort.

The spring covers an area of seven acres. It is about 600 feet wide at the widest place, and it is nearly a quarter of a mile from the dam to the point on the north shore where water boils up. The spring sends out 300,000,000 to 500,000,000 gallons of water every 24 hours, the amount varying during dry and wet periods. The lake formed by the 100-foot dam is 10 to 30 feet in depth and is used by the Federal Government as a fish hatchery.

Some years ago the spring was purchased by a corporation that wished to develop the power possibilities. Now power from the dam at Mammoth Springs operates a large flour mill and three miles down Spring River another dam has been constructed by a company that furnishes electric power to towns in Southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas.

Mammoth Springs water maintains a temperature of 48 degrees during the coldest and warmest weather. It never varies more than one degree, older residents declare. Few people attempt to bathe in the lake formed by the dam because of the low temperature.

Nine miles northwest of Mammoth Springs, far back in the woods, is "Grand Gulf," a low place that contains water only in rainy periods. Over the gulf is a natural stone bridge about 200 feet in length, sufficiently large to permit automobiles to pass over it. Under the center of the bridge is a cave. Many persons have attempted to explore the cave, but have been alarmed by the terrific noises in it. The noise is believed to be caused by an underground river. A few years ago a man came to Mammoth Springs equipped for exploring the cave. A large crowd gathered at the entrance to bid him well and he disappeared into the dark hole. The crowd waited and waited, but he never returned. Some time before that incident a bale of hay was thrown into the underground stream and three days later, older residents say, some of the hay was seen going over the dam at Mammoth Springs. It is possible that the underground stream heard at Grand Gulf comes to the surface at Mammoth Springs.

Returning from Mammoth Springs the motorist can double back to Alton and make a side trip to Greer Spring. The contrast in these springs is remarkable. Mammoth Spring is "harnessed." Greer Spring is in the wilds, surrounded by mountains and forests. This spring also is privately owned, but tourists are welcomed there by the owner and during the past few weeks thousands of persons have driven to the top of the mountain overlooking the spring and walked down the long pathway to it. Returning from the gorge those not accustomed to mountain climbing find it a hard pull.

Motoring to Mammoth Springs one should set his speedometer at the courthouse in Poplar Bluff.

ROAD CONDITIONS IN MISSOURI ARE MISREPRESENTED

Though Highways Are Better Than Ever Before, Tourists Are Told to Avoid State.

Motorists report that Chicago newspapers and some touring bureaus are telling them not to try to motor through Missouri this summer, asserting that the roads are in bad condition because of detours.

As a matter of fact, Missouri roads generally are in better condition than ever before. It is true that there is much road construction under way, but the State Highway Commission is maintaining the detours so well that in most cases these are better than the original highway.

In some cases detours have been graveled. All dirt roads in the State highway system, whether parts of main highways or detours, are being dragged and kept in excellent condition, and in most cases have been widened. Many of the dirt roads are veritable race tracks.

During and after rain, of course, Missouri dirt roads are bad. So are dirt roads in other states, including Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

Stretches of graveled roads are being opened to traffic continually in Missouri. The highway engineers of the various divisions into which Missouri has been divided are not only building new roads, but also are striving to get the dirt roads into such condition that while they may be slippery when wet, nevertheless motorists can get over them.

George Drummond, head of the Touring Department of the Automobile Club of Missouri, said yes-

Jewett Coach Now $1245

Many Important Improvements—New Lower Price!

Jewett Coach now has more entrance space than any two-door car on the market

New lower prices on all improved Jewett models as follows: Jewett Coach $1245, Jewett De Luxe Touring $1320, Jewett De Luxe Coach $1400, Jewett De Luxe Roadster $1500, Jewett De Luxe Sedan $1680. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, tax extra. Paige-hydraulic 4-wheel brakes at slight extra cost

WE have made Jewett Coach comparison-proof—in roominess—in quality of detail—price!

To its already ample roominess—unmatched in the Coach field—we have skillfully added length without bulk—for even more roominess.

Jewett Coach now has more entrance space than any two-door car on the market.

It's the greatest example of manufacturing and designing skill Jewett has ever produced.

A Coach with so many great qualities, you will be hard put to the task of finding its greatest.

You will get an impression of quality when you see Jewett Coach such as you have never associated with so low a price. Too look so good—Jewett Coach must be good.

And when you drive—you will realize instantly that Jewett has made a truly great motor even greater in smooth, quiet power.

See These Improvements!

You will be impressed with its new completeness that neglects nothing—charmed with its distinctive new coloring and upholstery.

To appreciate this great car you must see its many improvements. The new coincidental lock that locks steering wheel and ignition with one turn of the key; a new air cleaner that keeps road dust and grit out of the cylinders; indirect lighting that eliminates glare on the instrument board; light switches conveniently at hand on the steering gear; gear shift and emergency brake levers moved forward to provide clear floor space in front and many other equally important improvements.

It Took 17 Years to Build It

Jewett has concentrated the experience of 17 years on this Coach. Through all these years it has been our constant desire to produce a car as good—as beautiful—as completely an engineering triumph as Jewett Coach—at a moderate price!

Already Jewett Coach has produced for us a sales record unequaled in our business.

Now—we offer a greater Jewett Coach, with all its improvements at an important reduction in price.

Come in and let us show you what these improvements mean with yourself at the wheel.

OUR SPECIAL TERMS—Jewett Standard Coach With Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes. Freight and Tax Included, Also Fire and Theft Insurance. $475 Down or Car in Trade as Part Payment and $62.30 Per Month.

AJAX CARS SHOWN FOR FIRST TIME TO PUBLIC IN ST. LOUIS

A seven-bearing crankshaft, four-wheel brakes, full balloon tires, force feed lubrication to all main bearings, camshaft and connecting rod bearings, body lines of long car distinction, are some of the features of the new Ajax six which was shown Friday for the first time in St. Louis. Interest in the debut of this car was the greater when it appeared that it was to be offered in only two styles—five-passenger four-door sedan—and that the price at factory of the touring car was only [illegible] and of the sedan only [illegible]. The first showing was by the Southwest Nash Co., [illegible] boulevard. While the Ajax will soon be on display throughout the city and in all nearby places, for the present it will be shown only at the Southwest Nash Co. showrooms.

The introduction of the Ajax has been awaited by the automobile industry as well as automobile buyers who have followed the unusual manufacturing record of C. W. Nash, who regards the new car as his crowning achievement. The car is built by the Ajax Motors Co., a subsidiary of Nash Motors. The Ajax plant at Racine, Wis., was completely remodeled and equipped with the precision machine equipment and tools so the new car should have every production advantage.

Though not as large as the Nash car, the Ajax has an over-all length of [illegible] inches. The touring car and sedan bodies' attractiveness is enhanced by a double bead at the belt line. They are mounted on a low body frame, thus assuring road steadiness at all speeds. The seating arrangement in both cars [illegible] neutral first switches on the cowl and tail lights, while further movement brings on the tail light only.

With a six-cylinder, [illegible] inch L-head engine developing 40 horsepower in a sedan weighing, fully equipped, [illegible] pounds, the Ajax should perform well. It is said to have liveliness and rapidity of getaway coupled with extreme smoothness.

A seven-bearing crankshaft in a car of this size and price is without precedent. This shaft, careful and scientific balancing of reciprocating parts and precision workmanship are said to have developed an engine that has no rough spots [illegible]

Studebaker has announced reduced prices on all models [illegible]

[illegible] on this one-profit basis—the Studebaker in the fine-car field and the Ford in the low-price field. Only in these two cases does one company in its own plants and with its own centralized organization make all bodies, all engines, all clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gray iron cast-ings and drop forgings. Savings made possible by this system enabled us to announce new low prices on Jan. [illegible] of this year. Now we are able to make further reductions."

NEW JEWETTS ROOMIER AND PRICES ARE LESS

NUMEROUS major improvements, including a roomier body, are offered by the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. on its Jewett sixes at greatly reduced prices. The improved Jewett line includes an additional model, the de luxe coach, as well as the de luxe five-passenger sedan, standard coach, de luxe touring car and de luxe roadster. These models are shown by the Wilson Motor Car Co., local distributor. The improvements on the Jewett sixes include nearly six inches added to the interior of all models. Factory officials declare the commodious interiors are the biggest in any car, particularly the front compartment. Entrance to the rear seat is effected without disturbing the front seats in the two-door coach models.

A new lock, located on the steering column at the dash, controls both ignition and steering. The brake and gear levers have been moved forward three inches.

A spare tire is mounted on the rear and quarter bumpers have been adopted. Air cleaner equipment on the carburetor was the most important change made in the power plant.

Hidden wires and stronger brackets are now on the headlamps. There is only one bulb in the lamps. The lighting is entirely controlled from the steering column, making it easy to switch on and off bright lights while on the road. The dash is lighted indirectly. There is a new dash panel and a built-in sun visor.

New color schemes are striking. The de luxe sedan and the de luxe roadster are gray below the lower belt molding, a darker gray between the belts, and black above and they are trimmed in ivory stripes. The standard coach is in [illegible] green with an ivory stripe. The de luxe coach and the de luxe touring car are in beige brown and trimmed in ivory stripes. All de luxe models have nickeled radiators.

Equipment on the de luxe models includes spare tire with cover and tire, bumpers front and rear, rear view mirror, combination stop and tail light, automatic windshield wiper and heater in the enclosed models.

All de luxe models have steel wheels. All models have balloon tires. All models have four-wheel hydraulic brakes at slight extra cost.

and tail light have been added as standard equipment without additional cost on these models at the new prices. This price adjustment, according to Gray officials, is one of the first steps in the plans of the new and stronger Gray organization toward increased volume of business and expansion of Gray sales throughout the country. Gray for several years has held the official American Automobile Association coast-to-coast economy record of 23.8 miles a gallon.

NEW PRICES ON STAR CARS MADE EFFECTIVE FROM AUG. 1

Price reductions on Star cars are announced, effective from Aug. 1. The new prices at the factory are as follows: Roadster, $525; touring car, $525; coupster, $595; coupe, $675; coach, $695, and sedan, $775. All Star models have the "million-dollar motor," which has force-feed lubrication, and is 25 per cent more powerful than the former motor, which made the Star notable as a hill climber.

AUTO ROUTES THROUGH ST. LOUIS BEING SIGNED

Two Temporary Changes in Routings Necessitated by Street and Viaduct Repairs.

Signing routes through St. Louis to State Highway No. 2, No. 9, No. 12 and No. 14, and to the Free Bridge and McKinley Bridge, was started Tuesday by the Automobile Club of Missouri. The turns are being marked first, and most of them have been signed.

It has been necessary to make temporary changes in the routes. Instead of signing the route from the Free Bridge to No. 2 over Chouteau, Grand, Forest Park boulevard and Sarah street to Lindell boulevard, the signs direct one out Chouteau to Compton, to Lawton, to Theresa, to Lindell. This is because the Grand avenue viaduct is being repaired and probably will be closed to traffic by Aug. 24.

The tearing up of several blocks in Grand boulevard north of St. Louis avenue has necessitated turning right from Grand into St. Louis one block, then left to Natural Bridge road and on to the McKinley Bridge.

CURVED ARROWS TO WARN OF CURVES IN ILLINOIS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 8.—Inability of many motorists to discriminate quickly between their "left" and "right" has caused engineers of the State Highway Department to design a new highway sign with a curved arrow to designate curves leading to the right or left.

"The curved arrow helps a motorist to visualize the direction of a curve beter than the letters "R" and "L," which heretofore have been used," said R. R. Benedict, assistant State highway engineer. "It is a fact that many motorists have difficulty in discriminating quickly between right and left while driving. The curved arrow instantly tells him the direction he may expect the road to take.

People of various nationalities who are driving cars sometimes are unable to read English, Benedict said, and for these the visual system is ideal.

Signs now in use designate double curves by "S," while single curves are pointed out "L" and "R."

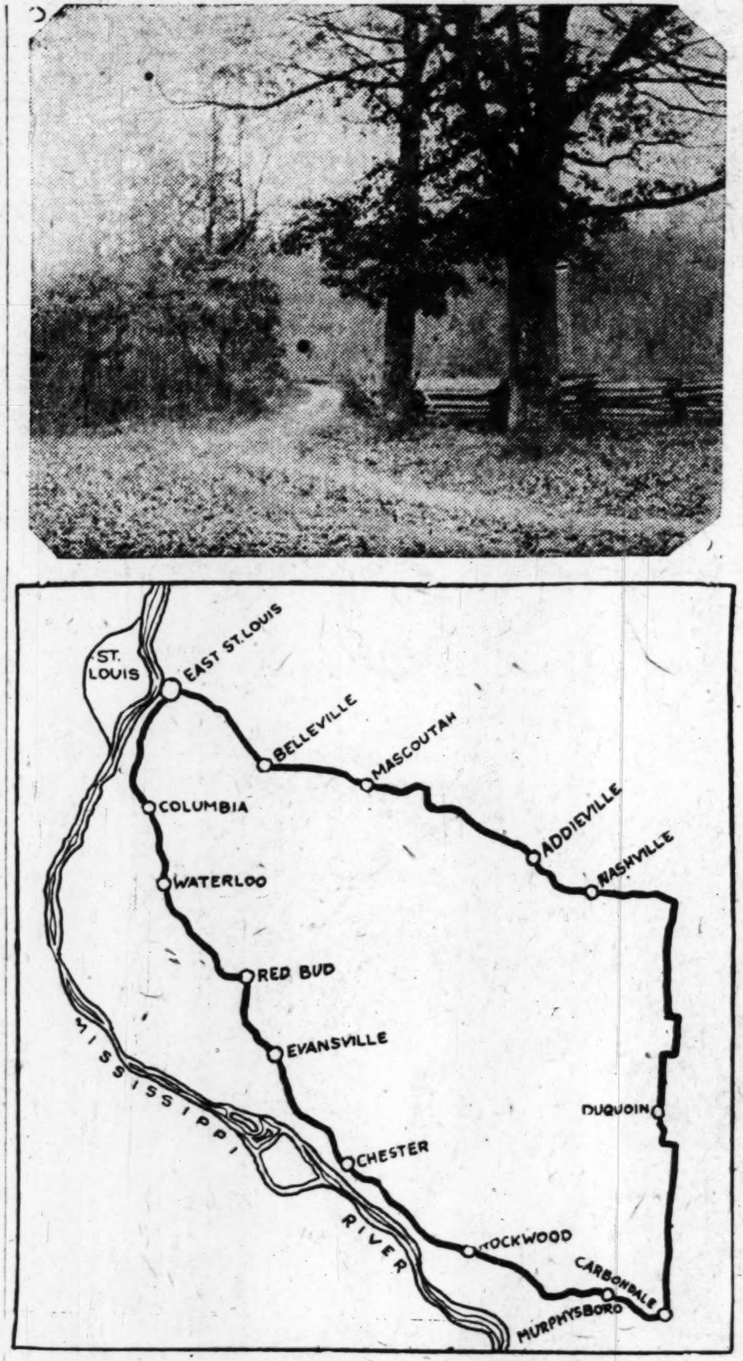
Through the Fat Illinois Bottom Lands

Party in Paige Six Finds Much of Beauty and Interest in Rich Country South of Chester, With Lovely Region Back From the Bluffs and a Hill That Looks Unclimbable in High.

By Spence.



Glimpse up a side road in the bluff country south of Chester, Ill., and map of tour taken by Paige party.

THE concrete of State highway No. 3 to Chester, Ill., which to many persons is the prettiest trip into Illinois available from St. Louis; miles of rambling through the rich bottom lands along the Mississippi River below Chester; beautiful river vistas from the bluffs; lovely stretches of back country between the bluffs and State highway No. 2; wide expanses of prairie, and the marshes and swales of the Okaw bottoms, were traversed one day the past week by H. Claude Merry, general manager of the Wilson Motor Car Co. and the writer in one of the fine new Paige four-door broughams. It was a 226-mile trip of varied interest that gave a new idea of the wonderful soil, the lush crops and teeming fertility of a section of the bottom lands that seldom is seen by St. Louisans.

Not as in the Old Days.

This tour is not to be undertaken immediately after rain; there are too many miles of dirt road between Chester and the concrete of State highway No. 2. Nor should it be made late on a Sunday, lest the motorist be smothered in dust. But if he starts around 7 a. m. and makes good time to Chester, he should be well over most of the dirt road before the traffic becomes heavy. If he takes the trip on a week day, he should have the roads pretty well to himself. At any time he will do well to remember that one still must use dirt roads to see much that is worth seeing, and that one might as well shrug his shoulders and grin at the bumps. In the Paige—a big, luxurious car, well sprung and long enough to ride the waves comfortably—it was a pleasant as well as interesting 226 miles.

The writer's interest was heightened by Merry's comments on the roads. For Merry is one of the oldtimers of St. Louis' Auto Row. He drove those roads in the days when they were paths of sorrow and lamentation, when the best highway was a trail of tribulation compared with the dirt roads of today.

Swinging to the left of the Free Bridge, Merry drove a block, then turned left about two blocks over a rough dirt street, then left again onto the concrete of State highway No. 3. The writer reset the speedometer at 00.0 at the first railroad crossing. The new Cahokia Creek bridge was in use, and the rough stretch leading to the old bridge had been replaced by a quarter mile of gravel road beyond which was the concrete.

Lovely in the Early Morning.

It was lovely in the early morning as the big Paige pufred along the concrete ribbon through a varied countryside—a long line of bluffs to the left beyond wide flat fields, broad farming country to the right, all softly blue in the haze. Then came long, lazy vistas across the bottom lands with their thick stands of dark green and bronze yellow corn, broken here and there by clumps of trees, white farm houses—a fat, prosperous country. Soon Columbia—a pretty village with quaint old brick houses. Beyond, many substantial old brick farm homes, each set in its own grove. At 20.7, Waterloo, another old town.

At 22.7, a fine sweeping view down a gentle slope and across a 15-mile stretch of bottoms to the blue Missouri hills. At 39.1, Red Bud. A few miles farther, a grove of tall, slim trees, shallow ravines and gullies thickly grown with trees and brush, their shallow depths prettily dappled with light and shadow.

It still was necessary to detour on the old stone and gravel road through Evansville, but soon the Paige was on concrete again. At 48.2, inspiring views in all directions, and at 57.5, an interesting glimpse of the Mississippi river and the Missouri bottoms. At 60.8, Chester and the end of the concrete.

Up Into a Land of Beauty.

On through the town, following No. 3 highway signs to the edge of the bluffs on which the town is picturesquely set, then down a winding grade to the left and along the bank of the river, with bluffs close at the left and railroad tracks at the right. The road is fair dirt, and it is rather pretty there under the bluffs. At 65.1, a long one-way bridge over Mary's river, then a pretty stretch where the road winds in and out through deep cuts in the dirt hillocks overgrown with shrubs and vines.

At 66.1, left up a steep grade whose sharp pitch comes as a surprise. From the top of the bluffs there are pretty glimpses of valleys and hills. Merry and the writer were out of luck in one way, for presently they found themselves lagging in low behind a ponderous steam tractor dragging a threshing machine. But at the same time they had plenty of time to appreciate the fact that for nearly half a mile this stretch of road offers a series of views over and down into beautiful valleys, so lovely that they are worth in themselves the 67-mile trip from St. Louis and the climb up that rough, tough dirt grade.

The road continues dirt, generally well dragged and fairly good going, though one must look out for occasional "thank you marms" and shallow gullies athwart the roadway. It rambles through broken country, in and out, up and down, with lovely swales and ravines and charming pastoral vistas continually inviting one to linger. In an older country, this road—like many traversing the lovely hills and vales of Jefferson County, Missouri—would be a boulevard and heralded as a great attraction.

Better Not Try This in High.

At 71.0 begins a series of fine views down to the river culminating at 71.9 in a really splendid panorama. Then down a grade so steep and rough that if anyone believes he owns a hill-climbing car, he would better stay away from this hill. Merry and the writer debated whether to turn at the bottom and try it in high, but as the Paige lunged and bounced down the grade, wallowing over "thank you marms" and wicked pitches, they decided they would let the other fellow try climbing it.

At 72.4, a shallow brook ford. The road here runs through a lovely valley that presently debouches into the little village of Rockwood. For a way the road—still dirt—rambles along on the hillside, then drops to the edge of the bottoms along the base of rugged bluffs. At the first iron bridge beyond Rockwood, at 74.7, right and out into the bottoms, at 77.6 coming out on the river bank, with a wide view over sand bars. The river describes a great bend, and the road cuts across this, following a low levee that runs for some miles. It is really pretty there in the bottoms—great fields of corn, wooded swales, bits of marsh. The road is good dirt. The Paige rode as easily as a Pullman. It was pleasant in the fat country, rich seeming in a way that must be seen and sensed to be fully understood.

On to Murphysboro.

At 88.4, left with a sign for Murphysboro and Jacob Station on an oiled road. At 90.3, left on oiled gravel. Another interesting cross-section of Illinois bottom-land prosperity as the road wound around toward the distant Illinois bluffs. At 93.0, Gorham and the first evidence of the tornado's destruction and the reaction from despair to determination to rebuild. There were still some people living in tents, but everywhere in the town new buildings were going up and the spirit of the town soared high. Out on a gravel road that soon turned to dirt. So-so going, but wide and graded. At 95.8, right, and right again at 97.5 onto an old stone road. At 98.3, left onto a good stone road. At 99.2, a bridge over a creek, then right along the base of low hills on a dirt road that soon became good.

The road winds along a valley, rising by imperceptible degrees, then climbs a series of fairly steep little hills and soon is on top of the bluffs with a wide view over Murphysboro. Another stretch of pretty back country, then, at 103.0, a gravel road, and at 104.5 a long bridge and pavement into Murphysboro, which, as with Gorham, was too busy repairing the ravages of the storm to have any time or disposition to bemoan its losses. An inspiring illustration of the ability of men to rise above misfortune and rebuild from the ruins better than before.

Tourist Camps.

Out of Murphysboro on Eighth street, over a bridge, some nine-foot pavement, then left on a fine stretch of wide concrete that goes on in the distance far beyond where one is shunted left on a dirt detour. But this is as fine a dirt road as one could wish, well dragged, fast as a racecourse, to a junction with concrete State highway No. 2. Right to Carbondale for lunch, then back over No. 2 and on north through flat prairie country that is not so monotonous as might seem. A well-built, prosperous-looking State fair park near Duquoin. Now and then rather attractive-looking privately run auto camp grounds, each in its own grove and with room for many cars.

A sudden rain squall burst soon after the Paige rolled through Du Quoin, and the downpour lasted long enough to make it inadvisable to try any more dirt roads. So there was nothing for it but to dust along the concrete of No. 2 and No. 15 to Belleville and on home. Incidentally, anything sweeter than the way that Paige dusted for mile after mile, steady as a clock, quiet and vibrationless, but surging with repressed power—the writer has not seen in a long time. The long miles fairly flowed behind it.

An interesting two-mile stretch on No. 15 is where the road crosses the Okaw bottoms on a high dirt fill. The highway engineers do not yet deem it wise to attempt to lay concrete on the fill, so are keeping it cindered. But the road is all right in wet weather and in fair condition. If one is running 35 miles an hour when he sights it, he merely slows down to 20 or 25 until he comes again to the concrete.

The mileage for the trip from the Post-Dispatch Building and back again was 226.9.

How the Paige Performed.

In the first place, let it be understood that there is no reason to question a Paige's ability to run as fast as a man can desire all day long. It proved in this trip that when it comes to getting up and going somwhere in a hurry all the way, it need lag behind no car. Speed? All one can use, and more. Power? It puts its shoulder into the harness and slogged harder than any mule ever raised in Missouri. An engine with 3¾-inch bore and 5-inch stroke has the stuff that means power. Acceleration? From 5 miles to 40 at the fifth telephone pole. For certain reasons, not unconnected with a suspicious-looking car just ahead, it didn't seem advisable to see how fast it could be running at the sixth and seventh and eighth poles. The writer has a hunch that certain deputies and a Justice of the Peace are not as rich today as they would have been had Merry continued to step on it, instead of passing that car at a decorous 30 miles an hour. But there were plenty of opportunities later to find out that while the Paige classes as a good big car—its wheelbase is 131 inches—there is nothing sluggish about it; quite the contrary. It fairly leaps when one pushes it to pass another car on the road.

It ran quietly at all speeds, and for this its 105-pound crankshaft was partly responsible. There was no weave or jiggle on the rough stretches, and its 61½-inch rear springs did a lot toward smoothing out the bumps. So did its balloon

"This is my idea of a fine motor car"

All talk about the new 1926 Chandler reveals a warmth of enthusiasm seldom encountered in discussions of automobiles.

The public is impressed with Chandler's new beauty—won to admiration by the style and good taste of its design.

People are singling it out on the streets with admiring eyes—recognizing and remembering it by its distinctive new radiator design.

People who previously owned higher priced cars—people who previously owned lower priced cars—people who perhaps never before considered Chandler are today swelling Chandler sales.

The fine ease of handling—quiet, effortless shifting of gears—smoothness—the great mountain-taming power of its Pikes Peak Motor—everything about the car makes the owner glad he owns it!

REPORT ON ROADS TO CHIEF CANADIAN CITIES

Trip of 1750 Miles From Detroit to Toronto, Montreal and Quebec and Back.

So heavy, comparatively, is the trend of touring toward Canada that the report of the Detroit Automobile Club's road scout on roads around Lake Erie and Lake Ontario is printed herewith.

On account of the poor condition of the Sarnia-London road at present, the club road scout advises that the lake shore route out of Windsor be followed to London, Ontario. This road has 100 miles of gravel and 36 miles of concrete, all of which is in good condition. From London pavement will be found on the Provincial highway into Toronto.

The distance from Detroit to Toronto following this route is 258 miles.

From Toronto, while the road is under construction in several places, good detours are provided, and no trouble will be encountered. These detours are to be raised soon. The scout car was able to make the entire trip over the main road.

The distance from Toronto to Montreal is 353 miles. This is a rare scenic trip along the north shore of Lake Ontario, and along the shore of the St. Lawrence River, passing the ship canals, locks and rapids of the St. Lawrence.

From Montreal to Quebec, a distance of 181 miles, is all pavement. This is a picturesque road up the St. Lawrence Valley, passing through numerous French-Canadian villages, the impression being given that the tourist is traveling in a foreign country. The total distance from Detroit to Quebec via the all-Canadian route is 792 miles.

The return was made via the all-American route, returning to Montreal, and following the northern part of New York State, through Malone, Watertown, Oswego and Rochester to Buffalo. This is one of the finest fruit growing sections in the country.

From Buffalo the southern shore of Lake Erie was followed through Cleveland to Toledo and back to Detroit. The speedometer on the return journey registered 959 miles from Quebec to Detroit. The greater portion of this tour is within sight of water.

Post-Dispatch Travel Bureau: What is the shortest motor route to Detroit, via highway No. 4 to Chicago or through Indiana? How are the roads on both? What is the mileage on both?

The shorter route is through Indiana. Both routes are paved. The distance via Chicago is 575 miles, while it is 560 miles by the Indiana route.

Post-Dispatch Travel Bureau: Which is the shortest route to Murphysboro, Ill., and which to Quincy, Ill.—A Reader.

The paved route via Belleville, Mascoutah, Ashley Junction, Duquoin and Carbondale to Murphysboro is much better and faster than any other route. The shortest route is over No. 3 to Chester, then to Murphysboro. The shortest route to Quincy is via St. Charles, Wentzville, Hannibal and Palmyra to Taylor, Mo., then East to West Quincy and across the river to Quincy.

There is most concrete on the following route: Belleville to State highway No. 4 to Springfield, No. 24 to Peoria, No. 29 to De Pue, No. 7 to Rock Island and Davenport, Ia., then north to De Wit, Ia., and west over Lincoln Highway to Omaha; 680 miles. A much shorter route goes from Belleville to St. Louis, then over State highway No. 2 via St. Charles to High Hill, north on No. 45, No. 22 and No. 7 to Macon, west on No. 8 to Chilicothe, then "O.-St. L. Short Line" highway to Omaha; about 460 miles. The shorter route is mostly dirt roads. The longer has 210 miles of dirt road in Iowa. So better use the route through Missouri.

terday that, on the whole, Missouri's highways were far better this year than in previous years and that every passing day saw steady improvement. Detours, he said, frequently were much superior to the old main roads. The Post-Dispatch Travel and Resort Bureau reports are substantially in agreement with Drummond.

Drive west on Vine street to Eleventh, and then south over route No. 23 for 11.8 miles. Then west on Route 42. No. 23 is completed. No. 42 is graded earth and good to 15.5, where gravel has been laid. The remainder of the route until the speedometer registers 60.0 is completed highway and gravel surface. From 60.0 to 67.8 the highway is an exceptionally good country dirt road with natural gravel. At 67.8, the motorist returns to the newly constructed highway (no gravel). At 71.6 miles, Alton, Mo., take route No. 19 south to Mammoth Springs. This is unimproved highway, but is good, having been constructed by the county several years ago, and has a gravel surface. At 91.0 miles, bridge over Mammoth Springs.

Making the side trip to Greer Springs return to Alton and set speedometer at the east door of the courthouse. The road is unimproved and, although it is over hills most of the way, it might be difficult to travel in wet weather.

From Alton, one can drive north over No. 7 to Willow Springs, then east on No. 16 to Birch Tree and north on an unimproved country road for 16 miles to Alley Spring, set in fine vacation country and sending 55,000,000 gallons of water daily into Jack's Ford River, one of Southern Missouri's best fishing streams.

From Alley Spring, unimproved roads lead 6.8 miles northeast and through an old railroad cut to highway No. 19. Going north on No. 19 about 4.6 miles, one comes to Round Spring, which is set in a rocky cup. Steep rocks pen in the spring, except on one side where the wall has been broken away so that one can walk down about 75 feet to the water's edge. This spring sends out 5,000,000 gallons of water daily, the flow going under a bluff and coming out on the opposite side and running into the Current River—200 yards distant.

Leaving Round Spring, one can drive six miles north to "The Sinks." There Sinking Creek, a good-sized stream, tumbles into a valley and disappears into the base of a mountain. Some 600 yards distant, on the opposite side of the mountain, water issues, several degrees cooler than the temperature of Sinking Creek, and rushes down the valleys. Timber workers say they have rafted logs and ties through the hole in the mountain made by the water.

No. 19 leads south from the Sinks and Round Spring through Eminence. This part of the highway is not marked and is not improved, though it is easy traveling with a few minor exceptions. A high hill, which must be climbed, supplies a thrill or two.

From Eminence, No. 19 goes 12 miles to Winona, which is the center of more interesting scenery. Rocky Falls, 12 miles northeast of Winona, with its cliffs and boulder strewn creek bed, is worth visiting. From Winona, No. 19 is mostly unimproved for 79 miles to Van Buren, but the 52 miles to Poplar Bluff are completed, except for about three miles that remain ungraveled. Instead of returning to Poplar Bluff, then going north to St. Louis, one can swing off No. 16 at Garwood, a few miles east of Van Buren, and go north on No. 21 through Ellington to Centerville, then east on No. 21 to Ironton, then back to St. Louis via No. 21 and No. 9, or via Doe Run to Farmington, then No. 9.

road, passing over the tracks, and will be finished sometime during the coming month. With the opening of this structure and completion of the hard-surfaced road across the bottom lands, the worst obstacle to all-weather travel will have been eliminated. Large quantities of gravel and a liberal oiling have put the remainder of the road as far as Ashland in fine condition.

Straightening corners and widening will begin next month on the road between here and Ashland, which until a year ago was a toll road.

While work on Highway No. 7 is not being pushed as rapidly as on No. 2, yet this road is being worked on the south and north sides of Columbia. Grading is being done between here and Sturgeon in an attempt to eliminate the numerous curves.

MORE BUS LINES FROM ST. LOUIS INTO ILLINOIS

The establishing of bus lines out of St. Louis, which began suddenly early last spring after several years of slow pioneering in service to a few Missouri suburbs, is being carried on with increasing rapidity. Within the last two weeks six Reo busses have been sold by the Kardell Motor Car Co. for new bus lines to Illinois cities. Two of the 21-passenger intercity type are running from St. Louis via Belleville and State Highway No. 12 to O'Fallon, Lebanon and Trenton. Their schedule calls for an hour and 20 minutes between terminals. Two others—Reo 18-passenger sedan type—are using the same route to Trenton, but are continuing on No. 12 through Aviston, Breese, Beckmeyer, Carlyle, Huey and Shattuck to Sandoval, where the route turns south on Highway No. 2 to Centralia. These two bus lines are operated by the Community Bus Co., which also runs bus lines to Nashville, Ill., over No. 15.

Two Reo sedan type busses are being operated by the St. Clair Bus Line Co. from St. Louis via Belleville to Freeburg, New Athens, Lenzburg, Marissa and Sparta, Ill. The run is made in three hours.

Reo busses also are operated on a line from St. Louis to Chicago, leaving St. Louis daily at 8 a. m. and arriving at Chicago at 6:30 p. m. The route is via Springfield and Bloomington, Ill.

Only Hudson Can Build It

Being the world's largest builders of 6-cylinder cars permits Hudson to give the greatest price advantage, with the finest quality in Hudson history.

Everywhere it is called "The World's Greatest Buy" because it is universally acknowledged that no car gives like quality, reliability, performance and fine appearance within hundreds of dollars of its price. And Hudson economy, which the praise of a vast ownership has made famous, consists not only in the important first cost savings, but also in the way Hudsons retain their new car qualities and performance in long service with little need for mechanical attention.

PRICE REDUCTIONS UPSET WHOLE CAR SALES SITUATION

Well Known Lines Now at Different Selling Levels Than They Ever Before Occupied.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 8.—The sharp price reductions by Buick and Cadillac, particularly the former, and the unexpected cut in prices by Studebaker, have upset the price complexion of the industry. Further complicating the situation was the equally unexpected Chevrolet price reduction, for which there apparently was no occasion, and the corresponding reduction by Star, whose prices are now at exactly the same level as Chevrolet.

There had been other cuts, such as by Chrysler and Jewett, in the fortnight previously, but these had not the bearing that the others had. They were regarded as incidents and much in the same fashion as the slight advance by Nash on its two lighter models, though they were considered indicative of a downward trend of prices. But when Buick cut prices of some of its models as much as $730 and Studebaker, out of a clear sky met the reduction by dropping prices of some of its models $405, bringing them on a parity with Buick's, everyone sat up and took notice.

That they will sit more erect and be more attentive is evident when it is realized that Buick and Studebaker actually have dropped to a lower price level than they ever before occupied.

The answer is obvious. Companies whose business partly consists of what Hudson-Essex, Buick, Studebaker, Nash, Paige-Jewett and a few others cannot handle in rush times must meet the new prices.

Cadillac's sharp reduction, running to more than $900 on some models, has been almost as painful in its effects on other cars in its division, as painful as was the big price reduction by Packard. Those effects will also be felt in the class below it. Cadillac, at its present price level, is competing with cars that formerly were not considered in its price division. The answer, Cadillac's reputation considered, is obvious. Cadillac's cut will similarly affect cars in the level next above it.

Chevrolet's cuts came as a surprise because all year to date it has been enjoying the greatest business in its history and has been unable to fill orders.

The present rescaling of prices is the most drastic in the history of the industry. That it will cut sharply into profits is beyond doubt. That it will seriously effect the smaller makes is equally without doubt. For some of them the future is less bright by far than it was during the past six months. Car prices today are 16 2-3 per cent below those of Jan. 1. This percentage is based on Aug. 1 prices, following the relatively few price cuts already made. It will be considerably larger by Sept. 1. Compared with pre-war automobile prices, cars today are 40 per cent lower than at that time. Considering that the 1925, more especially the advanced 1926 models, are the finest cars the industry ever has produced, the public today is being given the most wonderful automobile value ever known.

G. M. Insurance Plan.

General Motors' organization of an insurance company to handle insurance on all cars sold by dealers in its five car divisions amounts practically to a price-cut on delivered cars. Rather, it amounts to a second cut, through the lower charges for insurance that will be possible, and the lower financing charges General Motors Acceptance Corporation places on cars sold on time, substantial reductions in these features of car-buying will result.

CADILLAC "FAN" IS NEW DISTRIBUTER IN ST. LOUIS

THE change whereby the Oliver Cadillac Co., headed by Guy W. Oliver, takes over distribution of Cadillac cars in the St. Louis territory is of more than ordinary moment to owners of Cadillacs. Oliver enters the automobile business under unusual circumstances, for his is a real case of an automobile "fan" going after the distributership of his pet car and getting it. Oliver has a Cadillac in active service that he has driven for 10 years, and he has a city-wide reputation as a man of one idea about automobiles, said idea beginning with a "C" and ending with the same letter.

"The Cadillac company sees a broad field in this district," Oliver said yesterday. "It feels that there is a strong bond between Cadillac owner, distributer and factory that means more than the mere temporary relation between buyer and seller. Service, maintenance—these are vital factors in keeping the Cadillac family so contented that owners of the first Cadillacs made do not leave it. The new distributership is being organized with the primary idea of caring for the interests of Cadillac owners, and friendliness will be especially emphasized."

Oliver started working in the days when the White Metal Co. was operating in Granite City. He recalls humorously the day when the weight of pigs of lead was changed from 93 to 115 pounds each. "That doesn't seem like much," he laughed. "But if you had to juggle that additional 22 pounds a thousand times a day, you would have thought as I did—that the worst had happened." He stayed with the company until it was sold three years later, then went with his cousin, Harry F. Knight, who was vice president of A. G. Edwards & Sons, brokers. He spent five years getting a general investment education, then became secretary of the Oliver Electric Manufacturing Co. At the death of his father, Fielding W. Oliver, he became president of the concern, and in 1924 sold it to a Chicago company.

His fellow officers in the Oliver Cadillac Co. are: Vice president, L. Wade Childress, president of the Columbia Terminals Co.; secretary, C. K. Huthsing, president of the General Manufacturing Co., and treasurer, J. B. Oliver. Childress and Huthsing will not be active in the management. The new distributor will use the Cadillac building at Locust and Leonard street.

The Cadillac Co. was represented in the conferences which resulted in Oliver and his associates acquiring the distributorship by R. L. Newton, assistant to the sales manager; W. H. Fraser, district manager of the territory north of St. Louis, and H. H. Lyons, district manager of the Southern territory, which includes St. Louis.

The Oliver Cadillac Co. is displaying a partial line of the new Cadillac cars with redesigned radiator and chassis and engine improvements, and expects to have a full line of models this week.

KELLERMAN IS PROMOTED BY HUDSON-FRAMPTON CO.

Joe Kellerman, who has been retail sales manager of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson and Essex distributer, has been made sales manager for the entire metropolitan district. Kellerman now has full charge of advertising and merchandising some 2500 Hudson and Essex cars a year in the St. Louis part of the Hudson-Frampton Co. territory, and has 21 Hudson-Essex dealers in his field. Thus he has taken over one of the important sales executive positions on St. Louis' Auto Row. Kellerman started in the automobile business in the old Locomobile steamer days in 1905, and had some years of mechanical experience. He was with the old Bagnell-Cadillac Co., and sold Packard cars and traveled in the territory for the Missouri Packard Co. Later he sold Cadillacs for a couple of years, and for a time was in the used car brokerage business for himself on Locust street. About five years ago he joined the Hudson-Frampton Co. sales force, and became retail sales manager. Kellerman was active in formation of the old Automobile Drivers' and Mechanics' Association, of which he was president and which had upwards of 1000 members with headquarters at Kingshighway and Delmar avenue. He still has the charter of that organization. He has assisted in work of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, especially that of the used car bureau, and is on the executive board of the St. Louis Ad. Club. Kellerman is in demand as a speaker.

DUCO DISTRIBUTER TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

The Roberson-Bradford Motor Coach Co., distributer of Duco auto finish in the St. Louis territory, is to move presently from 1900 Locust boulevard, to a new building that is being erected for it at 2824-26 Locust. The new building is to front 75 feet on Locust boulevard and will be 150 feet deep, two stories high, and of modern, fireproof, nonpost construction. The first floor will be devoted to refinishing cars with Duco, while the second floor will be for offices and stock rooms. The Duco shop will be able to turn out 4 to 5 finished cars a day. The Roberson-Bradford Co. some time ago succeeded the McQuillan-Bradford Motor Coach Co. It distributes Duco in a large part of Missouri and Illinois. William T. Bradford is president; O. W. Roberson, vice president, secretary and treasurer, and A. B. Kilpatrick, chairman of the board of directors. Bradford is manager.

U. S. TRUCK BUS TIRES ON TRACKLESS TRAIN

The new United States truck-bus pneumatic tires, which have been developed for carrying heavy loads at high speed and with a minimum of jolting, were a conspicuous feature of the trackless train operated by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Film Corporation which passed through St. Louis the past week. Engine and car of the train were equipped with the truck-bus tires, while the advance car rolled on United States balloon casings. G. W. Manchester, manager of the St. Louis branch of the United States Rubber Co., and Clarence V. Quinn, local United States tire distributer, escorted the train from the McKinley bridge to City Hall on its arrival from Milwaukee, and started it on its way again to Minneapolis.

DE LUXE CO. EXCURSION TO OLDS MOTOR WORKS

The De Luxe Automobile Co., of which Philip H. Brockman is head, will conduct a de luxe excursion to Michigan and the Olds plant for its dealers, their organization personnel, and buyers of Olds cars, leaving St. Louis on a special train next Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock. From Chicago the party will go by boat to Muskegon, Mich., and then will ride in motor buses to Grand Rapids and to Lansing, Mich., where Olds cars are made. Time will be taken to ramble around Chicago, to be guests of the Muskegon Chamber of Commerce and the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce. At Lansing, the party will be taken through the Oldsmobile plant and a dealers' meeting will be held. A feature will be the fact that the excursion will be free to all dealers and to all buyers of Oldsmobiles who drive cars from the factory to their homes. Also, an allowance of $30 for freight charges on each car so driven home will be made. Special sleeping cars will be provided for those who return by train, and will leave Lansing at 3:10 p. m. Monday, arriving in St. Louis at 7:21 a. m. Tuesday.

TIRE DEALERS DISCUSS CLOSING HOURS.

The next regular monthly meeting of the Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis will be held at the Claridge Hotel at 8 p. m. Tuesday. At the last meeting the Committee on Closing Hours recommended that, effective Sept. 1, next, the members of the association close their stores daily at 6:30 p. m., on Saturdays at 11 p. m. and all day Sundays and legal holidays.

VICTOR MOTORS, INC., MOVES INTO ITS NEW TRUCK PLANT

Victor Motors, Inc., moved the past week for the third time since it was organized, this time into the factory which it recently bought in East St. Louis, and has remodeled and equipped it for a daily production of 50 trucks and busses. The St. Louis sales and show quarters at Locust boulevard and Twenty-eighth street will be retained.

The new plant gives ample room for a full assembly line and for coordinating manufacturing operations. The company plans to manufacture its own bodies as well as chassis.

Guy Wilson, president of Victor Motors, said that he expected to speed up production steadily, as Victor trucks were not only finding a rapidly expanding market in this country, but also were being exported in increasing numbers to several European countries, including Germany and Greece, and to New Zealand.

Wilson said also that he expected soon to have a working force of 1200 to 1600 men busy in the Victor factory.

DURAL AUTO FINISH DISTRIBUTER NAMED

J. C. Kempf, 4455 Manchester avenue, has been appointed by the Sewall Paint and Glass Co. of Kansas City distributer of Dural, a super satin automobile finish which is said to stand up under all conditions of weather and to be especially good in sport colors. Kempf is making a specialty of the Sewall system process of enameling and of refinishing cars in Dural.

NEW ACCESSORY STORE ON LOCUST BOULEVARD

A. J. & R. Motor Supply Co. branch store has been opened at 1126 Locust boulevard, with F. D. Haworth as manager. It carries general automobile accessories and tires. It is one of five branch stores, the operating company having headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

OFFICIALS FROM AUBURN FACTORY VISIT SCHLECHT

Roy H. Faulkner, director of sales of the Auburn Automobile Co., and N. E. McDarby, assistant sales manager, stopped here Wednesday to see Joseph H. Schlecht, head of the Mound City Automobile Co., Auburn distributer, and to tell of sales plans for the coming year. Faulkner said the Auburn factory was running at capacity every day and 2 to 3 nights a week, turning out 850 cars a month and being behind on orders. Auburn prices and styles were established less than 60 days ago, he said, and he looked for no price reductions. Auburn production is being steadily increased, and dealer representation all over the country, Faulkner said, is strong and progressive.

LEE GOES EAST TO ATTEND SHOW MANAGERS' MEETING

Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and of the Automotive Accessory Association of St. Louis, left St. Louis last night for Atlantic City, to attend the samiannual convention of the National Association of Automobile Show and Association Managers. Lee is serving his third term as national president of the organization. He will continue his vacation from Atlantic City with a trip down the St. Lawrence River and through the Great Lakes to Chicago, on which Mrs. Lee will accompany him.

CHEVROLET BREAKING ALL OF ITS RECORDS.

The Chevrolet Motor Co., having established successive production records in April, May and June, will exceed by Aug. 20 the total production in 1924, it is announced by R. H. Grant, general sales manager. Chevrolet production in 1924 was 305,303. In the first six months of 1925 production was 246,081, only 59,222 under the aggregate of the preceding year. The company produced 54,944 motor cars and trucks in June, exceeding any previous June in its history. The total in the month was exceeded by only one month of Chevrolet production, October of 1923. Sales to dealers in June were 54,725. At the end of June 24,654 unfilled retail orders were in the hands of dealers.

FORD REPORTS RECORD BUSINESS DURING JULY.

The Ford Motor Co. did a record July business in every division. Domestic sales of Ford cars and trucks totaled 167,626 in July, exceeding by 6182 those in July a year ago. Sales of Fordson tractors were more than 3300 greater than in July, 1924, and 207 more Lincoln cars were delivered to customers during the month than in the previous July. The demand for all Ford products during the month exceeded expectations. The outlook is for increasing business in August. One of the chief indications of this appears in agricultural sections of the country, where farmers are coming into the market in rapidly growing numbers.

REO SPEED WAGON BODY IS MOTORCADE RADIO CABINET

A motorcade is to tour the Appalachian Scenic Highway from Atlanta to Ashville, N. C., to advertise the Georgia city. A feature of the motorcade will be a large radio receiving set, the cabinet of which will form the body of a Reo Speed Wagon. Inside the large cabinet will be a standard receiving set, highly selective and of the most modern type. Radio experts will be in charge of the apparatus, and at every stop along the route they will tune in on Atlanta broadcasting station.

GENERAL MOTORS FINANCE CHARGES ARE REDUCED

General Motors Corporation, through its subsidiary, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, announces extensixe reductions in the financing charge to installment purchasers of General Motors cars, which include Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick and Cadillac. Commenting upon the announcement, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, says: "After all, the important thing to the purchaser is the final delivered price of the car, and the financing charge is a part of the delivered price in the majority of sales. The announcement therefore virtually means a reduction in the delivered prices of the entire General Motors line of automobiles."

CLEVELAND SIX MAKES RECORD IN AUSTRALIA

Word has just been received by the Cleveland factory from Australia that a Cleveland Six stock model touring car has established a record in a run from Sydney to Dubbo, Australia. The distance between the two cities is 259 miles, and the Cleveland six made it in less than six hours. The car was slowed down to conform to traffic regulations and encountered a heavy fog and mist in the mountains. At times the car sustained a speed of more than 79 miles an hour.

SINGLE SLEEVE VALVE ENGINE IN LOUIS CHEVROLET'S EIGHT

The first single sleeve valve, eight-cylinder engine to be used in America has made its appearance on the streets of Indianapolis under the guidance of Louis Chevrolet, veteran race driver and automobile engineer.

Having heard of a new type of engine invented in Scotland, he obtained blue prints and specifications and in his own factory built the engine that certain automotive engineers believe may revolutionize automobile power units.

The motor is known as the Burt-McCallum or Argyll engine. It operates on somewhat diferent principles than does any engine now in use.

AMERICAN-MADE SPARK PLUGS IN WINNING GRAND PRIX CARS

In the recent Grand Prix of France, held over the Montlhery course, Benoist won with a Champion-equipped Delage. Wagner, in another Delage, with the same type spark plugs, was second. All the Alfa Romeos, withdrawn when Antonio Ascari, leading European driver, was killed, were equipped with Champions, including Ascari's car. The Grand Prix followed shortly after the touring car contest, the Grand Prix Tourisme, run over the same course. Boillot, driving a Peugneot, was the winner in the five-liter (300 cubic inch) displacement class. All classes in each of the three piston displacement classes were Champion equipped.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

SEVERAL NEW TUBES BEING PERFECTED

Radio Corporation Developing Special Amplifiers for Loud Speaker Volume.

The Radio Corporation of America states that the five standard tubes for receiving purposes, which it has had on the market for the past few years, will continue to be its standards for radio reception. However, three new types of Radiotrons, designed solely for audio-frequency amplification and for use in the last stage of the radio broadcast receiver, will be announced when they have been fully developed.

Radiotron UX-120 is among the proposed group and is a special dry battery power amplifier tube requiring 135 volts on the plate and 22½ volts grid bias which, when connected to the last audio stage of a radio broadcast receiver, will provide loud speaker volume approximately double that obtainable from the storage battery type of receiver using 201-A tubes.

The RCA has another special audio amplifier in the course of development for sets of the storage battery type. This will be known as UX-112, which also requires 135 volts on the plate for maximum performance and which, when connected to the last audio stage of a broadcast receiver, gives a loud speaker volume much in excess of that obtainable from a 201-A tube in the last audio stage.

A third super-power amplifier tube under study is to be known as UX-210, which provides loud speaker volume far in excess of any type of audio amplifier tube heretofore introduced. The filament of the UX-210 Radiatron may be operated directly from a six-volt storage battery, with upward of 150 volts required for the plate. It may also be used as a 7.5 watt transmitting tube or as an audio frequency amplifier, the plate and filament current for which can be supplied by a rectifier-amplifier unit.

It is also reported that the Radio Corporation will introduce two types of rectifier tubes for use in "B" battery eliminators and current supply device. One tube, known as UX-216-B, has an output of 65 milliamperes. This is a single-way or half-wave rectifier. There is another rectifier tube, known as UX-213, which is a double-way or full-wave amplifier and which provides an output of 65 milliamperes for "B" battery eliminators and other similar current supply devices.

All of the new Radiotron tubes are equipped with the new RCA standard "UX" base. In due time, no doubt, adapters will appear on the market which will permit the use of these special tubes in the last audio stage of present type broadcast receivers. All of the three amplifier tubes—UX-120, UX-112 and UX-210—are low impedance tubes which provide improved quality of loud speaker reproduction.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. I would like to know if a filter would eliminate some noise in my regenerative set. A. S.

A. No. Filters are used in B battery eliminators to filter out the alternating current hum and in the radio frequency circuits to eliminate local interference. There are many different kinds of filters but none that could be used with a regenerative set to cut out noise.

Q. (1) If a radio tube is not in use, will it deteriorate? (2) Should a rheostat be replaced if some of the resistance wires have become loose? (3) Will a tube used as detector last longer than one used as an amplifier? D. F. S.

A. (1) A well-made vacuum tube should last indefinitely if not used. However, the operation of tubes are dependent upon the vacuum in them and if a tube has not been sealed properly air will get into the bulb in time and ruin it. (2) Not unless the filament adjustment is critical. (3) Generally the life of a tube is determined by the number of hours that the filament is burned and a tube used as a detector will last just as long as it would if it were used as an amplifier.

Q. 1. Where is Station 2XG? 2. I have a low-wave set which does not oscillate on 20 meters. There are dead spots where the set will not oscillate. How can this be remedied? 3. Why does the set squeal after the capacity is increased past that of a thud? F. S.

A. 1. We do not know the name of the owner of 2XG? Possibly you heard 2XAG, the experimental station of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, N. Y. 2. Dead spots are most often caused in short-wave regenerative receivers by the primary being in tune with or on a harmonic of the secondary. These can be eliminated by increasing or decreasing the inductance in the primary of the variocoupler, or by the use of a series condenser. 3. Too much feed back.

Q. Several weeks ago you published a diagram of a one-stage radio frequency amplifier with a condenser controlled regenerative. In the set is a choke coil of 250 turns of No. 30 wire wound on a one-inch tube. I would like to know what kind of a by-pass condenser could be used in place of this coil? Also there is a neutralizing condenser for the radio frequency amplifier that I would like to know more about. C. M.

A. A by-pass condenser cannot be used in place of the choke coil. A by-pass condenser keeps radio frequency current from flowing through a circuit by passing it around the circuit through a condenser. A choke coil prevents radio frequency current from flowing through a circuit by choking it out. The neutralizing condenser is the ordinary type of condenser used for this purpose.

Q. 1. Is glass the best insulator for radio purposes? 2. I get better results by using 45 volts on the plate of the detector. Is this too much? 3. Kindly tell me how to make a soldering flux composed of alcohol and resin?

A. 1. Glass is not the best insulator obtainable for radio frequency currents, but it is better than most of the molded compositions. 2. No. Most of the tubes on the market at the present time work best as detectors with about 45 volts on the plates. 3. To make the soldering flux, take a small quantity of alcohol and slowly add resin to the solution until the alcohol will not dissolve any more. When not using the flux, keep it in an air-tight bottle.

Q. Please advise me where I can purchase a reducer or connection that fits into the light socket for supplying current from a 32-volt Delco battery system to light the filaments of my radio set? 2. Please give me two or three names of dependable radio sets that will give satisfaction. 3. Which tubes are better, WD-12's or UV201-A's?

A. 1. We do not know of any company that is making such a device. However, all you need is a rheostat having the necessary amount of resistance in it. 2. We cannot recommend any particular receiving sets as there are too many good ones on the market. Consult your friends who have sets and if possible try listening in on several kinds of receivers. Some people like one kind of a set and some another. 3. The 201-A tubes give greater volume than WD-12s and work better in some sets. As dry cell tubes the WD-12s are hard to beat.

NEW ARRIVALS

The autoformer, a new product of the Thordarson Electric Manufacturing Co. of Chicago, is an amplifier coupling unit for audio frequency amplifiers. It is said that the autoformer gives full amplification on the bass notes such as those of the organ, bass viol, tuba and English horn, as well as on the notes at the high end of the musical scale. This new unit is not a transformer, but a combination of capacity, inductance and resistance, and when used in an audio amplifier is very similar to impedence coupling. As many as three stages of autoformer amplification may be used in one set. This system of amplification is said to be in use at many of the large broadcasting stations. The unit is inclosed in a black metal case with the binding posts attached at the base of the case, permitting short grid, plate and filament connections.

The latest straight-line frequency condenser to appear on the market is the one made and sold by the Pacent Electric Co. of New York. Used with the ordinary radio frequency transformer, this condenser will cover the range from 200 to 550 meters. The revolving plates of the condenser are unusually long and are permanently held together with tie-bars which prevent buckling or bending. Isolantite insulation is used to separate the rotor from the stator at the points where the electrostatic field is lowest. According to the manufacturer, the straight line frequency condenser enables one to tune from one station to another with greater ease, particularly on the short-wave lengths.

A novel instrument that will convert almost any kind of a receiver into a superheterodyne has just been placed on the market by A. O'Connor & Co. of Cleveland, O. This device, which is called a frequency changer, placed ahead of a neutrodyne or a five-tube radio frequency amplifier, converts the set into a superheterodyne. It consists of one tube which is used as the oscillator and first detector, and the necessary coupling coils and condensers. The two stages of radio frequency amplification in the receiver are then worked as the intermediate stage amplifiers. The tuning dials of the converted receiver are turned to a certain position and left there permanently, all tuning being done with the two dials on the frequency changer. This same outfit can be used with regenerative sets for obtaining added volume and selectivity.

AMATEURS TO RETAIN OLD FREQUENCY BAND

Department of Commerce Not Ready to Reassign Waves From 150 to 200 Meters.

A recent letter from the Department of Commerce to the American Radio Realty League assures those officials that the wave band between 150 and 200 meters will not be taken from the amateurs without good cause and after due notice.

The present regulations provide that amateurs have exclusive use of this band, and although it has been sugested frequently that some of the channels in this band are needed for broadcasting, the department is not considering the plan at this time. "There is at present no intention whatever of making any radical change in the wave length assignment," the department states.

A query from the Radio League as to the use made of this band by amateurs, brought fear into the ranks and many wrote to the department. There is, of course, a possibility that the matter may be brought up at the fall radio conference but even then the question would not be passed on finally without a full hearing from the amateurs themselves and their officials.

That amateurs still use the 200-meter channel, despite statements to the contrary, is shown by the league, which states that about 50 per cent of the amateur traffic is handled on the 150 to 200 meters in this country. Twelve and a half per cent of amateur stations still operate in the top bands, it is stated. Many have found that for long-distance work or what they term "super Dx," the channels below 150 meters serve them better. But the upper band is by no means abandoned, and the league protests against any proposal to reallocate these channels.

WORD TO INCREASE POWER

Station WORD of the People's Pulpit Association at Batavia, Ill., has been authorized to increase its power from 2000 to 5000 watts. This makes the seventh 5KW station on the air.

Headphones Need Attention.

Headphones that have been in service for a year or more should be inspected by removing the cap and diaphragm. The mounting screws holding the horseshoe magnet in place should be tightened. Remove any dirt or particles of steel that may be collecting on pole pieces. The diaphragm should be inspected to ascertain if it has become bent, and if so, it should be replaced with a new one. The screws holding the telephone cord tips should be tightened, but not removed and reversed, as this will disturb the polarity of the unit, affecting signals. If the diaphragm has become weakened and touches the pole pieces, it should be turned over on its reverse side, which will correct the trouble.

Czecho-Slovakia is erecting a five-kilowatt station at Prague. It is planned to add other smaller stations, which will make up a chain to cover the entire country.

Station WGY, Schenectady, is now broadcasting simultaneously on four different wave lengths—379.5, 38, 109 and 1660 meters. The last three are for experimental purposes.

Clifford Lideen, an invalid of Burlington, Ia., has received his A. B. degree from the University of Iowa for work completed through the radio correspondence courses.

Two divers, 75 feet below the surface of the Atlantic Ocean, off Atlantic City, N. J., recently described to their unseen audience by radio what the floor of the ocean looked like. The divers were equipped with regulation diving suits and had microphones inside their helmets.

Distortion From Loud Speaker.

Sound vibrations are transmitted in great strength to the tubes when the loud speaker is resting on top of a radio cabinet. This will cause the grids and filaments to vibrate, which distorts the music. Keep the loud speaker off the cabinet and direct the sound away from the set.

MACMILLAN STATION HEARD IN CHICAGO

First Broadcast From Arctic Circle Picked Up by Special Apparatus.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Partial success of the first broadcast of the human voice from the Arctic Circle has heightened interest in the radio activities of the MacMillan expedition.

Although picked up only by a special receiving apparatus designed and built by the Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago, the feat of Saturday night, when music played aboard the Bowdoin was heard in Chicago, takes first rank in the radio achievements of the year.

The broadcast was carried on on a wave length of approximately meters and was continued for approximately an hour and a half, a quarter of which time it was heard in the Zenith laboratories. Attempts to listen in at Washington on the unique concert proved futile.

The chief obstacle in the way of short-wave voice transmission—namely, the rapid and intense fading—proved, as expected, the most difficult feature to overcome. Engineers of the Zenith company, however, have announced that they hope to lessen this obstacle considerably before the summer has passed.

The present success is in sharp contrast to the radio efforts of the MacMillan party of last year, when only occasional brief code messages were picked up in the United States. Now the party is in constant telegraphic communication with the homeland, and on top of that has actually spoken directly to Chicago.

Between 80 and 90 per cent of the world's ships still use crystal detectors for reception.

THE best tube deserves the safest packing. De Forest goes to great lengths to build you a tube exact in construction. A variation in distance between plate and grid half the thickness of a human hair will cause rejection under the De Forest factory inspection system. All this care would be wasted by poor packing. Transit shocks, banging on station platforms, would disarrange delicate parts and fine adjustments. Care in packing De Forest tubes matches the care in making them. The De Forest safety metal container is in keeping with other De Forest precision methods. Price $3.00.

WHEN 'B' BATTERIES SHOULD BE REPLACED

Units Need Not Be Discarded Until Signals Are Too Weak to Be Enjoyable.

The "B" battery is the power plant of your radio receiver. A radio receiver may be considered as an instrument the purpose of which is to control the flow of "B" battery current through a reproducer in accordance with incoming signals from a broadcasting station. The power set up in a receiving antenna by a distant station is rarely more than a millionth of a watt and usually it is considerably less. The receiving set builds up this infinitely small amount of energy to as much as half a watt, untilizing the amplification action of the vacuum tubes. The power for this purpose is secured from the "B" battery. Hence the "B" battery's ability to furnish power is an essential to successful reception.

So anxious have radio listeners been to maintain an adequate reserve of "B" battery power that many misconceptions have arisen. "B" batteries are often discarded when the voltage of each 22½-volt section has fallen to 17. Two years ago this was necessary because the tubes, as then manufactured, lost much of their amplification power when the voltage of the "B" battery fell below 17. But modern tubes are not at all critical as to their plate voltage requirements. The output volume of your set hardly changes if "B" battery voltage be reduced from 90 to 67½ volts.

Use your batteries to the limit. Obtain the greatest economy of operation and reduce the frequency of renewal to a minimum. There is no particular voltage at which "B" batteries should be discarded. WHEN 'B' BATTERIES SHOULD BE REPLACED

Units Need Not Be Discarded Until Signals Are Too Weak to Be Enjoyable.

The "B" battery is the power plant of your radio receiver. A radio receiver may be considered as an instrument the purpose of which is to control the flow of "B" battery current through a reproducer in accordance with incoming signals from a broadcasting station. The power set up in a receiving antenna by a distant station is rarely more than a millionth of a watt and usually it is considerably less. The receiving set builds up this infinitely small amount of energy to as much as half a watt, untilizing the amplification action of the vacuum tubes. The power for this purpose is secured from the "B" battery. Hence the "B" battery's ability to furnish power is an essential to successful reception.

So anxious have radio listeners been to maintain an adequate reserve of "B" battery power that many misconceptions have arisen. "B" batteries are often discarded when the voltage of each 22½-volt section has fallen to 17. Two years ago this was necessary because the tubes, as then manufactured, lost much of their amplification power when the voltage of the "B" battery fell below 17. But modern tubes are not at all critical as to their plate voltage requirements. The output volume of your set hardly changes if "B" battery voltage be reduced from 90 to 67½ volts.

Use your batteries to the limit. Obtain the greatest economy of operation and reduce the frequency of renewal to a minimum. There is no particular voltage at which "B" batteries should be discarded. The practical limit of usefulness of your "B" battery is when its voltage has fallen to such a point that signals are too weak or too distorted to be enjoyable. "B" batteries can often be used when their voltage per 22½-volt section has fallen to 11 or 12 volts. This means from 25 to 40 per cent longer life than that which is obtained when the batteries are discarded at the 17-volt point.

There are exceptional cases, particularly with reflex sets, when circuits are so interwoven that added resistance of the "B" battery as its voltage falls below 17, couples two circuits so that regeneration results. Ordinarily, the internal resistance of "B" battery has no effect upon the operation of receiver because radio frequency currents are bypassed and do not flow through the "B" battery. Hence use your "B" battery to the limit, regardless of its voltage, until quality and volume fall below the point of enjoyable reception.

NEW EUROPEAN STATION

A large state broadcasting station near Zagreb, Jugo-Slavia, is planned, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Consul Leslie A. Davis. It is reported that the apparatus has already been ordered from Germany on reparations account and will be delivered and installed by the Jugo-Slavenski Siemens, the local representatives of Siemens-Schuckert Works. For the present the station is to be used solely for the state, but it is hoped that later it will be released for general use. There are now 145 wireless receiving sets in Zagreb and it is believed that this number is increasing.

WEATHER REPORTS POPULAR

One hundred and forty-four broadcasting stations located in 90 towns and cities throughout the country are now broadcasting weather forecasts daily. The Weather Bureau believes that weather information will shortly be furnished fans in every state in the Union by radio.

The Enemies—Dust and Dampness.

Every portion of the radio apparatus should be kept scrupulously clean and free from dampness. Not only do dust and dirt contain conducting materials, but they also absorb and hold moisture, which sooner or later in some manner or other will cause a short circuit. Cleanliness adds to the appearance of a radio outfit, but what is more important, it adds to its life and efficiency.

Who Listens In and Why

Surveys in several sections of the country show the man of the house is the most enthusiastic radio fan.

By CARL H. BUTMAN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—It is variously estimated that there are between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 radio receivers in operation in this country furnishing entertainment and instruction to from three to four members in a family. Probably 3,000,000 are manufactured sets, the rest being assembled parts or home-made sets. Why were these manufactured receivers bought?

In general, the question is answered by an owner interviewed in Brooklyn, who said: "Radio is the best amusement we ever had. Sometimes we get tired of it, but it is only a night or two before we tune in again. We can't let it alone." Once a set is installed and tried out it seems universal that it is in operation nearly every night.

A recent survey of several sections of the country, chiefly east of the Mississippi, shows some very interesting facts. Two-thirds of the people interviewed owned sets, nearly 72 per cent of them being men. Ages varied from under 20 to 71 years, the greatest number being owned by people aged between 21 and 30 years.

Out of one group comprising 304 non-owners, 53 per cent believed that initial prices were too high, while 24 per cent were waiting for a "perfect" set; others gave various reasons, some believing reception in the neighborhood was poor or that the use of an outside aerial was prohibited. Evidently there is a great field as yet unexplored by radio sales agents, where a little explanation or a demonstration would create ready sales.

As to who in the home wanted the set installed, it appears that out of a large number of people seen, over 58 per cent were the husbands or the heads of the house; wives came second with a percentage of 21; while children's desires represented 20 per cent. Out of 1200 homes investigated, 66 per cent were operating their first sets, the remaining third had owned sets previously. Some families had owned as many as nine sets; in fact, over 5 per cent of those interrogated, while 45 per cent were using their second sets and 21 per cent their third receivers. One home was found to have six sets on hand; five others had five sets apiece and 110 households boasted of two or more.

The chief reason for buying a particular receiver was that the purchasers thought it the best make; that is, 46 per cent of them bought for this reason, while 17 per cent bought on the advice of friends, and 12 per cent because of low prices.

Some were influenced by advertisements, but others benefited by demonstrations in their homes.

Prices have a great influence, and yet, out of 1166 owners asked the question, 24 per cent did not know the price paid for the sets, while 12 per cent bought because the cost was low. The initial cost sets varied from $2 to $650, the average consumer paying around $100.

Many plan to buy better sets. An indication as to the cost of the next set to be bought shows an increase over the average prices paid of about $50.

These prices naturally are higher than the average cost of home construction or assembly, which averaged at $40. It is indicated quite definitely that most present owners are willing and expect to pay more for their next sets, which shows that they are inclined to buy a little better set next time. Some 40 per cent expect to pay between $150 and $200 for new sets. As to types of sets desired, it appears that about 28 per cent of nearly a thousand prospective purchasers desire neutrodynes, while 23 per cent prefer super-heterodynes.

Appearances of the radio receiving apparatus as a whole are now being considered which makes for increasing neatness in the living rooms of prospective buyers, 43 per cent plan to purchase their next, and perhaps final set, as a piece of furniture. That is, a cabinet containing all the apparatus and batteries, which seems to show a tendency toward permanency and more attractive living rooms. Many indicated that they wanted something appropriate to fit in with their furnishings, as a complete unit, which they anticipate as the future popular style.

Out of 1280 homes investigated, in one census, nearly 36 per cent had five-tube sets in operation, 9 per cent used over five tubes, and 19 per cent operated three tubes. Crystal sets and one-tube sets accounted for 8 per cent each. Of the home-made apparatus discovered, 25 per cent were three-tube affairs, and 18 per cent one-tube sets.

The percentage of loud speakers used, out of over 1200 sets tabulated, was 76, the use of loud speakers increasing of course as the size of the apparatus increased. Almost all the five-tube sets for example were connected to loud speakers while only 35 per cent of the total number operated from two tubes. Of loud speaker types, 82 per cent were horns, while a little over 7 per cent were phonograph attachments, the balance being built-in or cabinet speakers.

Wet A batteries seem the most popular; all told, 60 per cent of over a thousand users preferring this type. On the other hand, three-fourths of the owners asked the question, said they used dry B batteries. The average fan appears to prefer an out-door aerial, or to be exact, 85 per cent of those interviewed, the balance using inside or loop aerials. One per cent employed special plugs and used the electric light wires.

Who runs the set was answered in 455 cases out of 644 as the man of the home; or a percentage of 71, whereas women handled 6 per cent of the sets, and children 3 per cent. The chief feature sought in sets seems to be simplicity of operation, nearly 66 per cent insisting on this quality, although 56 sought the best tone, and 48 per cent good volume. Distance was given as the prime requisite by 47 per cent and selectivity by 42. Appearance came last in this investigation, only 28 per cent of the fans seeming to be influenced by this factor.

Fans are partial to the particular manufacturer the set they own; 46 per cent of them would buy the same make; and 43 per cent would buy the same type. As to satisfaction with present sets in operation, the women seem more easily pleased, 72 per cent being satisfied, whereas of men owners only 70 were satisfied. Three-fourths of the owners interviewed, are reported as satisfied with broadcasting, whereas the remainder are not; this was found largely dependent on whether or not the owners dwell in large or small places.

WGY TESTS SUPER-POWER

As a test of super-power, WGY (Schenectady) operated with 50,000 watts three nights during the week of July 6 to Aug. 1. Officials of the Department of Commerce who listened in on the tests would make no comment regarding them other than saying that the higher power seemed to overcome whatever static there was. It is believed that data regarding higher power is desired for the consideration of the next national radio conference.

SHORT WAVES FOR ARCTIC

Within a short time the Canadian Government steamship Arctic will set out from Quebec for the Far North for the purpose of, among other things, completing a series of short wave experimental tests which were inaugurated last summer between the Arctic and the Canadian members of the American Radio League. Last year successful communication was carried on on wave lengths of 80 and 125 meters, while the plan for this summer contemplates the use of 20, 40 and 80 meters.

Lightning Arresters.

A lightning arrester contains two small metal discs separated by about 3-32 of an inch. The gap is a vacuum. This allows any large charge in the antenna to which one side is connected to jump across the gap to the other plate and out through the ground wire attached and into the ground instead of going through the set.

For the Notebook.

Too much wiring will increase losses in the set.

The voltage test is the only proper test of a "B" battery.

Poor insulation is sometimes the cause of poor signal strength.

The minimum working voltage of a detector tube is about 17 volts.

Some detectors require very critical filament adjustments for best results.

for Every Home an AUTOMOBILE

If you live in town, a car will put you within easy and constant reach of the fresh air and growing things in the country. A car of your own will give you freedom from that "closed-in" feeling of your office, store or shop—more happiness in life greater efficiency in business every day.

And if you live in the suburbs, a car will bring the theaters, the shops and stores of the city to your very doorstep. A quick trip to the city, whether for business or pleasure, is easily accomplished in your own car!

Based on these benefits and added pleasures, alone, a car is a wise investment.

And an automobile does not always involve as much of an outlay as you may fancy—especially is this true if you invest in one of the excellent, nearly new cars advertised in the classified "Automobiles" columns of the Post-Dispatch today and every day.

If you are inclined to feel that you cannot afford a new car, start with one that has already seen some slight service, yet still has thousands of miles left in it. Value is there—but prices are lower.

In careful buying of Used Cars, it is wise to consult the classified "Automobiles" columns of the Post-Dispatch, because the Post-Dispatch carries far more Automobile Advertisements than ALL other St. Louis newspapers COMBINED.

BETTY JANE'S RICH FOSTER-MOTHER GIVES HER UP TO "POOR, REAL MAMMA"

Two-Year Struggle Between Mrs. Grubel and Mrs. Jerome for Custody of Child Ends With Compromise

Mrs. Grubel Surrenders Legal Guardianship of Betty Jane When Betty Jane's Stepfather Promises Not to Adopt Her—Case Began in Kansas City, Where the Wealthy Grubels Longed for a Child and Where Miss Jewell Freeman Was Working for $16 a Week to Support Herself and Betty Jane—She Consented to Mrs. Grubel's Guardianship and Then Changed Her Mind After Her Marriage.

BETTY JANE JEROME.

MRS. JEWELL JEROME,
Betty Jane's real mother

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 8.

THEY met in court here the other day—the wealthy Mrs. Grubel who had no child of her own, and Mrs. Jerome, the mother of the child she wanted. In court too was little Betty Jane Jerome, who had known both women as "Mother." Her affections were very young, yet, and might be won for keeps by either litigant. So they felt it all-important, which was to have Betty Jane from now on.

What a desperate sorrowful dispute it had been and was! It had started in Kansas City two years ago where Mrs. Grubel and her husband, Frank C. Grubel have a handsome home. It started when Mrs. Jerome was Miss Jewell Freeman and working in a shop to support herself and child. Then she was very glad to have Mrs. Grubel show an interest in Betty Jane, not aware that this childless woman wanted a little girl to love. Discovering how circumstances had conspired to give Betty Jane to Mrs. Grubel, the young mother was panic stricken. She stole the child and with the man she had married in the interval, raced across the continent.

Chance led Mrs. Grubel, who loved Betty Jane, to San Francisco where she found the Jeromes and had them haled to court. Here two women stood side by side and two pathetic stories were told. Which had the better right to the child?

"I have," said Mrs. Jerome. "I am her mother. I worked for her when to acknowledge her was hard. I am married now and can take care of her. She is mine, my own."

"I have," said Mrs. Grubel. "I am wealthy and can give her advantages in life which her own mother cannot. I love her as if she were my own child. She will love me as easily as her own mother. I should have Betty Jane."

Now had Betty Jane been older she might have been given a chance to decide, herself. But such momentous questions cannot be left to three and a half year olds. As far as anyone could see Betty Jane was divided. She hugged Mrs. Grubel and she hugged Mrs. Jerome. She made eyes at her step-father, Horace Jerome, and had Frank Grubel been there she would undoubtedly have made eyes at him. To her he is "Daddy Pitcher Show," because he took her to gorgeous places with moving figures on a screen, back in Kansas City.

An Unequal Struggle

While on the face of it the battle seemed an equal one, in reality it was not. Mrs. Grubel realized she was fighting against great odds. The burden of precedent in law is to give the child to its natural mother. In Kansas City recently the Burckhalter baby case, very similar to the Jerome case, was decided this way. So, while the dispute was about to be given to a Judge to decide Mrs. Grubel wavered in favor of a compromise. She did not wish to antagonize the Jeromes to the point where they would refuse to let her keep in touch with Betty Jane.

"It had never been my intention," she explained, "to permit Betty Jane to think I was her real mother. I was willing for her to know that I was only her guardian, and I wanted Jewell to have every right to visit and play with her daughter. I felt that when Betty Jane grew up she could decide between us, if that became necessary."

Therefore, Mrs. Grubel made the best compromise she could. She agreed to drop all proceedings to recover the child if Jerome would not attempt to legally adopt her as his daughter. This settlement was satisfactory to the Jeromes; in a way it was a complete victory. Mrs. Jerome will keep Betty Jane. Mrs. Grubel has only the hope that at some future time the mother will realize what advantages she is denying to the little girl in refusing to allow her wealthy patron to rear and educate her.

Betty Jane probably will never know the heartaches she has caused, the fine loyalties she has inspired. Her parentage forced dramatics at the outset. Friends told Jewell Freeman that they would help her if she would give up her child. She refused, choosing to work by the day and keep the baby. She placed Bardina Freeman—as Betty Jane was first christened—in a nursing home in Kansas City and took work downtown. She made $16 a week and $8 of this she paid for the support of her child. Jewell Freeman was an orphan without close relatives, so she was obliged to face the problems alone.

One day in 1923 Mrs. Frank C. Grubel of Kansas City, Kan., happened to visit the nursing home. She was attracted to little Betty Jane, blue-eyed and blond, and asked as to the circumstances of the mother. The matron told her Jewell Freeman's story, mentioning the struggle she was having to keep her child. Mrs. Grubel asked to take Betty Jane for a visit. The visit lengthened. Mrs. Grubel began to love Betty Jane and wish she were her little girl.

A woman nearing middle age, wealthy and with no heart interest in life besides her husband, Mrs. Grubel longed for a child. The maternal love denied her fastened on this small stranger from the home. She refused to allow her servants to care for Betty Jane, fixing milk bottles, changing dresses and bathing the youngster herself. It was a happy slavery for Mrs. Grubel. Her husband, too, grew fond of Betty Jane. He had put his plans for children aside. He had gone without those experiences beloved of parents. Now Betty Jane had appeared to give his dreams back to him.

"Oh, are you going to adopt her?" friends asked them.

"She's too cute for anything," friends said, enviously.

It delighted Mr. and Mrs. Grubel to show Betty Jane about. They liked to take her for rides on sunny afternoons in their car.

Amateur parents both, what a bustle they made of it. Everything must be just so for Betty Jane. Mrs. Gruber took to reading Dr. Holt's book and quoting him on many occasions. The light must not be in Betty Jane's eyes. Was Frank sure there was no draft through the windshield? He must drive carefully so as not to jolt Betty Jane. Dr. Holt said fresh air was good for children if administered properly. She did hope Betty Jane was getting the right milk mixture. You know, some authorities said that Borden's was better than certified and others liked the powdered form. Dear me, children were such a responsibility

And Mrs. Grubel hugged Betty Jane.

When Jewell Freeman called at the nursing home to see her baby she was told that Mrs. Grubel had taken her for a visit. She went out to the Grubel home and Mrs. Grubel welcomed her. Wouldn't she come to live with them, too, so they could keep Betty Jane? The young mother hesitated and then consented to an arrangement which was to bring unhappiness to everyone. She visited the Grubels several weeks, and then, deciding to go back to work, told Mrs. Grubel she might have herself appointed guardian of Jane.

Jewell's attitude was mostly the result of circumstances. The care of Betty Jane had been a heavy burden. She saw a chance to shift this load to willing hands. Moreover, it pleased her to think that her child had found such a friend. As to the future, well, Jewell Freeman was only 17 then. It did not occur to her that it might not be so easy to end her agreement with the Grubels as it was to start it.

Overjoyed at prospect of keeping the child, Mrs. Grubel petitioned the late Judge John T. Sims of the Wyandotte County Court to make her legal guardian. Her plea was granted and the papers duly signed. Mrs. Grubel gave more of herself to Betty Jane than before, thinking herself nearer the desired relationship. Jewell Freeman was young, Mrs. Grubel assured herself, she had her life before her. She could marry and have more babies. Wasn't it quite possible that she would in time forget Betty Jane, or at least be content to let Mrs. Grubel rear and educate the child? With Betty Jane between them the Grubels would speculate hopefully on the chance of their keeping the infant.

HORACE JEROME,
Betty Jane's stepfather whose promise not to try to adopt her led Mrs. Grubel to drop her efforts to obtain custody of the child.

As time went on the Grubels were lulled to a sense of security in their possession by not hearing from Jewell. Betty Jane's foster-mother made large plans for Betty Jane's first Christmas in her new home. It was December, 1924.

Her Romance

In the meantime Jewell Freeman had met Horace Jerome. His place in life was humble like her own. He was a telephone company lineman and made $36 a week. This seemed a lot to Jewell, and when Jerome talked bravely of being able to support a wife she saw romance within her grasp. But not at the sacrifice of Betty Jane. How easy it would have been for her to have told him nothing; to have arranged with the eager Grubels for adoption; to have forgot little Betty Jane. This she could not do. She told Horace Jerome her story, risking her romance for the sake of truth and loyalty to her child.

"That doesn't make any difference—about the kid," said Horace Jerome, "we'll take care of her like she was our own."

Splendid speech. Jewell loved him for it. They were married, and she set out to get her baby. She met Mrs. Grubel and the child downtown during the Christmas shopping rush by appointment, and told Mrs. Grubel she had a home for Betty Jane and would take her now. Mrs. Grubel demurred.

The two women got into the Grubel car with Betty Jane, and Jewell asked Mrs. Grubel to drive her home. Deceitfully, she said nothing further about taking Betty Jane until the car drove up to her house at 2617 East Twenty-fourth street, Kansas City.

"Give me Betty Jane," she ordered Mrs. Grubel.

"I'll not. I'm her legal guardian," said the older woman, tightening her grasp on the suddenly frightened child.

"You will," whipped out the mother.

She grabbed Betty Jane, tore her from Mrs. Grubel's arms, leaped from the machine, darted into the house and slammed the door. Mrs. Grubel rushed after her and pounded on the door. In a frenzy of determination, Jewell piled furniture against it, and holding Betty Jane close, defied this woman who wanted her child.

"Betty Jane is mine. You'll never see her again," cried Mrs. Jerome.

The grief-stricken foster-mother resorted to the law to recover Betty Jane. She obtained a writ of habeas corpus on the strength of her legal guardianship of the little girl, and had the child and her mother brought before Judge E. E. Porterfield in Kansas City, Mo.

Judge Porterfield ruled that Mrs. Jerome might keep her baby, because Mrs. Grubel's suit should have been brought in a Kansas Court. She had been appointed guardian by a Kansas Court and her plea should have been made to it, the Judge held. Mrs. Grubel's attorneys then appealed to the Federal Court.

MRS. FRANK GRUBEL,
Betty Jane's foster mother.

Then, Jewell Jerome and her husband realized the seriousness of the fight they had entered. They know themselves to be no match for the wealthy Mrs. Grubel in a long litigation. Money was fighting on her side.

"We'll run away with Betty Jane," Jewell decided.

They pulled up stakes at a great sacrifice in Kansas City. By selling nearly everything they possessed, they were able to buy tickets to Longview, Wash. Here, Jerome was unable to find work. They managed somehow to move on to Portland where once more Jerome could not get employment. By this time they were reduced to desperate straits. Still, there was no thought of surrender. Jerome was as determined as his wife that Mrs. Grubel should not have Betty Jane. They sold most of their clothes and went to San Francisco, where Jerome found a position.

Back in Kansas City Mrs. Grubel employed detectives to recover Betty Jane. The Federal Court had upheld her guardianship of the child.

But the months went by and there was no trace of the Jeromes. Mrs. Grubel grieved almost as if she had lost Betty Jane by death. She advertised and offered large rewards for news of the Jeromes.

Quite accidentally there came a clew. Judge Porterfield, who had upheld the Jeromes in their custody of Betty Jane, went on a visit to San Francisco. At about this time friends of the Grubels were attending a Shriners convention here. These friends happened by the merest chance to see Judge Porterfield at the Union Station. He was talking to a man and woman whom he had met, apparently by chance also. Mrs. Grubel's friends said: "I'll bet he's talking to those Jeromes who ran away with the Grubels' baby."

So they wired Mrs. Grubel. She hurried

TWO HUNDRED MOTHERLESS CHILDREN HAVE CALLED THIS WOMAN "MA"

Unlike the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, Mrs. Hendren Always Knew Just What to Do

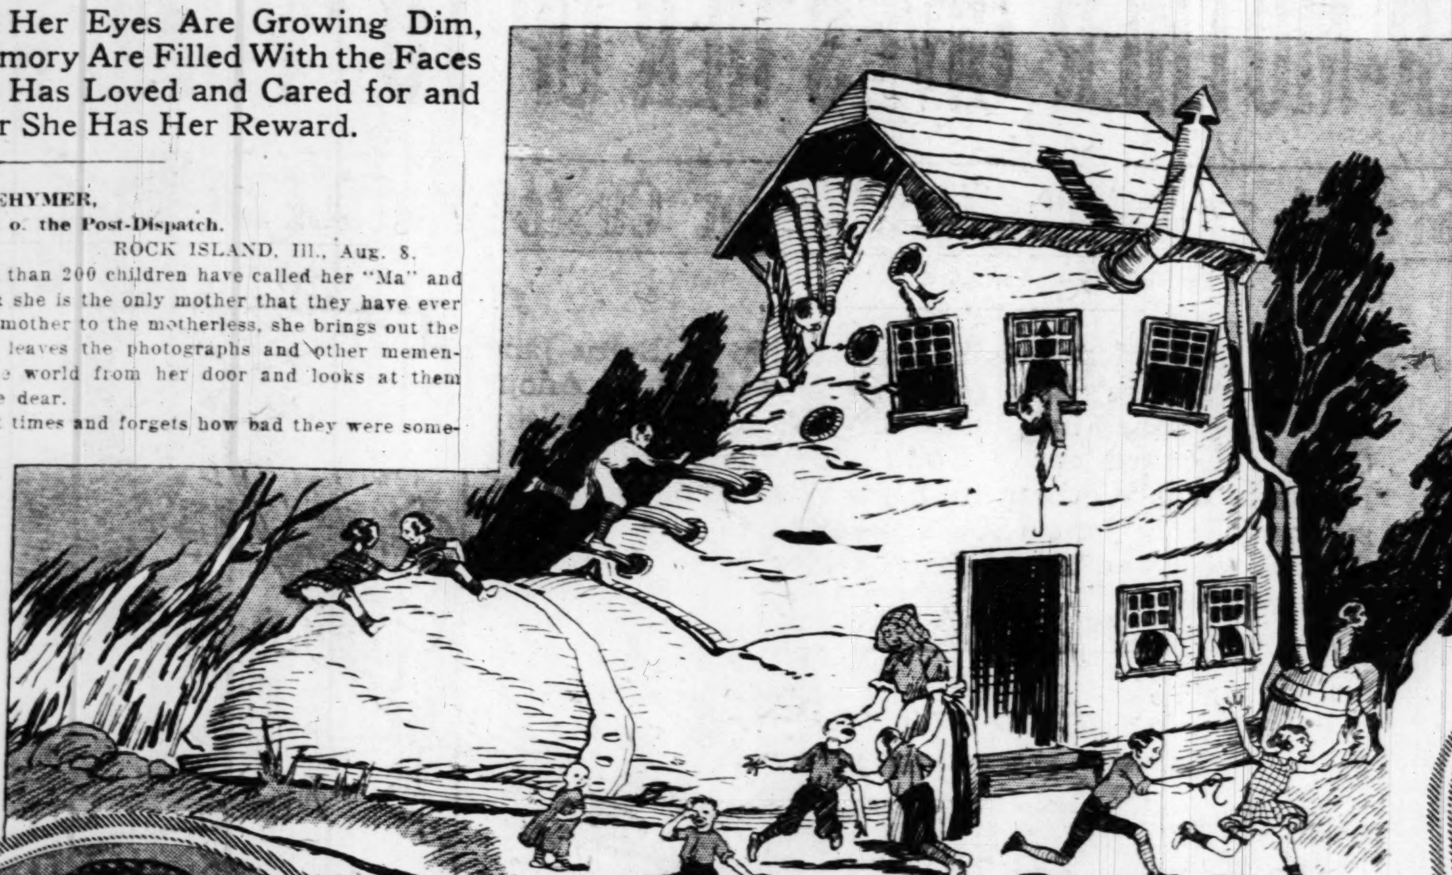
She Is 84 Years Old Now and Her Eyes Are Growing Dim, But the Pages of Her Memory Are Filled With the Faces of the Children That She Has Loved and Cared for and in Their Gratitude to Her She Has Her Reward.

By F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent o. the Post-Dispatch.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Aug. 8.

SHE is Mrs. Ruth A. Hendren and more than 200 children have called her "Ma" and still call her "Ma," for to most of them she is the only mother that they have ever known. And now that she is old, still mother to the motherless, she brings out the big family Bible and takes from between the leaves the photographs and other mementoes of the children who have gone out into the world from her door and looks at them with dim eyes, for they bring memories that are dear.

She remembers how good they were most times and forgets how bad they were sometimes. She hears out of the past cheery voices that say, "Good morning, Ma," and sleepy voices, when the long day is done, that say their "Now I lay me down to sleep" at her knee and their "Goodnight, Ma."



Unlike the old woman who lived in a shoe and had so many children she didn't know what to do, Mother Hendren never had so many youngsters around that she lost her wits. She always knew just what to do and how to do it, and if you ask her now, this mother of more than 200 children, if it has been worth while, she will tell you that the greatest thing in the world is bringing up children and teaching them the way that they should go. As for her, she is 84 now, but she couldn't live without children in the house and she will keep on caring for them until the end.

It began away back when there was no institution in Rock Island for the care of children that needed care. Mrs. Hendren had five of her own but there was room in her big home for more. There were orphans that needed mothering and, sometimes, children whose parents were unfit to have them. Mrs. Hendren interested herself in missions and in social service and it came about that when officials or physicians had cases that called for the wisdom and loving kindness of a motherly woman, they turned to her.

Fathers of motherless children, unable to keep them together, brought them to her and she took them in. Usually there was a vague understanding that she would be paid, but she seldom was. That made no difference. She kept them as long as they needed her care.

Mrs. Hendren as she used to be—from an old tintype.

Sometimes there were incorrigibles that parents could do nothing with, but Ma Hendren never found an incorrigible child that kindness would not tame.

Taking stock of them now as she turns the leaves of the Bible and holds their photographs close to her faded eyes, she says it beats the world how good they all turned out, for some of them had a pretty bad start, before they came to her.

Four of her own children survive and three of her foster children she has adopted and calls them her own. She names her own, who have grown up and gone their ways, and adds: "There's Vernon, he's mine, and Vera, she's mine, and Donnie, he's mine," and is particular that they be listed as hers, for they would be distressed unless it was made clear that they belonged to her.

It was a drizzly, dismal day when I came to Mrs. Hendren's door, at 4106 Fifth avenue, to ask her to tell about her 200 children, but there was cheer within. Flowers stood on the parlor table. They had been sent by some of her children, for she had been ill. "My children are always good to me," she said. She brought the Bible from its niche and opened it on her knee and spread before her on the table the photographs and greeting cards and clippings which were her only record of her big family. Once she had a book in which she kept the names of her children and particulars concerning them, but that book had been lost and all that she had was her memory, aided by the reminders that she brought from the Bible.

Cannot Remember Them All

It was too much for the memory of an old woman to remember them all but sometimes, she said, when she lay awake at night, thinking of the boys and girls whose feet had pattered through the big house, she counted them over, well up toward 200, but always, when she thought she had recalled them all, she would think of others and then drowsiness would come over her and she would lose the count and it always ended that way.

But now the photographs brought remembrance and she named them as she took up their pictures.

There was Vernon. She raised him from a baby. And made a good man of him. And he went to war and came back a Lieutenant. And she was the first one he came to see when he returned. Two others of her boys, Frank and Herbert, went to the war and came back and like Vernon they came first to see her when they returned. Vernon was a fine boy. He didn't drink nor chew nor swear when she was bringing him up. Well, he did sort of swear once, but he was moving a stove and she had heard it said that boys who never swore any other time would swear when moving a stove.

And Vera. There never was a finer girl than Vera. Working over in Davenport as cashier in a store and doing well and soon to be married. And Donnie, not yet grown, had always been a nice little feller and she expected him to turn out well.

There was a clipping which told of the death of her husband, S. B. Hendren, Civil War veteran, in September, 1916. She laid it aside. "I used to take comfort in reading it," she said. There was greater comfort now in thinking about her children and talking about them.

Here was one that she raised from a bottle baby. At one time she had three bottle babies. They grew to strength. Frankie, who went to war, was one of them. She had had him since he was a little bit of a tike.

Speaking of her boys, there was a time when she had ten at one time. That meant there were 14 at meals. It was not for long that she had that many. Sometimes a child stayed only a few weeks or months. Sometimes it was several years. And a few stayed until they were grown.

Ruling ten boys wasn't such a terrible job. The thing was to be kind but firm. She did not let them go visiting the other children of the neighborhood. There wasn't any use. And she didn't encourage the children of the neighborhood to come visiting her boys. There might be an argument and her boys might get the best of it and then the neighbors would be mad and she wanted to live at peace with her neighbors. She did not allow the members of her brood to quarrel or fight or call each other bad names.

Punishment was rarely necessary. At the most she would spank one of them a little.

Mrs. Hendren and group of children —from picture taken many years ago.

Only once was there a test of her authority. Several boys, awaiting removal to an institution, had been left in her care. They were hard-boiled. They had a leader who was especially that way. They decided it was expedient that they do something to show that they were desperate characters. Several daring plans were suggested. That of going swimming met with most favor. The river was near. They started away.

Quelling the Mutiny

Mrs. Hendren had observed the growing mutiny. She asked them where they were going. They said they were going swimming. She said they weren't. There was a difference of opinion right there. The boys did not care to argue the matter. They started for the river. Mrs. Hendren broke a switch from a tree and went along. At the river bank the gang hesitated. They were not quite equal to Ma's strategy. There were certain embarrassments connected with the situation. And then there was the switch. They decided to keep their clothes on and went back.

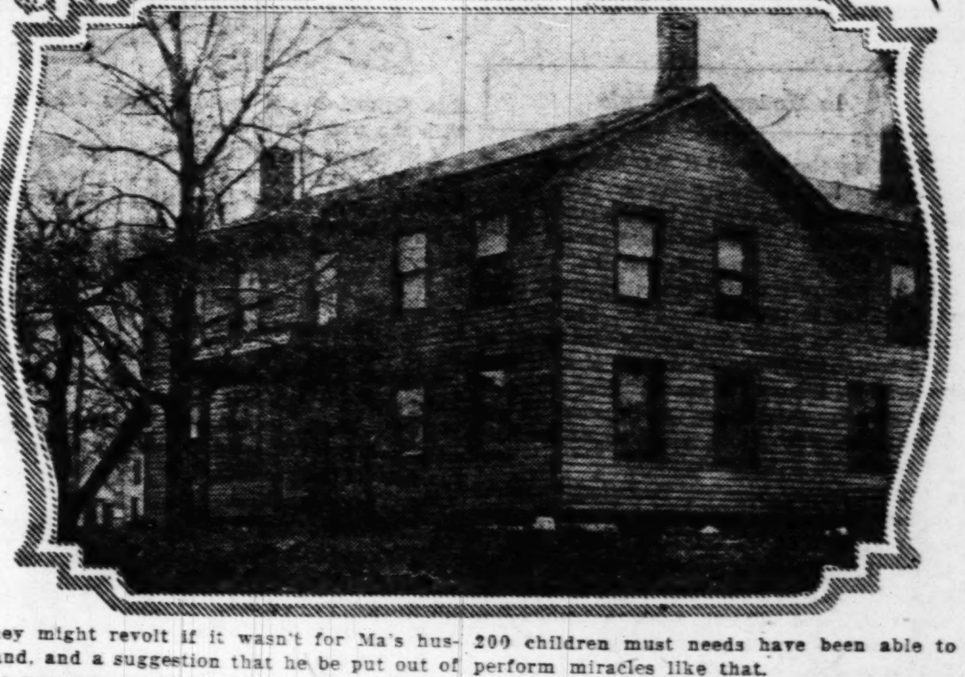
Mrs. Hendren conjectured there would be discussion of the affair after the boys went to bed. She tarried within earshot. The discussion was free and easy and somewhat decorative. The general idea was that "We gotta mind in this place."

There were bold spirits who opined that they might revolt if it wasn't for Ma's husband, and a suggestion that he be put out of the way was unanimously approved. How to do it was the question. Various blood-curdling methods were proposed but all rejected, as being too tame. By that time they were getting drowsy and one by one they dropped off to sleep. Next day and as long as they stayed they were docile. They said "Good morning, Ma," and was there anything that they could do for her, peel potatoes or carry water or anything, and at night they said "Goodnight, Ma," and went off to bed and before they went away they were as good as any boys she had ever had and the day they were taken away they kissed her goodby and waved to her until they were out of sight.

Mrs. Ruth A. Hendren as she is today at age of 84.

Sounds like it couldn't be done, but, come to think of it, a woman who has brought up 200 children must needs have been able to perform miracles like that.

Home of Mrs. Hendren, where she cared for 200 children.



There was mending and darning to be done and many a night Mother Hendren, after hearing the children's prayers and tucking them in, sat beside her shaded lamp and mended and darned until the small hours of the morning, until her eyelids became leaden and her hands dropped limp, and counted it no hardship to minister thus to the needs of her wards.

Watched Beside the Sick

Sometimes there was sickness and through the long watches of the night she stood beside a fever-tortured child, soothing with cool hand and crooning voice, fighting for its life. Three children had diphtheria at the same time. She nursed them without assistance. The doctor scolded her. She was overdoing herself. She should have help. But she laughed at him. Work never killed anybody, she said, and she had never heard of anybody dying from watching beside sick children. He shrugged helplessly and went away. She pulled them through. No child that ever entered her home died while there.

Oh yes, she missed many midnight dances and bridge parties and all the mad whirl in which silly women seek relief from the ennui of living, but she counts it gain to have missed these things for the sake of the children that she has served.

Through the photographs she went, naming most of them, but the names of some she had forgotten. There were so many.

Pages from memory's album.

She was sure, though, that they all remembered her, and she had many proofs that they were grateful to her. Some of them were n hands to write but she knew they loved h as much as those who wrote often. She h letters almost every day, or they called up o came to see her. To all of them she w "Ma" and they wanted to know if she need ed anything or if there was anything th they could do for her.

Folks told her she was getting too old t care for children, but she couldn't live with out children. She has only two now, Ch and Georgie. She expects to keep Ch as long as she lives. The other is with h only for a time. They were away at sc that day.

There must needs be a tour of the roo to show where her children had slept. Ti rooms with tidy beds. Into each room sh looked, tarrying in each for a moment, thin ing of the children who had been there an had gone, the children who had knelt at her knee and said their "Now I lay me down t sleep," and their "Goodnight, Ma."

FROLICKING MOTHERS TRY TO MAKE POLICE WATCH BABES AT CONEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.

While recommending a special asylum for lost children at Coney Island, John S. Ke nedy, State Prison Commissioner, in a report issued yesterday, urged punishment for fro licking mothers who abandon their young sters for the day, certain the police will care for them while they enjoy themselves.

An inspection of the Coney Island Station, the Twenty-eighth Precinct of New York City, was made by the commission July 4. From 50 to 75 children were brought to the station up to 9 p. m. that day. A total of 1200 "lost children" had been cared for. On one of Coney's "big" Sundays, recently, police "mothered" 157 lost children, all of whom were "claimed" before midnight.

"It seems pretty well established," said Commissioner Kennedy, "that many women coming to Coney Island, bringing their children with them, purposely abandon them, knowing they will be taken care of by the police and kept until they have finished their day of pleasure, when they call for them at the station and take them home."

FIFTEEN years ago the tidy housewives of maids were making the dust fly with the fa and settled again and the weary round was dust and always the family broom was making it

Then came down the street a brisk man with a contraption under his arm, ringing doorbells, interrupting the sweeping and dusting, bringing emancipation to the tidy housewives and their capped and aproned maids. For the thing he carried under his arm was what he called a vacuum cleaner, a wonderful invention, to hear him tell it, which would take the place of the family broom and duster, and if the lady wouldn't mind he would like to show her what it could do.

Whether she minded or not did not greatly matter. He proceeded to show what his new dofunny could do. For he was that kind of a man.

If the sweeping and dusting had not been finished for the day he finished it. If it had been finished, so much the better. He did it over and showed to his own complete satisfaction how much better he could do it with his little push engine. For proof that it had not been well done the first time he opened up the dust bag of his vacuum cleaner and produced the dust that it had accumulated after the housewife and the maid had done their best.

It was a daring thing to do, trying to convince a woman that her house was dirty after it had been cleaned and she had pronounced it well cleaned. Sometimes it brought conviction to the woman and sometimes it brought disaster to the man.

If the woman was credulous she said yes it was quite wonderful and wanted to know more about it. If she was skeptical, as most of them at first were, she accused the young man of filling his old bag with dust before he came and, not infrequently, chased him away with the family broom which he had attempted to libel.

If the man had been less purposeful and persistent he would have turned away from a generation of unbelieving women and left them in their dust and nobody could have said that it didn't serve them right, spurning the emancipation that was offered them as they did, but the man with the contraption under his arm carried on and won the day and the women of the land now call him blessed and the other day he and five of his associates split up $12,000,000 profits.

It was an evil day for the family broom when the man came down the street ringing the doorbells, for now the factory of this one company is turning out vacuum cleaners at the rate of a thousand a day and there are 69 other varieties.

Recognized a Good Thing

The man was Fred Wardell, salesman. He had tried his hand at selling vibrators and electrical batteries and then he had come in contact with a man named Stecker who had devised a vacuum cleaner, one of the many devised under the Kinney patent, but was not getting anywhere with it, mostly because he was more manufacturer than salesman. Wardell looked it over and sized it up as a good thing. He made a contract with Stecker to take over the output and merchandise it and for that purpose organized himself into a selling company with a girl stenographer as the rest of the company.

The useful

It was a bell-ringing proposition if ever there was one. Vacuum cleaners were beginning to appear here and there but the women of America were not "sold" on the vacuum cleaner idea. Only a small proportion of the women had heard about it. Mo of those who had heard of it were suspicio of it. They would never come to the va uum cleaner. It was an evil day for the family broom when the man came down the street ringing the doorbells, for now the factory of this one company is turning out vacuum cleaners at the rate of a thousand a day and there are 69 other varieties.

Recognized a Good Thing

The useful family broom.

The man was Fred Wardell, salesman. He had tried his hand at selling vibrators and electrical batteries and then he had come in contact with a man named Stecker who had devised a vacuum cleaner, one of the many devised under the Kinney patent, but was not getting anywhere with it, mostly because he was more manufacturer than salesman. Wardell looked it over and sized it up as a good thing. He made a contract with Stecker to take over the output and merchandise it and for that purpose organized himself into a selling company with a girl stenographer as the rest of the company.

It was a bell-ringing proposition if ever there was one. Vacuum cleaners were beginning to appear here and there but the women of America were not "sold" on the vacuum cleaner idea. Only a small proportion of the women had heard about it. Most of those who had heard of it were suspicious of it. They would never come to the vacuum cleaner. The vacuum cleaner would have to be taken to them.

Wardell fully recognized that the job cut out for him was to take the vacuum cleaner to the women. So he started down the street, ringing the doorbells as he went, and he calculates now that in bearing the glad tidings to the women of the land he rang more doorbells and had more doors slammed in his face than any man before or since.

There was something about the vacuum cleaner that aroused the instinctive hostility of the housewives even before it showed them that their houses, presumed to be clean, were dirty. It was on the face of it an attempt to discredit and undermine the faithful family broom which had been wielded unto weariness by generations of women. It had served them well not only in routing the dust but in driving the neighbors' chickens from the garden and, at odd times, putting to flight the beggar who came to the back door and the salesman who came to the front door. So the women were disposed to stand by it.

That was what Wardell was up against when he started out with his vacuum cleaner under his arm. Single-handed he challenged the broom-embattled host, attacking one at a time, suffering many rebuffs and repulses, spurred by defeats to greater endeavors, returning to the attack, gaining footholds and, by and by, taking strongholds.

The suspicion that he brought his own dust along, cunningly concealed somewhere in the machine, was the hardest to overcome. At first it did not avail to open up the bag before the demonstration and show it was empty. Even so did the magician, but look what the magician drew from seeming emptiness. Like as not there was a secret chamber in the machine which, under the agent's manipulation, emptied itself into the bag when he was rolling his little wagon over the carpet, pretending to get dust out of it when it had just been swept clean.

It was all right for him to show how it could pick up things from the floor, things which he had placed there to be picked up, but picking up things that were there and sucking up dust which wasn't there were two totally different things, and there couldn't be any dust there because the carpet had been swept that day.

When he convinced them that there was dust where, on the honor of the family broom, there was none, the next thing was to make them see that it mattered whether dust was there, left by the broom, when nobody could see it. He told them about the dangers that lurked in hidden dust and, apart from the danger, the impossibility of a good housewife being content with a house that only seemed to be clean but was indeed dirty, as the vacuum cleaner could testify.

When all of that had been accomplished there was another barricade to be battered down. Any housewife could buy all the brooms she wanted at a quarter apiece. And what do you suppose the man wanted for his fancy sweeper? Forty-five dollars! Forty-four dollars and seventy-five cents more than the broom. The vacuum cleaner, as the man called it, might be better than the broom, but the man needn't tell them that it was forty-four dollars and seventy-five cents better.

Cheap at the Price

That was precisely what the man did tell them. It had been a frontal attack from the first, with no beating about the bush. It was the same way about the price. He showed them, in dollars and cents, that the vacuum cleaner at $45 was cheaper in the long run, counting wear and tear and tired backs, than the broom at a quarter.

FRED WARDELL.

That was the beginning of the end of the family broom.

It was a slow enough beginning and, in the earlier vacuum era, a slow enough growth but there came a time when Wardell was selling 2000 cleaners in a year and if there was going to be continued growth there would have to be sure enough organization. So a system of factory branch stores was worked out, with a wholesale and retail organization in each branch. In 1919 a new factory was built. The Stecker interest was bought in 1921. There are now 22 factory branch stores, with a personnel in manufacturing and selling, of about 5000. And the output, as heretofore told, is now about 1000 a day.

The bellringer at the door.

One of the vacuum cleaner's tricks is to pick up dollars. Some of them are thrown on the carpet and somebody trundles the thing over them and they disappear up its nozzle like peanuts up an elephant's trunk. That's the trick it has been turning for Wardell and his associates and the organization of which he is the head.

From time to time, as the organization has been built up, it has drawn to it the service of men who have helped it grow and increase its capacity for picking up money. It remained, however, practically a one-man company, with Wardell holding 90 per cent of the $500,000 capital stock. But it was his cherished purpose to have the men who had helped him make the business share in the ownership.

Recently, to keep step with the expanding business, a reorganization seemed advisable and Wardell decided that the time had come to make his assistants his partners. Already they were stockholders, for Wardell had encouraged his department heads to acquire stock in the concern, practically without cost to them, as it was paid for out of the dividends.

V. W. YOUNG.

The company, as reorganized, was composed as follows: Fred Wardell, president; A. L. McCarthy, vice president and general manager; V. M. Young, vice president and sales manager; P. A. Barnard, secretary and treasurer; E. R. Field, general manager of manufacturing; George Phister, director.

Defending her house cleaning.

In ratification of the reorganization Wardell invited his associates to dinner at the Detroit Golf Club. As favors he distributed $4,000,000 in cash and $8,000,000 in the new stock issue of the reorganized company, at the book value of $50 per share, the basis of division being the years that each had been with the company and the extent of his previously acquired holdings. And, remember, when Wardell started ringing doorbells 15 years ago and telling housewives what a good thing he had, his capital was $1000.

After the dinner these six shook hands, as good fellows who have met together will, and said good-night and promised to see each other tomorrow, and went their ways, happy all, but the happiest among them was Fred Wardell, who had just split $12,000,000 with them, happier than he had ever been since the day that he came down the street a little over 15 years ago and rang a doorbell and found a woman in dustcap and apron and convinced her that his new vacuum cleaner was better than her old family broom, and sold her one, the first one.

On the office stairs, when these six men went to work next day, they passed under a framed picture of the millionth, made last year.

Offices and factory, out at the edge of town, cover three acres. It is a spick and span factory, as why shouldn't it be, with a thousand new vacuum cleaners a day to keep it that way. If a housekeeper of the old-fashioned sort were to come along with her broom and duster she wouldn't be able to raise any dust.

Through the factory runs the stream of vacuum cleaners, passing from hand to hand in the process of being made complete, through the hands of 500 persons before they are complete, and then, after a two hours' test, they are carried on a tramway to the waiting freight cars and are sent on their way to the four corners of this country and to Canada, England, Switzerland and Australia. Thus has come true the dream of Wardell the bellringer.

Old Bailey Turns Up a Real Hero From Its Grist of Cases

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 30.—A life of adventure surpassing the record of the most heroic "hero" of modern fiction was revealed in the prosaic atmosphere of Old Bailey, London's famous criminal court, when Capt. Charles Alfred Gardiner faced charges of obtaining £300,000 by false pretenses (in connection with the flotation of a shipbuilding company), perjury and a few technical offenses in connection with his bankruptcy.

The charges against Gardiner were of little public interest and were of a technical nature. He was able to give such a spirited reply to them that the jury stopped the case quite early in the proceedings and ordered his acquittal, with a verdict of "not guilty." The Judge particularly stated that he entirely agreed with the jury's action and Gardiner left the prisoner's dock amid the congratulations of his friends. But the general public crowded round to gaze at the man who, according to the testimony heard before the trial was stopped, had crowded more thrills into his 59 years of real life than the heroes of a dozen "best sellers" in fiction.

It caught the public imagination when the first witness for the defense, Admiral Sir Edward Inglefield, disclosed that Gardiner had commanded one of Britain's mysterious "Q" ships, which acted as decoys (and terrible engines of destruction) for submarines during the World War. The Admiral was able to say that Gardiner had served with distinction throughout the war, and had undertaken many hazardous exploits, including the salvaging of a torpedoed liner, the Oceanic, and had submitted many valuable plans and inventions to the Government.

He had invented a new system of locking mines used against submarines and a "noncuttable submarine and torpedo net, which the Allies used to great advantage. He also had submitted plans for blocking Zeebrugge and Ostend Harbors.

But Gardiner had not waited for the World War to find adventure in this nineteenth and twentieth century life. He had fought for England in the South African War, commanding the Australian Bushmen's regiment. His activities on behalf of the British Empire were somewhat limited between 1902 and 1904 because England didn't happen to have any wars worth while, but Gardiner found wars elsewhere and was able to continue his adventurous career.

"PLAY" BUILDINGS O LOTS TEST ZONI

Downtown Owners Conclude Th Conforming in Height With Law Would Not Pay

Owners of St. Louis office buildings have been "playing house," like children in the nursery, in their effort to find out how the proposed zoning ordinance will affect them.

They have been putting up imaginary buildings, on real downtown lots which do not contain high buildings at present. The rule of the game has been that the play houses must be not more than 12 stories high, unless by a setback from the street line, the upper portion can be carried higher without exceeding the total floor space of a 12-story building on the same area.

That is the limit fixed in the proposed ordinance, which says that downtown buildings shall be not higher than 12 stories, or 150 feet, with the addition of the setback allowance.

The real purpose of the imaginary house-rearing, of course, is to show whether buildings of that height would pay, under present costs of construction and at present operating costs and taxes. The conclusion has been that they would not pay, unless in the case of one building occupying an entire city block.

Few Buildings Cover Block.

Few office buildings are that large. The 21-story Railway Exchange Building is. So is the combination of the Pierce Building and the Merchants' Exchange Building, if considered as one building. The two are connected in a manner which makes them practically one. Another is the combination of the Syndicate Trust and Century buildings.

However, solid office construction, if extended over an entire block, would leave big central areas of floor space at a distance from natural light and air. This would mean space not rentable for office purposes, the building men say.

"Make the buildings pyramidal," is the natural reply, and the one suggested by the ordinance. But the building men say a pyramidal structure cannot be planned except for a solid block, or at least a half block, and that the owners of a smaller lot, such as that on which the Carleton Building or the Security building stands, could not pyramid their buildings to advantage.

They have figured that, at present rentals, taxes and costs of construction and operation, a 12-story building on any desirable downtown location would have to charge higher rents than the present standard, or lose money. The high rents would apply both to office tenants and to stores on the lower floor.

Added Stories Necessary.

Only by added stories reaching toward the sky could the buildings be made to pay, the building owners say. And they further declare that the same rule laid down for office buildings applies to hotels.

Claude B. Ricketts, manager of the Railway Exchange Building, speaking at Thursday night's public zoning hearing at the city hall, said that the building men could hardly be accused of selfishness, in any narrow way.

"The present building owners might take the view that the ordinance would be a good thing for them, as it would shut off compe-

SENATOR WILLIAMS BUYS DAVID R. CALHOUN HOME

The late David R. Calhoun's home at Clayton road and Log Cabin lane has been purchased by George H. Williams, recently appointed United States Senator by Gov. Baker to succeed the late Senator Spencer.

The consideration was approximately $100,000. The residence, known as "South Winds," includes 16 rooms and is situated on a 4½-acre tract. Senator Williams, who will return to the city Sept. 1 from a vacation trip in North Carolina, plans alterations.

Senator Williams will sell his present home at Clayton and Warson roads and 50 of the 88 acres which surround it.

"PLAY" BUILDINGS ON REAL LOTS TEST ZONING RULE

Downtown Owners Conclude That Structures Conforming in Height With Proposed Law Would Not Pay.

Owners of St. Louis office buildings have been "playing house," like children in the nursery, in their effort to find out how the proposed zoning ordinance will affect them.

They have been putting up imaginary buildings, on real downtown lots which do not contain high buildings at present. The rule of the game has been that the play houses must be not more than 12 stories high, unless by a setback from the street line, the upper portion can be carried higher without exceeding the total floor space of a 12-story building on the same area.

That is the limit fixed in the proposed ordinance, which says that downtown buildings shall be not higher than 12 stories, or 150 feet, with the addition of the setback allowance.

The real purpose of the imaginary house-rearing, of course, is to show whether buildings of that height would pay, under present costs of construction and at present operating costs and taxes. The conclusion has been that they would not pay, unless in the case of one building occupying an entire city block.

Few Buildings Cover Block.

Few office buildings are that large. The 21-story Railway Exchange Building is. So is the combination of the Pierce Building and the Merchants' Exchange Building, if considered as one building. The two are connected in a manner which makes them practically one. Another is the combination of the Syndicate Trust and Century buildings.

However, solid office construction, if extended over an entire block, would leave big central areas of floor space at a distance from natural light and air. This would mean space not rentable for office purposes, the building men say.

"Make the buildings pyramidal," is the natural reply, and the one suggested by the ordinance. But the building men say a pyramidal structure cannot be planned except for a solid block, or at least a half block, and that the owners of a small lot, such as that on which the Carleton Building or the Security building stands, could not pyramid their buildings to advantage.

They have figured that, at present rentals, taxes and costs of construction and operation, a 12-story building on any desirable downtown location would have to charge higher rents than the present standard, or lose money. The high rents would apply both to office tenants and to stores on the lower floor.

Added Stories Necessary.

Only by added stories reaching toward the sky could the buildings be made to pay, the building owners say. And they further declare that the same rule laid down for office buildings applies to hotels.

Claude B. Ricketts, manager of the Railway Exchange Building, speaking at Thursday night's public zoning hearing at the city hall, said that the building men could hardly be accused of selfishness, in any narrow way.

"The present building owners might take the view that the ordinance would be a good thing for them, as it would shut off competition from new buildings," he said. "But we prefer to take a broader view. The owner of land across the street from a high building has to pay higher taxes because of the proximity of the big building. And he has a right to get his proper return by putting up a high building of his own, if he wishes to."

From the office building experience of St. Louis and of other cities the zoning committee of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, of which Ricketts is chairman, has asked that the downtown height limit be made not less than 265 feet, or 15 feet higher than the Railway Exchange, and that still higher construction be permitted by the setback, or pyramid, plan.

The answer of the Zoning Commission has been that more very high buildings, in the downtown area, will increase congestion in that area intolerably. The commission has not indicated any willingness to modify the 150-foot limit for the downtown district. It is being besieged also to make the limit 150 feet or more, or to remove all limit, for building heights on streets leading into the West End, chiefly Delmar boulevard. The height limit for Delmar, as fixed in the tentative ordinance, is 85 feet, with no increase allowed for set-back construction.

ACTIVE FALL REALTY MARKET INDICATED

Barometric Reading for Last June Shows Increase in Trading.

"Fair weather" for the real estate market for the coming fall season is the indication of market activity issued monthly by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The index for June, just ascertained, stood at 164. This, despite the natural summer decline, is only four points lower than the figure for May, and is 17 points higher than the figure for June of last year.

The index, constituting a barometric reading for real estate conditions, is prepared from reports received from county recorders, real estate boards and members of the American Title Association in 41 of the largest cities of the country. The index presents a comparison of the activity of the real estate market with the average activity over a period of eight years, 1916-1923 inclusive.

Taking the average number of instruments recorded in June of these eight years as 100, the number recorded in June, 1925, is represented by the index figure of 164. In other words, there were recorded, during the month of June, 64 per cent more instruments in these 41 cities than were recorded on the average in June 1916-1923.

Although the reports show areas of slow business activity, favorable conditions are shown to prevail in a majority of cities of the country. Comparison of the trends for the first six months show that on the whole the line of activity is higher in the present year than it was last year. Activity has been more evenly distributed throughout the period. The phenomenal peak of activity in February of last year, however, when the index reached 183, brings the total number of transfers for the first six months of that year almost equal to the total number for the corresponding period of the current year.

Total number of instruments recorded in the 41 cities during the first six months of 1925 was 869,716. During the same period of 1924 there were 869,193 instruments recorded. The increase in this year has been 523 instruments. The index of the real estate market follows very closely the index of building construction. This index, as prepared by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, stood six points higher in June than in May, but on the whole the two indexes behave very similarly. Real estate activity, is, of course, usually followed or acompanied by building activity.

GRAND VIEW ARCADE NEARING COMPLETION

Fourteen Shops Provided on Second Floor of Structure at Grand and Miami.

The three-story Grand View Arcade store and office building being erected for the Lurso Investment So. at the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Miami street will soon be completed, according to George Sokol, architect.

An investment of $550,000 is said to be represented in the building and ground, which is 151 feet 8 inches by 100 feet. It is directly in front of the Melba Theater, which is reached through the Arcade. The theater has taken a long term lease on this entrance privilege.

The building is of reinforced concrete and is fireproof throughout. The design is in the Gothic order. Facades on the Grand and Miami sides are to be faced with polished red granite, terra cotta and variegated colors of matt brick.

Besides the three stories, there is a high ceiling basement designed for 10 bowling alleys and billiard and pool tables. A marble stairway leads to the basement. The boiler room and janitors' quarters are located just east of the main building on a plot purchased from the Melba Theater.

Fourteen shops, constructed so they may be converted into offices, if desired, will be on the second floor, which is reached from the Arcade by a marble staircase. The third floor will have 30 offices suitable for doctors, dentists, real estate agents and others. The interior of the building will be elaborately treated in marble, terra cotta and ornamental plastering.

Isaac T. Cook & Co. will manage the building. Applications for space are being received.

UNIVERSITY PARK NO. 2 WILL BE DEVELOPED

Willmore Buys Remaining Section of Survey 378 for Residence District.

Announcement of the purchase of the remaining section of historic Survey 378, known as University Park No. 2, has been made by the Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Inc., with offices in the Boatmen's Bank Building, which plans to develop the section into a district of two and four-family dwellings.

Survey 378 dates back to 1796 when Marie Louise Papin asked and received from the Spanish Governor of St. Louis a farm, which extended, roughly, from Art Hill in Forest Park to Maple avenue, and from Union boulevard to Hanley road. It now embraces such districts as Kingsbury place, Washington terrace, the Cabany district, a large portion of Forest Park, Parkview, Ames tract, University Heights, University Hills and lastly, the remaining section, University Park No. 2.

Cyrus Crane Willmore, president, said Tulane and Dartmouth avenues are to be extended through University Park No. 2, and hard surface streets, curbing, sidewalk, parkways, trees, light, water, gas, sewer, electric transmission and street lighting system, are to be installed as economically as possible with the best material and construction.

The district is supplied with street car and motorbus transportation, schools, churches, fire and police protection. Willmore explains it is his purpose to make of this section "a beautiful two and four-family dwelling district where the ideals of the home owner and the precedent of refined home development in University City may be carried out in the style of architecture and general development, and where along with these attributes there may also be investment opportunity."

BEGINS HIS FIFTH BIG APARTMENT IN THE WEST END

E. M. Worthington Constructing 9-Story Building on Lindell, Facing Whittier, to Cost $400,000.

$850,000 MARWORTH ALREADY FINISHED

Attractive Structure at Maryland and Taylor Avenues, Also 9 Stories, Has 64 Apartments.

With his $850,000 Marworth apartments, an attractive nine-story structure on the northwest corner of Maryland and Taylor avenues, virtually completed, E. M. Worthington, apartment house builder, has started construction of the $400,000 nine-story Ellsworth apartments, on the south side of Lindell boulevard, facing Whittier street.

The Ellsworth will be the fifth large apartment or apartment hotel built here by Worthington, who conducts his business as the Worth Investment Co., of which he is president.

Worthington built the Gatesworth Apartment Hotel, 245 Union boulevard, in 1922, associating with A. D. Gates, the investment amounting to $1,700,000. A year later Worthington sold his half interest in this to Gates, at a profit.

The Worthington apartments, southwest corner of Waterman and Belt avenues, was this builder's next venture, with an investment of $800,000. Last year he erected the Lindworth apartments, 4360-74 Lindell boulevard, with an investment of $450,000. Last February he started the Marworth, which is to be opened for rentals this month.

Investment of $2,500,000.

A total investment of $2,500,000 is represented by the four structures in which Worthington is now interested. It is noteworthy that in these and the apartment hotel he has coined names making use of a syllable or more of his own cognomen, and three of the apartments also have names indicative of their street locations. The four apartments bring in a gross annual income of about $375,000. M. H. Rodemeyer & Co., 109 North Eighth street, are the agents.

The Marworth Apartments face the grounds of the Convent of the Sacred Heart and are near the Catholic Cathedral of St. Louis. They consist of two nine-story buildings, connected by a ground-floor corridor. There are four apartments on each floor of each building, except the lower floors, 64 in all. Each apartment, therefore, has a double exposure and a corner position. Living rooms are exceptionally large, with a door-bed in each, but each apartment has an 11x16-foot bedroom.

Heat by Oil Equipment.

Gas stoves and iceboxes cooled by a basement refrigerating plant are in each kitchen and there is a central device for burning garbage and other waste. Heat will be supplied by oil equipment. Sairways and corridors are of marble and tile, giving a bright appearance. Steel and reinforced concrete are the frame of the buildings, with brick and stone exterior walls and soundproof inner walls and floors. Floors are of oak.

There is a laundry on the roof for use of tenants, an innovation. There is a 70-car garage for tenants in the rear, reached through a basement passage, without exposure, and each tenant will receive right to a one-car space. Light and gas will be furnished. Rentals will be $125 to $150 a month on two-year leases.

The Ellsworth Apartments will be similar to one unit of the Marworth, with a nine-story building of 32 apartments. The basement will house 40 tenants' cars.

SURVEY SHOWS BUILDING HAS OVERCOME HOUSING SHORTAGE

Danger of Over-Production and Depression Indicated If Construction Keeps Up.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The building boom which has been striving for three years to overcome the housing shortage which the war left throughout the country has not only succeeded in doing this, the Department of Labor believes, but has now verged to the point of over-production and depression.

Results of a survey just concluded by Ethelbert Stewart, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, were announced as showing that building construction in 1924 not only made up the slight lag at the end of 1923, but went ahead of demand. If construction is continued at the high rate of the last three years and not reduced to normal requirements, Stewart believes, the result must be "overproduction with a sequel of depression."

The conclusions were based on building permit reports from 130 cities of 100,000 or more population and with the year 1914 forming the index of normal requirements. Population increases were taken into account in figuring the changing relation of housing supply and demand throughout the succeeding 10 years.

Reduced to close estimate, building was figured to be about four-tenths of a year ahead of demand at the close of 1924, whereas at the end of 1923 it was about a quarter of a year behind the actual needs.

KANSAS CITY FIRM BUYS LOT HERE, WILL MOVE TO ST. LOUIS

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports the sale of the lot at the southwest corner of Olive street and Walton avenue to the L. B. Price Mercantile Co. for Anheuser-Busch, Inc., represented in the transaction by O. J. McCawley Realty Co.

The lot has a frontage of 100 feet on Olive street by 154 feet 10 inches on Walton avenue and is one of the few remaining vacant corners in the central West End district.

The L. B. Price Mercantile Co. is a Missouri corporation, with a paid-up capital stock of $1,600,000 and with surplus and undivided profits of more than that amount. Its headquarters have been in Kansas City for the last 30 years. The company's business is the sale of household staples and specialties on the installment plan. It does business in 25 states and is moving its headquarters from Kansas City to St. Louis, in order to be nearer the geographical center of the territory served by the company. Heretofore its business has been divided into three fields with subheadquarters at Kansas City, Fort Worth and New Orleans.

$65,000 THEATER TO BE BUILT AT CORNER IN SOUTHAMPTON

The Southampton Investment & Building Co. announces the closing of a deal for one of its clients with the Alexander interests for the erection of a $65,000 theater at the corner of Lansdowne and Wherry avenues, Southampton. It will be the first theater in this section. The building will be of fireproof concrete and steel construction, with seats for 1000, and is expected to be opened about Sept. 15.

The same company reports the following sales: Northeast corner of Lansdowne and Wherry from one of its clients to Ike and Sarah Svarin. A modern steam-heated business building, two stores and two flats. Sold for the account of Dr. R. I. Rigler, 5444 Itaska street, brick bungalow, to Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Zerweck. For the account of Dr. R. I. Rigler, brick bungalow at 5450 Itaska street, to Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Gaertner. 4925 Loughborough, brick bungalow, for the account of Harry N. and Olive E. Myers to J. J. Breen. Several vacant lots and loans aggregating $32,500.

SCHOLLMEYER CO. OPENS BRICK BUNGALOW FOR INSPECTION

A brick bungalow, said to be the first home built in the vicinity of St. Louis out of the new Haydenite brick, has been opened for inspection in West Point, the subdivision at 7800 Manchester road of the A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co.

It is considered a model in small bungalow construction, and presents an attractive appearance in its white finish and black mortar. It is the first of a group of these homes which are to be built in Circle Drive.

The peculiar H-shape of the Haydenite brick enables the builder to lay the equivalent of three ordinary-shaped bricks at one time, and inside and outside walls are constructed simultaneously. The spaces left in the wall at regular intervals provide live air space to keep the walls dry and fresh.

MANUFACTURING CONCERN TO BUILD FACTORY HERE

A deed has been filed transferring a tract 172x229 at the northwest corner of Kingshighway and Brown avenue from the Hesse Envelope and Lithographing Co. to the Barton Manufacturing Co. of Waco, Tex.

The purchasers are manufacturers of a well-known leather dressing, and employ about 300 persons. They intend to erect a large factory and office building here at once and to make St. Louis their headquarters. Their goods are handled by jobbers throughout the United States and foreign countries and they maintain warehouses in St. Louis, Memphis, New York, Denver and San Francisco.

The purchasers were represented by J. T. Dodds of the Mound City Trust Co., and the sellers by John Schopflin of the Mercantile Trust Co.

NATIONAL REAL ESTATE BODY TO MEET IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans will be the midwinter meeting place of the National Association of Real Estate boards, early in January.

At this annual business session policies will be formulated for the national body and its 545 member boards, particularly in regard to projected state and national legislation affecting real estate, and in regard to the development and enforcement of professional standards in the realty business.

Incoming officers elected at the annual convention at Detroit last June will be installed; their number including J. Hamilton Farish of St. Louis, sectional vice president for the North Central District.

STRODTMAN COMPANY BUYS 33 ACRES ON GOODFELLOW

A North St. Louis syndicate yesterday purchased through the Strodtman & Strodtman Real Estate Co. a tract of 33 acres located on Goodfellow avenue and Bircher road which will be platted and subdivided within a short time. The sale was made for S. B. Hunter of Cape Girardeau, Mo., for a consideration of approximately $50,000.

This tract of land has a frontage of 1000 feet on Goodfellow avenue, extending west between Stratford avenue and Bircher road, lying two-thirds in the city and one-third in St. Louis County.

The property lies in the Northwest industrial district and will be materially benefited by the improvements being made on Goodfellow avenue. This will become a thoroughfare from Natural Bridge road through the Northwest district when the road has been straightened at several points and cut under the railroad right-of-way.

DEALINGS IN REALTY MADE BY MERCANTILE TRUST CO.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports the sale of a lot 50 by 110 feet on the north side of Natural Bridge road, opposite the loop at Pine Lawn, for a client to J. C. Ballantyne, who will improve with modern buildings. Ballantyne was represented by Ed Thornhill.

Billy's Bobbery has leased Room 209 on the second floor of the City Club building. This adjoins the present space which he has occupied for the past year and doubles his capacity. The lease was made through the Mercantile Trust Co., agents for the building.

John R. Florita Co. has taken a short term lease on the two-story building at Theresa and Clark avenues. They will retain their present main offices at 720 North First street. A. J. Haverstick represented the lessor and the Mercantile Trust Co. the lessee.

MARTIN & BREITT CLOSE LEASE WITH CONNELLY CO.

Martin & Breitt have closed a long term lease with the Connelly Manufacturing Co. on the three-story building located at the southeast corner of Twenty-first and Walnut streets. The building contains about 20,000 square feet. This firm, located for the past five years at the southeast corner of Bomont and Lawton avenues, specializes in the manufacture of paper boxes for the millinery and shoe trade. The lease was made for the Barry Realty Co.

Martin & Breitt have closed a lease with R. Shad Bennett on the storeroom at the southwest corner of Delmar and Kingshighway. Bennett represents Florida land interests and will use the storeroom for general offices. The lease was made for the Newell Motor Car Co.

BUSINESS BUILDING AND FLAT ON SOUTH SIDE SOLD

The Haase Realty Co. reports the sale of the three-story double building on the northwest corner of Jefferson and Allen avenues, known as Seegers Hall, together with the four-family apartment, 2609-11 Allen avenue, for Mrs. Pauline Seeger of Detroit to Harry Kroeger.

Also sold a frame bungalow with five acres of land in Grantwood, a subdivision of the Luther Cohn farm near Sappington, for Harry Butler to John S. Harold.

Also sold the two-story brick building, 2646 Lafayette avenue, containing an automobile repair shop, for Charles Schallert of Milwaukee to a client.

CHICAGO CONCERN LEASES WASHINGTON AV. BUILDING

The George Wolosh Sewing Machine Co. of Chicago, Ill., has leased for a long term of years the entire seven-story and basement building at 1107 and 1109 Washington avenue. This being the building that was formerly occupied by the Dittman Shoe Co.

A new high speed passenger elevator will be installed. A new and modern front on the first floor of the building and entrance way to upper floors on the Washington avenue side. The entire six upper floors will be converted into lofts to be leased to manufacturers and manufacturers' agents. The building will be ready for occupancy Sept. 1. The building has a frontage of 60 feet on the north side of Washington avenue to a depth of 140 feet to Lucas avenue. It is equipped with automatic sprinkler system and is furnished with three electric elevators.

This lease was made for the Jemima Lindell estate, who were represented by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. The George Wolosh Machine Co. was represented by the Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

The William J. Kennedy Stationery & Printing Co. has leased the storeroom and basement at 402 North Ninth street, which they will occupy after alterations and improvements have been completed. They will use this store as a branch stationery and stationery supply house. This lease was made for the Mary Lane Shop. Both parties in this transaction were represented by the Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

ROAD SYSTEM OF MISSOURI SOUND, SAYS CHAIRMAN GARY

After 5000-Mile Tour in Other States, He Finds Practice Here Not Bettered Elsewhere.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., May 8.—After a 5000-mile tour through Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Maryland, New York, Massachusetts and a part of Canada, Theodore Gary, chairman of the State Highway Commission, is confirmed as to the soundness of the Missouri road system, now in process of construction, and of its ability to stand up under heavy traffic.

"Cook County and Chicago are probably the best examples for the study of hard-surfaced roads and heavy traffic conditions," Garey said here today. "Some of the roads there, built according to the best methods at the time of their construction, have been in use 11 years, and they have carried an average of 15,000 trucks and other vehicles daily.

"During the period of the war the daily average ran up to 20,000, and included some of the heaviest loads that could be piled on trucks. Despite this, there was no perceptible wearing of the surface, though there were some breaks, and in places there have been extensive repairs.

"The maintenance costs of these roads, we learned, were well within the estimates, which the Missouri Highway Department uses."

FIRST OFFERING!
Five Modern Duplexes in Davis Place FOR SALE

Modern duplex homes—a type of construction that has been the talk of St. Louis for months—are now ready for preliminary inspection in Davis Place.

Five of the duplexes, designed by leading architects of the city, will be open to the public today. Three of them are located on Davis Drive, which is a continuation of Wydown Boulevard in Davis Place. The other two are near "THE MANSION" in Davis Place. Both Davis Drive and the entrance to "THE MANSION" lead from North and South Road, just south of the Courthouse in Clayton.

The five duplex homes are nearing completion. You are invited to look them over and to see the many interesting features that have been included—the steel sash windows, the invisible lavatories, the incinerator installation, the tapestry wall effects with special plastered cornices, and many other things that will appeal to every home builder.

If you are now building, if you contemplate building, if you are interested in one of the most unique undertakings in the history of St. Louis residential developments, you will drive out to Davis Place today and see these modern duplex homes.

TO REACH DAVIS PLACE

Drive to the Courthouse in the City of Clayton, then south and west to the North and South Road and turn south to the entrance to The "MANSION." Follow the street lights.

My Ten Acre Home

I wish to dispose of my 7-room bungalow, located near Webster Groves. All rooms on one floor, with oversize hot-water heating system, tiled bath with built-in shower, pedestal lavatory, etc.; hardwood floors throughout; large brick fireplace; only two years old. There are numerous outbuildings, including garage. Ten acres of beautiful ground, with about two acres in tree-shaded lawn and shrubbery. All varieties of fruit, berries, grapes, asparagus bed, etc.; in fact, everything that a well-appointed home should have. It is an unusual purchase at $30,000. For appointment to inspect, address owner, Box A-192, Post-Dispatch.

Duplex designed by Ross Crane under construction in Davis Place.

Why the Modern Duplex Brings New Hope to Home Lovers

THE man who finds that his expensive single residence is too big a burden for him to carry, has his problem solved in the modern Duplex in Davis Place.

The man who now pays $125.00 a month and up for an apartment, but who wants his wife and children to enjoy life in the open spaces, is turning eagerly to the modern Duplex in Davis Place.

The man who has long dreamed of a home for his family in a high-class restricted neighborhood, but who cannot afford to invest more than $12,500 to $15,000, sees that dream come true in a modern Duplex in Davis Place.

A Duplex in Davis Place

—gives you a home, an income and an investment combined. The modern Duplex is built to resemble a single residence. It produces an income from one half while the owner occupies the other half. The apartment dweller, for the same rental that he now pays, can live in a half-Duplex and have all the comforts and joys of a residence. You can now buy or build a modern Duplex for $25,000 and up, live in one half and pay for the Duplex over a period of years out of the income. Thus Davis Place answers the most pressing problems of modern day living. Lots, with all improvements, now selling at $70 a foot. You can buy them with reasonable cash payments and monthly installments. Make profits of $40 to $80 a foot in 18 to 24 months.

JOY Homes

An English half-timbered house in a setting of fine trees, smooth lawn planted with shrubs and flowers.

The garage is under one wing of the house and is heated. There is a toilet and lavatory just off the main vestibule and garage.

The features of the living room are the Todhunter mantle, the nitch bookcases and hand-wrought stair railing.

The dining room is well proportioned, with built-in china cases.

The kitchen has everything—a ventilating fan for the stove, tile work, breakfast room and separate room for the icebox.

Hot-water heat, with Bryant gas-fired boiler.

The master's bedroom is large, with its own bath and two roomy closets.

The two baths have mural decorations by Who's Who.

The attic is lined with celotex and packed with mineral wool and has a large cedar closet.

This home is furnished by Schmolt & Co.

This home will be open every day from 9 to 9, and is located on Parkhurst terrace, which lies south of Swon, between Gray and Jefferson av.

OWNER IN NEW YORK

18 Rosemont av. is for sale for this reason only. Not a new home, but one of those grand old places with bedrooms twice the size of the many small bedrooms built today. Beautifully finished throughout with white enameled woodwork, perfect oak flooring, tile bath, hot-water heat. Not so much yard to take care of and still you have a 110-ft. front on Rosemont av., a street just two blocks from the business center of Webster, but surrounded by beautiful homes that can overlook half of St. Louis County. Double garage. The party that takes an interest in this home makes a good buy.
TREMBLEY-WILSON, Webster Groves.

WHY ARE THEY SELLING

These owners are leaving the city and must sell; for $12,500 we can give you a most attractive appearing home located at 525 E. Lockwood; the house has a southern exposure and large trees shade the house from the western sun; 4 bedrooms and tile bath on the second floor; hardwood floors throughout; lot 55x200; you know how hard it is to secure a home at this price in Webster today; but we are sure this proposition will be attractive to you; we can make a good deal for both the buyer and the seller here by making a quick turn of this property.

This comfortable and attractive house is thoroughly modern, conveniently located, well constructed and in excellent condition; has large living room, with log-burning fireplace, built-in book shelves, large dining room, kitchen and pantry on first floor. Second floor has 3 large bedrooms; one has wood-burning fireplace and very large sleeping porch; 2 finished rooms on third floor; ivory enameled woodwork throughout; newly decorated. There is a garage and driveway and an abundance of trees and shrubs. Close to transportation and within one block of Bristol School; occupied by owner. Phone Webster 359.

211 PAPIN ST.

Here is a new 5-room modern stucco bungalow; it's just a beauty, on lot 50x162. Go see it—you will be surprised. THEO. R. APPEL, Realtor, 722 Chestnut, or 46 W. Lockwood, Webster.

BUILT FOR A HOME

This property at 222 S. Maple av. was carefully planned and built by Mr. and Mrs. Ruckstuhl for their own home. They have occupied the property only since February and will sell for cost. The many windows throughout the house make it most attractive. Lovely closet rooms throughout. Three bedrooms, tile bath and sewing room on the second floor. The living room and dining room are large and the kitchen is most attractive. Hot-water heat, hardwood floors throughout. Third floor for storage. Concrete coal bin and set tubs in basement. Double garage with solid concrete drive. The inside of this home must be seen to realize the good buy that can be made there and you have then saved all the time, figuring and annoyance most certain to arise when you build your own home. This is a very desirable section of Webster.

POULTRY MAN TELLS OF 'APPENDICITIS' IN

St. Clair County Investigator Discovery Will Save Thousands of Dollars.

The discovery that chickens d of appendicitis has just been ma by William Burgdine, a poultry raiser of Marissa, south of Belleville. Burgadine declares that the discovery means the saving of thousands of dollars worth of chickens to poultrymen in St. C County.

Burgadine states he made the discovery while making an investigation into the nature of the disease termed "tuberculosis" by poultry journals. He states that he experimented on chickens by cutting open the fowl and examining every organ of the body. He found that chickens, like humans, have appendicitis. He states that he discovered that the appendices of the fowls were filled with a hard substance and were inflamed.

Burgadine states he began to make surgical operations on the chickens afflicted with the disease by cutting a half-inch gash about six inches in front of the tail on each side and taking out the appendix. He stitched the gash and in a few days says the chicken apparently took on new life and in a few weeks fully recovered and began to thrive. Burgadine states he never loses a fowl now from either the operation or the illness.

MESSAGE WRITTEN ON AN EGG 30 YEARS AGO JOINS 2 W

They Had Corresponded in All the Elapsed Years, But Met Only Last Week.

A message written 30 years ago on the surface of an egg had a sequel last week at Vandalia, Ill., when a friendship engendered by the chance incident brought about a personal meeting of the parties concerned.

Thirty years ago Mrs. Greenwood of Van Burensburg, enbush, a 15-year-old girl, wrote her name and address on a hen egg which went to market with the other product of her mother's flock. The inscribed egg was purchased in a New York City market by the father of Mrs. William Goetz, then a girl of the same age as Miss Brackenbush.

She became interested and wrote to the Illinois address. A correspondence began which continued for nearly a third of a century. In the interim both girls married. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Goetz decided to tour West with their children, their objective being the home of Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood. They arrived last Sunday and will make an extended visit.

PIPE RELAY RACE NOVELTY AT ST. CLAIR COUNTY PI

Hog Calling Contest for Men and Chicken Calling for Women Features.

A pipe relay race, a hog calling and chicken calling contest will be features of this year's picnic of the St. Clair County Farm Bureau, to be held at the Belleville Fair grounds Friday, Aug. 23, it was announced yesterday by Farm Adviser B. W. Tillman.

The pipe relay race will be a novelty, it is said. The contestants line up at the starting point and at a given signal all race to another point, where they snatch up pipes. They then rush to the next point, fill the pipes with tobacco and run to a third station for matches to light the pipes. The first one to reach the finish with his pipe well lighted wins the race.

The hog calling contest will be for men and the chicken calling event for the women. Besides this there will be a nail driving contest and other athletic events.

WIFE SAYS SPOUSE DUCKED HER IN SEA AND ASKS DIV

Petition Filed in Belleville Also Sets Up Other Marital Offenses.

Charging that her husband struck her and pushed her under the surface of the water while they were bathing on a beach at Rectory, Va., July 19, last, Mrs. Mary Griffis of Shiloh filed suit yesterday in the Belleville Circuit Court to divorce William A. Griffis.

They were married June 4 last year and she left him July 27 after their return from the Virginia beach. She alleges that he struck her on a number of occasions during their married life. She asks alimony and the restoration of her maiden name, Mary Dacy.

LIMITED TRAIN HITS AU

Driver Not Much Hurt But Car Is Demolished.

An automobile owned and driven by Paul Stahlhut of Edwardsville was struck yesterday on the Brommeier road crossing, two miles north of Edwardsville, by the Peoria Limited on the Illinois Traction System.

Stahlhut stated that his engine died as he was crossing the track and the electric car was upon him before he could start up. The car was demolished, but Stahlhut escaped with injuries to his left arm.

Woman's 15 Cats Perish in Fire.

By the Associated Press.

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 8.—Five of the largest stores of Salisbury, 22 miles west of Moberly, were destroyed by fire at 6 o'clock this morning, together with all their contents and offices and living apartments above them. Mrs. Shannon D. Smith, living above one of the stores, was trapped by the flames and burned about the arms. She climbed out upon a window ledge from which she was rescued. Fifteen Persian cats owned by Mrs. Smith were burned.

Belleville Miner Hurt at Work.

Edward J. Thein of North Twentieth street, Belleville, is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital suffering from serious cuts and bruises received from being struck by one of the coal conveyors on a coal crusher in use at the Shiloh mine of the Southern Coal & Coke Co. He was knocked unconscious by a fellow worker and was rushed to the hospital. The cuts on his head and face required 25 stitches.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

POOR GIRL.—Consult a beauty parlor for the information as to how to fix a henna pack.

VISITOR.—The weather report is obtained from the United States Weather Bureau.

R. J. H.—You had better inquire of some automobile repair shop for the information.

ANXIOUS READER. — Consult books on card games at the Public Library.

MISS EMMA. — Half dollars coined in 1855 and 1857 are worth 50c to 55c.

ANXIOUS.—Apply to the Board of Education for information concerning a position in a high school lunchroom.

X. Y. Z. — The Railway Exchange building, St. Louis, is 250 feet from the sidewalk to the level of the roof.

DAILY READER.—The Lonely Club meets at Westminster Hall, 3806 Olive street, every Friday evening. Write to the club for the information desired.

AUG. T.—Write to the General Land Office, Interior Department, Washington, D. C., for information regarding the position of Government surveyor.

RIDER. — Apply to the Police Headquarters in East St. Louis, Ill., regarding qualifications required to join the motorcycle squad.

DODA.—The Christian Brothers College, Kingshighway and Easton avenue, was destroyed by fire on Oct. 5, 1916. Oct. 5 that year fell on Thursday.

TIN.—A gift is a matter of personal selection and we cannot undertake to make suggestions. The saleswomen in the art or gift shops will no doubt be able to help you make such a selection.

ENQUIRER.—A good sauce for barbecued meat is as follows: Vinegar, 1 quart; tomatoes, 1 No. 2 can; salt, to taste; pepper, to taste, and use onions, sufficient to flavor. Boil and apply to meat with a cooking mop while hot.

R. L.—According to the report given in July, 1924, the Census Bureau estimated the population of New York City at 6,015,505, while the population of Greater London, according to the census of 1921, was 7,476,168.

TOM.—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch Travel and Resort Bureau will furnish you with a list of interesting places to visit, together with information as to their location and methods of reaching such points.

BOB.—The wartime prohibition enforcement bill was passed by Congress over President Wilson's veto Oct. 28, 1919, and it became effective immediately. It has not been possible to buy grain alcohol legally at any time without paying the Government tax.

JACK.—Kill fleas by spreading 4 ounces of calcium cyanide flakes to 100 square feet of closed space, or 8 ounces to 100 feet of open space. Keep livestock, poultry, pet stock or folks out of the treated space for 24 hours after applying. Clean out and keep down dust and rubbish if you want to exterminate the fleas.

L. C. K. — The difference between alternating current (A. C.) and direct current (D. C.) is that the direct current has a constant polarity on each line, one being positive and the other negative all of the time. In alternating current the polarity changes 7200 times per minute at 60 cycles and 16,000 times at 120 cycles. The object in the two kinds of current is economy in line transmission.

W. H. W.—Following is a recipe for making sour pickled cucumbers on a large scale: Wash and wipe 600 small cucumbers and 2 quarts of peppers; put them in a tub with 1½ cups of salt and a piece of alum as large as an egg. Heat to the boiling point 3 gallons of cider vinegar and 3 pints of water; add ¼ pound each of whole cloves, whole allspice and stick cinnamon, 2 ounces of white mustard seed and pour over the pickles.

A BRIDE.—If the garment is greasy from perspiration or other causes, soak it for an hour in tepid water in which a little borax has been dissolved, then wash it in lukewarm soapsuds, rinsing and bluing as usual. A mixture of alcohol and ether in equal parts, with a dash of household ammonia, may do away with the worst features of a perspiration stain. Always lay several thicknesses of white blotting paper under the soiled place to prevent the formation of the ring which is likely to appear in applying any detersives.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

WORRIED.—It is not dangerous to wash your hair at such a time, but it is not advisable.

WORRIED.—Repeat your question, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. — Inquire of the clinic, Room 35, Municipal Courts building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

A READER.—Worry is the most potent cause of such a nervous condition. Do not try to self-treat yourself, but consult a neurologist or a neurological clinic.

MAYBE.—The condition may be normal in some individuals if contrary to preceding periods or if excessive an examination should be made for the cause.

B. D.—To remove warts from the fingers try first touching them with oil of cinnamon daily. A second method is 15 grains of salicylic acid in an ounce of glycerine applied on cotton and bandaged on the warts, while the third and the sure way is by the use of the electric needle.

THANK YOU.—Any water not definitely known to be safe should always be boiled before drinking. There is no reason to boil water from the water mains of the city, as a daily check is kept of its condition by both the Health and Water Departments.

MRS. A. H.—Under the circumstances we think you would be eligible to the City Hospital. You can pay what you are able to pay. Go personally to the City Hospital and ask for Miss Nalm, Superintendent of Social Service, to make your arrangements.

MARGARET.—For tuberculosis of the lungs the heliotherapy (or sun bath) treatment has not demonstrated its advantages. It is very efficient in bone and gland tuberculosis. The procedure is to expose the surface for a short time at first, gradually lengthening the time of exposure.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Fannie Ramke Glen, who departed this life Aug. 4, 1923:
God saw what was before her,
What trials were to come;
And, looking down, He thought best
To take our loved one home to rest.
Sadly missed by PARENTS.

In memory of our dear mother, Sarah Cockrell, departed her life three years ago, Aug. 10, 1922:
The flowers we lay upon your grave
Will wither and decay,
But our love for you, who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.

SALESMEN WANTED

Strong Salesman

We expect to pay $5000 to $6500—and will pay higher for value—to the man who can pass our rigid qualifications as follows:

1. Willingness to master proven sales plan which will be demonstrated and taught in the field.

2. Proven sales record preferably in marketing commodity requiring appeal to the imagination.

3. Experience in going past the "outer guard" into the offices of presidents and chief executives will be an asset.

4. Sound health and willingness to pass physical examination.

5. College training or broad education through observation, reading and self-training.

6. Cleanness and stability in private life.

7. Realization that success in selling comes from consistent, level-headed daily work and not from a few brilliant spurts each month.

8. Firm confidence that you possess native sales ability and a strong conviction that you can succeed better in sales activity than in any other branch of business.

9. Ambition. We prefer men whom we can promote.

We are known nationally and our commercial rating is the best obtainable.

We are sincerely seeking a really able man, with genuine sales ability, who possibly does not ordinarily read or answer advertisements, and who, in establishing a connection, will be a permanent asset to himself and to us.

Address BYRNE MARCELLUS, 4046 S. Michigan av., Chicago, giving your address and telephone number and detailing your qualifications fully.

BIGGER BETTER BUSINESS

Our July sales of new Studebaker Cars exceeds our June sales. This has given us the finest selection of Good Used Cars we have had all the season. Some of these are 1925 models and have the appearance of New Cars. Most of them are standard makes. The popularity of Studebaker Cars, the desire to own a Studebaker, accounts for people turning in late models, in such splendid condition. See them before buying. Over one hundred from which to make your selection.

It Is Our Duty

To inform you that we have cut the prices on the cars, we list below. No doubt, you know that our new 1926 Buick, all models, took a terrible drop in price, so that makes the balance of our Used Car stock take a big drop also. This sale offers you the opportunity to purchase these cars, thoroughly rebuilt, at our 30-day guarantee. We refinished in the newest creations at prices that are ridiculously low. Seldom, if ever is such an opportunity given you to profit by this sale. Don't wait. Come over today. Bring a deposit. We will do the rest.

Prices slashed. Values ignored and the cost is forgotten.

ASSORTMENT—Fords, Dodges, Chrysler, Buicks, Chevrolets, Hupmobiles and 25 other makes.

CONDITION—Nearly all cars repaired and repainted, many in lacquer.

HISTORY—A year ago we held our first weekly payment sale and disposed of a large stock of used cars. Values are better now than a year ago.

VALUE—The unused transportation in a used car is greater per mile (price considered) than in most new cars. You need only to buy carefully to get the greatest money value. Every car honestly described and priced in plain figures. Thousands of touring cars are now being exchanged for new closed cars. Many of these touring cars are as good as ever. We can equip these touring cars with glass enclosures for a reasonable price, thereby making a satisfactory closed car.

2 KIDNAPED FAMILIES "HELD BY GANG 12 DAYS"

Portuguese Visitors to Florida Forced to Send to Massachusetts for Money, They Say.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 8.—The police today discovered two Portuguese families, said to be residents of Taunton, Mass., held prisoners by a gang of confidence men. They were said to have been held for 12 days, in which time relatives in Massachusetts were alleged to have been robbed of more than $2000.

The police gave out the victims' names as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Germano Secrra; Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Santos, and Mary, Tony and Edward Santos, the latter a seven-week's old baby. The families were found in a small house in the Latin section of the city.

They claimed $1300 in cash was taken from them when they were taken to the house by gangsters. Later they were forced to write to relatives in Taunton for more money, they said. A money order for $700 was forwarded and seized by the confidence men, they charged.

A few days later, according to police, members of the party were again forced to write to relatives for funds. They became suspicious and sent a woman interpreter here. She arrived this morning and a raid was made on the dwelling.

No trace of any members of the gang was found. The prisoners said they disappeared yesterday. During their incarceration the visitors had little to eat and drink, they alleged.

DEATHS FROM STARVATION IN CLONMEL, IRELAND

Mayor Reports "Terrible State of Affairs" and Will Seek a Government Loan.

DUBLIN, Aug. 8.—Two children have died of starvation and "a terrible state of affairs" exists at Clonmel, the largest town in Tipperary, according to statements made at today's meeting of the Clonmel corporation.

Councillor Ryan, telling the corporation of the two children's death, said that the direst distress would ensue if relief was not forthcoming. The Mayor, who, in his report to the corporation, said "it is terrible to listen to the tales of woe," also said:

"Children have died of starvation and others are dying of illness caused by the prevalent lack of food."

The Mayor said that the corporation hoped to get a £20,000 loan from the Free State Government. A deputation has been appointed to wait on the Free State Minister of local government, who is himself a Tipperary man, when he visits Clonmel shortly. Clonmel is a town of about 100,00 inhabitants. Its name means "honey meadow."

EXAMINATION ABROAD OF EMIGRANTS TO U. S. BEGINS

London Papers Enthusiastic Over Prospects of "No More Ellis Island."

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright 1925.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The first week of operation of the new scheme of American examination of British emigrants for the United States on this side was a success. All the London papers headline the story, "No More Ellis Island," and express the hope that the success of the experiment will insure its continuance permanently. The immigration inspectors have been stationed for a week at posts in Dublin, Queenstown, London, Southampton, Glasgow, Liverpool and Belfast.

Under the new provisions all second and third class passengers are examined at the ports of embarkation by American immigration officials and medical advisers, specially dispatched here and stationed at the ports for that purpose. These officials are empowered to issue visas here after their examination. The visas, except in extraordinary cases, give the holder the right to enter the United States without halting at Ellis Island.

Steamship companies are delighted at the plan, which they term the inevitable common-sense solution of an awkward problem. Many times they have had to pay a fine of $5000 for transporting unacceptable immigrants, and also have had to refund the immigrants' passage money and return them free to their home lands. The plan now is undergoing a test period of three months.

MAN FATALLY SHOT IN AUTO

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 8.—Frank Delaney, cafe owner, died early today from a wound in the abdomen, inflicted as he was sitting in a parked automobile with Mrs. Emaline Buckland.

In a deathbed statement, at a hospital, Delaney, who is married and the father of three children, named Mrs. Buckland as his slayer. "She did it because she was jealous," Delaney declared, police reported. In two previous statements to police Delaney declared he had shot himself. Mrs. Buckland is held. She denies shooting Delaney, declaring he shot himself.

ST. LOUIS DIVORCE FRAUD CHARGED IN $150,000 SUIT

Former Wife of Mississippi Manufacturer Files Proceedings for Alimony.

By the Associated Press.

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Aug. 8.—Charging that her husband fraudulently obtained a divorce from her in St. Louis a few years ago, Mrs. Clara A. Woodruff, formerly of this city, filed suit in Chancery Court here today for $150,000 alimony, against L. D. Woodruff, weatlhy railway appliance manufacturer of Chicago and president of the Woodruff Furniture Co. of this city.

Mrs. Woodruff, now a resident of Norwood, O., charges Woodruff, afted obtaining a divorce by fraud, later remarried. She asks that she be granted a divorce and that $15,000 be allowed her to prepare forr the trial, in addition to the amount agreed upon for her attorneys.

All the funds of the Woodruff Furniture Co. in three Hattiesburg banks have been attached and attachment papers are expected to be served on Woodruff in Chicago prohibiting him or any of his companies from disposing of any of the property or moneys prior to the trial of the case, which has been set for Sept. 7.

The Woodruffs were married in Jackson, Miss., in 1903, and, according to a brief filed by Mrs. Woodruff, she was deserted in Cincinnati in 1916. Since that time, she charges, he has contributed nothing to her support.

40 CADDIES GO ON STRIKE

Country Club's Decision to Build Swimming Pool Causes Walkout.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 8. — The 40 caddies of the Country Club here went on a strike today, demanding a 50 per cent increase in wages. Decision of the Country Club members to build a $5000 swimming pool caused the walkout, declared Paul Whitlow, 14-year-old leader of the strikers.

"If those guys can spend that much money for a fancy swimming hole, they can afford to pay more to us fellers, who have to swim in the creek," Paul explained. The strikers picketed the links and the golfers had to "carry their own."

Posse Sorry It Shot Auto Driver.

By the Associated Press.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Horace Burger was severely wounded last night when an automobile in which he and Miss Katherine Greer, both of Chattanooga, was fired on by a posse of Sheriffs. An order to stop was not obeyed quickly. The car plunged into a ditch. When the two passengers disclosed their identity the officers said they were sorry, having mistaken the car for that of a liquor runner.

HOOVER GIVES PRESIDENT GLOWING REPORT ON BUSINESS

Secretary Says Chief Executive Believes Industry Should Settle Owne Problems.

By the Associated Press.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 8.—Secretary Hoover, coming here today ostensibly to invite President Coolidge to a jubilee celebration in San Francisco next month, gave him a glowing report as to business and industrial conditions. Later he returned on the Mayflower to the Boston navy yard.

As to the hard coal wage controversy, Hoover made this statement to newspaper men: "The President's view is that industry should settle its own labor relations, and therefore he is hopeful that the anthracite industry will find its own solution to its problems."

On business condition, Hoover said that never had the United States been in such a strong economic condition, with standards of living so high as at present. There is no consequential unemployment, although the situation in some sections and industries, noticeably in textile and anthracite, could improve.

CASE AGAINST MANAGER FOR TRADE SCHOOLS DISMISSED

No Basis for Charge of Operating Employment Bureau Without License.

Eugene Fitzpatrick, district manager for the Chicago Trade Schools, arrested and charged with operating an employment agency without a license, was discharged Friday by Police Judge Rosecan. Fitzpatrick has offices in the Central National Bank building where he represents the Chicago Telegraph Institute, the Greer College of Automobile, the American Building Trades, and the Chicago Automobile Finishing School.

Fitzpatrick advertised in daily papers, offering men easy work. A detective answered the advertisement and arrested Fitzpatrick. Before Judge Rosecan, it was proved that the defendant was a bona fide agent for the trade schools, and that each school gave the student a written guarantee of employment after the course of instruction is completed. Under the Interstate Commerce law, Fitzpatrick, as agent for Chicago schools, is not compelled to obtain a license for the bureau.

NEW GERMAN LIQUID FUEL ALARMS COAL INTERESTS

Extraction on Wholesale Scale From Lignite Being Planned By Baden Aniline Works.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—The sale announced yesterday of the shares held by the Stinnes interests in the Riebeck Mining and Oil Works to the Baden Aniline Works has accentuated a bitter fight, which has been going on for some time between the chemical and coal interests of Germany.

In industrial and economic circles it is believed that the Baden Aniline Works will now push its plan for getting liquid fuel from coal and lignite to such an extent that Germany not only will discontinue the importation of benzine but will become an export country of the first magnitude for the product.

Before acquiring the shares in the Rieback concern, the Baden Aniline Works also is said to have purchased the patents of invention by Prof. Bergius for making synthetic oil. In its acquisition of the Riebeck shares the Baden Aniline concern is furnished with the necessary sales organization for marketing synthetic liquid fuel. The development is viewed with alarm by the coal interests.

COOLIDGE INSPECTS NATION'S WARSHIP, "OLD IRONSIDES"

Goes Over Thoroughly Frigate That Took Part in 40 Battles and Met No Defeats.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—President Coolidge climbed over "Old Ironsides" today and spent a half hour inspecting the nation's old warship —the Constitution—which is tied up at the Boston Navy Yard. The ship which participated in 40 engagements and met with no defeats, was gone over thoroughly by Mr. Coolidge. He read with interest the documents on board which told of the frigate's bombardment of Tripoli against the pirates and its engagement with the Guerriere in the battle of 1812.

Launched in 1797, across the harbor from where it is now, the Constitution served actively until 1882. It was one of the first fix ships authorized for the navy by Congress.

President Coolidge boarded the Constitution from a pier where the Mayflower, which carried him from Marble Head, had docked. With the executive were Mrs. Coolidge and Secretary Hoover, Everett Sanders, secretary to the President, and Mrs. Sanders. The party was escorted by Rear Admiral Louis R. De Steiguer, commandant of the navy yard.

GOV. BAKER SAID TO PLAN PENAL BOARD SHAKEUP

Warden Nix of Prison, McGregor, Head of Farms, and Parole Commissioner Steinbeck May Go.

ALL BUT ENLOE ARE HOLDOVERS

No Official Action Taken by Board on Charges of Irregularities in Purchase of Supplies.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 8.—A probable shakeup by Gov. Baker of membership of the State Penal Board, involving possibly three of the five commissioners, is rumored in political circles here as a result of the tribulations of the present prison administration.

Confirmation of the reported changes could not be obtained from Prison Board members, who had heard the reports but disclaimed knowledge of their accuracy; nor from Gov. Baker, who was out of town today. The Governor recently stated on injury that he would make the Prison Board appointments when he got ready to do so.

Commissioners who may be affected, according to rumor, are William McGregor, Superintendent of Prison Farms; A. H. Steinbeck, Parole Commissioner, and Warden S. T. Nix. McGregor is a Democrat and Steinbeck and Nix are Republicans.

All But Enloe Holdovers.

Other members of the board are Dr. Cortez F. Enloe, Republican, chairman and Director of Penal Institutions, and John I. Burnett, Democrat, Superintendent of Industries. Enloe is generally regarded as the closest political adviser of the Governor, although Baker this week remarked that he "wished the newspapers would quit referring to the doctor as my closest political adviser." He explained Enloe was a close personal friend, but never had asked for anything.

A change in the board could be effected easily, as all but Enloe are holdovers, and their tenure of office could be terminated merely by the Governor announcing appointment of successors.

When Baker was inaugurated Jan. 12 last, he had the resignations of all the members of the former board, and they went out of office that day. Baker's first appointment of a new board could be only for the remainder of the terms, expiring June 19. At that time he reappointed only Enloe, leaving the other four as holdovers. It is understood the holdovers have received no indication as to reappointment.

Some Friction Over Authority.

Enloe has been political chief at the prison and has had the final word in running the institution. Some friction has arisen at intervals, it is said, through this "centralization of power," and the position of some of the commissioners as virtual figureheads. All channels at the prison run to the office door of "the Little Doc," as Enloe is generally known.

When Baker reappointed Enloe he remarked that the others could wait. Under this situation, he said, "there are no knots to be untied if there should be any changes."

No official action has been taken by the board toward investigation of charges of irregularities in the purchasing of supplies for the State Penitentiary, which were made by State Senator Larry Brunk, purchasing agent, in letters sent to the board and Gov. Baker, although the board has the power by law to institute an inquiry into any condition affecting the penal institutions.

No Comment From Enloe.

Enloe today declined to make any explanation or comment, when asked if the board proposed to make an investigation and why none had bee made.

Enloe preserved the same silence on the prison charges that he has maintained concerning the report that he was to resign as a member of the State Board of Health. That request resulted from the demand of Dr. Emmett P. North, president of the State Board of Health, and Dr. James Stewart, secretary, that Enloe should resign after [illegible] alleged activities of Enloe while he was secretary of the Board.

Some question has been raised as to the legality of Enloe holding two positions, as director of penal institutions and as member of the Boar dof Health, but the Attorney-General never has been asked for a ruling.

As exclusively told in the Post-Dispatch, Brunk wrote letters to the Penal Board June 17 and July 2 last, [illegible] of State funds by firms that overcharged, or were permitted to overcharge, for prison supplies, [illegible] supplies in quantities without competitive bids.

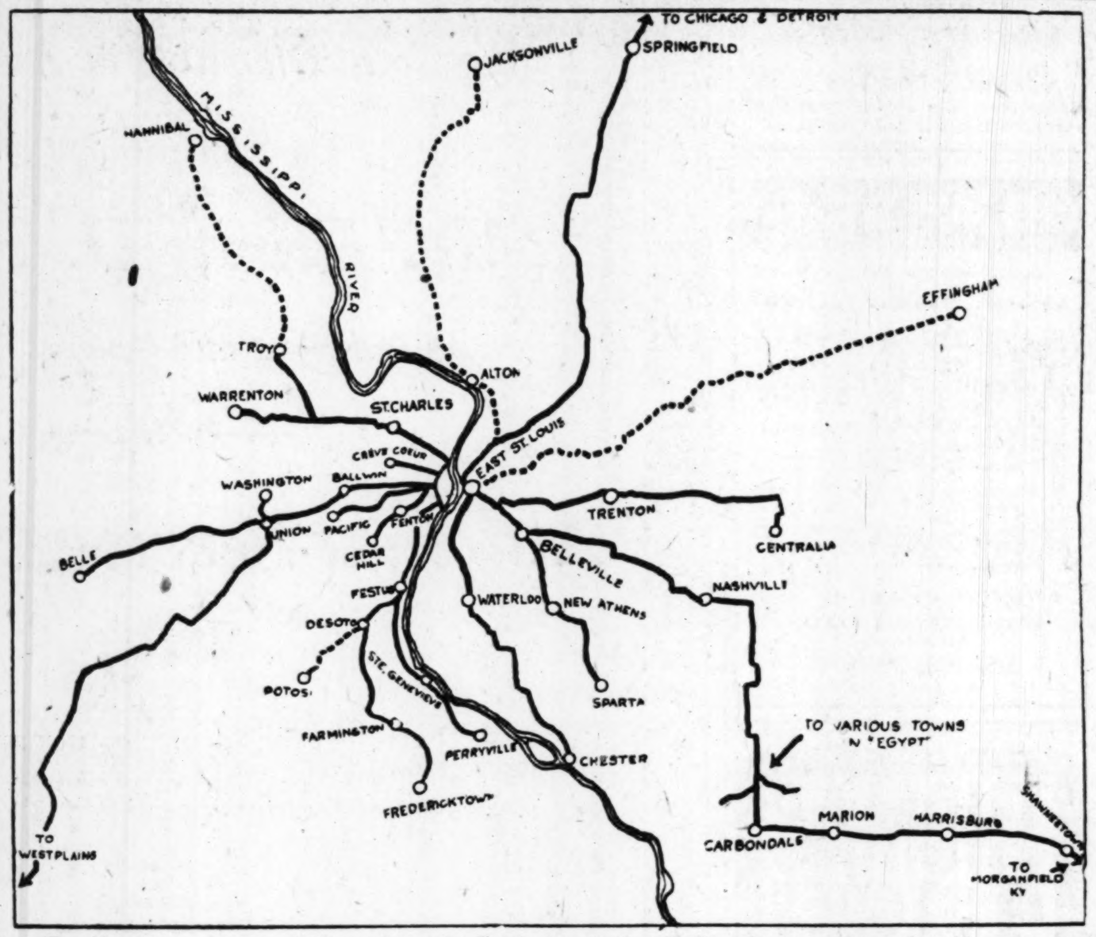
Bus Lines Spreading Out From St. Louis



Regular bus routes spread out from St. Louis in nearly all directions, as shown by this map, many lines going from 30 to 60 miles or farther, and with three routes going considerably farther. Four main highways on which no busses are operating yet are shown in dotted lines. Towns on the other highways are termini of the various lines.

HEAVY TRUCK TRAFFIC ON ROADS INTO ST. LOUIS

Long Distance Hauling of Household Goods Has Reached Striking Volume; Many Bus Lines in Operation.

Tourists are not the only ones who have taken advantage of the fine highways of Missouri and Illinois leading out of St. Louis, for these roads are now plied regularly by motor busses and by haulers of freight.

There is a comprehensive network of long-distance and suburban bus lines starting here. Considerable freight is being trucked over the highways by companies and individuals, and the volume of transfer of household goods in this way is especially striking, as it evidences a departure of modern times.

Missouri being later with the construction of first-class roads, with much work ahead of it still, the development on this side of the Mississippi is the more remarkable. However, the greater part of the furniture hauling is between St. Louis and the Chicago district.

Through the Inter-City Removals Bureau of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, Chicago, member firms hauling goods 'cross-country get return loads 60 to 75 per cent of the time. Up to 400 miles, moving men believe, it is best to ship by truck, but some of them believe the limit eventually will be 1000 miles, when equipment is standardized, and bus chassis used, enabling faster time. A scheduled service may be the outcome.

Two Days to Chicago.

An average of 150 trucks a month leave St. Louis with household goods, with the same number coming in, by the estimate of one mover who has been active in this business. The greater portion of the traffic is between here and Chicago, with Indianapolis next, then Detroit, but Kansas City is expected to take second place as soon as Missouri finishes its through highway there.

Two-day truck service is possible between here and Chicago, whereas five to seven days are required to ship household belongings by rail, and it is pointed out that the shipper, waiting for his furniture at the other end, has a smaller hotel bill to pay when he utilizes the highways. Breakage is practically eliminated in road shipments.

In some instances, it costs about 25 per cent less to ship by road than by rail. For example, the charge for a 650-cubic-foot truck load to Chicago is $212.50, while the cost by freight, including transfer at each end and packing, would be $275 to $300, according to one mover, while another gave this comparison: Truck, $200 to $250, and rail, $210. The latter mover said a truck to Terre Haute, Ind., would cost $125 to $145, compared with about $180 by rail.

Rates Recommended.

Rates recommended to members by the Inter-City Removals Bureau are: First 50 miles, $1 per mile for loads of 400 to 1000 cubic feet and $1.20 per mile for larger loads; additional mileage, 65 cents to $1.20 per mile, and up, according to volume of loads. These rates are for good roads, but $4 per hour is charged over unimproved roads. Return trips are made at the moving company's expense, unless return loads are arranged.

Moving men feel that the business of hauling household goods between cities by road ought to become a public utility, franchised by the states. This has been done, virutally, in Ohio and Michigan for intra-State business. Illinois has a law requiring Illinois licenses for business trucks from other states, to which outside interests, including haulers of St. Louis are objecting. A remedy is under discussion by the Automobile Club of Missouri, Chamber of Commerce, automobide dealers and hauling interests. A check has shown that more commercial vehicles from Illinois than from Missouri use the municipal bridge here.

Urban Bus Service Extensive.

Urban bus service is worthy of mention before listing the interurban lines. St. Louis has the extensive system of the People's Motorbus Co. and the growing system of the St. Louis Bus Co., affiliated with the United Railways. The East St. Louis & Suburban Railway operates feeder lines in East St. Louis and a St. Louis route over the municipal bridge. The County Motor Bus Co. connects St. Louis with Maplewood, Webster Groves, Glendale, Kirkwood, Valley Park, Lake Hill Park, Crystal Springs Lake Park and other suburban points.

Another company runs a Big Bend road line to Kirkwood. Other nearby points reached by busses are Pacific, Ballwin, Creve Coeur, Fenton and Ferguson. More distant towns are served, in most instances by larger and speedier busses. These towns are:

Missouri — Union, Washington Belle (west of Union), St. Charles, Warrenton, Troy, Farmington, Fredericktown, Ste. Genevieve, Perryville, Festus and Crystal City, De Soto, Cedar Hill, West Plains (by touring car three times a week).

Illinois — Trenton, Centralia, Nashville, Chicago (with Detroit bus connection), Carbondale, Marion, Harrisburg, Shawneetown (with Morganfield, Ky., bus connection), Chester (via Waterloo trolley), New Athens (via Belleville trolley), Sparta (via Belleville trolley.

Connections to California.

Connections are made at St. Charles for the Warrenton and Troy, Mo., service; at Farmington for the Frederick town service, and at Harrisburg for the Shawneetown, Ill., and Morganfield, Ky., service. In addition, the Carbondale-Harrisburg route has extensive feeder connections throughout Southern Illinois. The company operating the Chicago-Detroit scheduled service also arranges trips to Kansas City, California cities and various other places east and west as traffic requires.

Railroads Hit.

Railroad traffic men say they have not noticed a great decrease in the movement of household goods by rail, but that there has been a very large falling off in package freight, known as less-than-carload lots. The railroads still are hauling carload lots to the jobbing centers in the St. Louis trade territory, but the jobbers are distributing by truck to a great extent, thereby cutting down the railroads' business.

Store-door delivery, lower rates and mobility of movement are the advantages which caused merchants to take to trucks. Handling and packing are reduced when the single loading of a truck, which goes right to the purchaser's store, is substituted for the process of rail shipment. Railroad men say they are realizing that the future of the railroads lies in long-haul freight and passenger business and carload traffic for short hauls. St. Louis shoe companies having factories in outlying towns are utilizing the highways to transport materials and finished product.

Missouri railroads have not felt the truck competition as much as have those of Illinois, because Missouri's highways have not offered the opportunity for trucks, but as highways in this State are improved this competition grows.

Passenger Business Withers.

Some railroad men are of the opinion that many companies and individuals hauling freight by truck are not aware of their real costs, including depreciation of equipment, but it is not argued in railroad circles that the truck business will not be reduced to a more exact basis.

Passenger traffic of the railroads has been dealt a severe blow by improvement of the highways. Most of the railroads entering St. Louis have found that their local passenger business has withered away to a pitiful state, yet utility commissions require that local trains be kept running. Even where there are no bus lines, it has been found in some places, private automobiles and "jitneys" have served to keep traffic away from the rails. Traffic men are hopeful that the gasoline or self-propelled steam car will solve this problem by reducing operating costs. The Big Four Railroad now runs a gasoline car 58 miles between Hillsboro, Ill., and St. Louis daily.

ST. LOUIS ON FORD'S FREIGHT AIRPLANE LINE SCHEDULE

Craft to Connect Many Large Cities as Result of Purchase of Stout Concern.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Aug. 8.—A fleet of commercial airplanes to carry Ford Motor Co. freight to virtually all parts of the United States will be one of the results of the purchase by the Ford interests of Stout Metal Airplane Co.

In making this statement Henry Ford said the company plans to connect various large cities by airways and maintain a regular schedule of deliveries. The cities will include New York, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Indianapolis and others.

"I feel toward aviation as I did towards the motor car 30 years ago," Ford said. "Perhaps it is because the great masses of the people do not need airplanes now as much as they did automobiles then."

Ford declined to venture a prediction as to whether airplanes ultimately will supplant present means of transportation.

WARRINER-LEWIS NOTES TO COUNT IN COAL DISCUSSION

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 8.—Anthracite scale negotiations broken off last Tuesday are still in progress, it developed tonight, because, by agreement of both sides, letters exchanged during the interim "go into the record" and correspondingly count for points.

By this arrangement the Thursday letter sent by Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, in reply to the letter preceding the Tuesday break addressed to him by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, becomes as much a part of the deliberations as if Mr. Warriner and Mr. Lewis were face to face, it was said.

The same will be true of the letter Mr. Lewis was completing today in which he will answer Mr. Warriner's "reply" and which he plans for Warriner and the public to see Monday.

PLANS ADVANCED FOR "THE MIRACLE"

$100,000 Guaranteed Fund Virtually Pledged—Special Stamps as Advertising.

The St. Louis commitee in charge of arrangements for production of "The Miracle" here next December announced yesterday that all details were moving most satisfactorily. Almost all the $100,000 guarantee fund has been subscribed or enough subscriptions are in sight to make up the balance. Overtures made the railroads running into St. Louis for reduced fares during the play's season here have been received encouragingly. It is also believed that the Government will exempt the ticket sale for the production from the usual 10 per cent tax on theatrical entertainments.

Business firms are sending out special stamps advertising "The Miracle" with their correspondence. Engineers had already drawn plans for conversion of the Coliseum interior into a medieval cathedral and announced that about 6,000 seats will be available.

Word comes from Morris Gest, impressario of the production, who is in Austria that Lady Diana Manners has signed articles to apear in the leading role of the St. Louis play. Gest is working with a special production of the pageant at Salzburg, Austria, staging the play there in a real cathedral. NEW RUSE FOR TAX DODGING USED IN TWO KANSAS CITYS

Residents Cross Line to Buy Auto Licenses, Avoid Personal Property Tax, Says Kansas Official.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 8.—The Secretaries of States for Missouri and Kansas will get together in Kansas City, Mo., next week to collaborate in an effort to circumvent tax dodgers in the two Kansas Citys. Frank J. Ryan, Kansas Secretary of State, said today he had arranged a conference with Secretary Charles Becker of Missouri to exchange ideas on the subject.

Ryan asserted that a number of residents on the Missouri side of the line come into Kansas to buy their automobile lincenses, thus dodging the payment of personal property taxes by claiming a Kansas residence. And it works both ways. So the two secretaries are going after the dodgers.

City Assessor Gehner said yesterday he did not believe such a situation, as described in the foregoing dispatch, existed here with respect to Missouri and Illinois residents.

WIFE WATCHES DUEL IN AUTO FOUGHT FOR HER

From Back Seat Sees Husband Slain by Her Friend, Now Dying.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—A pistol duel over a woman, who watched helplessly, resulted today in the death of Edward Olson, the woman's ex-convict husband, and in probably fatal injuries to her friend, George Kane. The shooting, which followed a drinking party at the Olson apartment, occurred in a parked automobile. The two men were in the front seat, with Mrs. Olson behind.

Edward Olson was a real estate dealer and had objected frequently to his wife's relations with other men. George Kane, who lies near death in a hospital, was identified as John ("Red") Flannery, alleged robber, whom the police have been seeking for months in connection with a murder.

BIG COTTON CROP IN SIGHT

Forecast as of Aug. 1 Indicates 15,466,000 Bales.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. — A bumper cotton crop is in prospect for this year despite adverse conditions in some of the important states.

A forecast of 15,466,000 bales was announced today by the Department of Agriculture, which based its calculation on conditions existing Aug. 1. That is 22,000 bales less than forecast from July 16 conditions and is slightly below last year. The crop is from one to two weeks earlier than last season, ginnings to Aug. 1 having been 159,378 bales as compared with 21,795 last year. The declines in the crop during the 16-day period were due to drouth in portions of Texas and Oklahoma but these were offset by a lessening of weevil menace and by improved prospects in Arkansas, Tennessee and Missouri.

Jesuit Pilgrims Received by Pope.

ROME, Aug. 8.—The Jesuit sodality pilgrimage of 500 priests, laymen and women from New York Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other Jesuit university towns were received by the Pope Friday evening. The pilgrims presented His Holiness with $30,000 for research work in the catacombs.

Charges Fraud in Negro Town's Boom in Voters

Defeated Mayoralty Candidate at Brooklyn, Ill., Asks Court to Investigate Sudden Increase of 452 in Polling Strength.

If the negro village of Brooklyn, just north of East St. Louis, has received 452 new voters to its dusky bosom since the 1924 election, Dr. Earle Williams, defeated mayoralty candidate on the People's party ticket, feels the increase in population should have been apparent.

Because 1402 votes were cast in the election July 14 last, while the city's greatest previous vote was only 950, Dr. Williams is of the opinion that something is rotten, as one might say, in Brooklyn. Upon this premise he discussed last night the election of Burton F. Washington, his opponent, who went over with a smashing plurality on the Grand Old People's Party ticket, leaving Williams and Henry King, the Labor-Progressive candidate, in the political ruck.

Charges of Irregularities.

"I have never heard of greater irregularities in any election anywhere," said Dr. Williams, who was educated at the University of Illinois. "Brooklyn's normal voting strength is less than 900 and our hardest fought contests never brought out more than 950. And yet our election of July 14 is recorded as having brought 1402 votes. Washington got 901, I got 442 and King got the rest.

"Many of my supporters reported that when they went to the polls the ballots were taken from their hands by election officials.

"'You need help,' the officials would say and they'd mark the ballots for Washington and push the would-be voters from the polling place.

"Then there was the case of Napoleon B. West, Tax Collector of our town and a supporter of mine. He was a challenger for me, but they put him out of the polling place.

"'You know too much,' they told him. Why, one of the election officials himself said to me before the election, 'You think we can't beat you and maybe we can't—with the vote. But we'll beat you at the box and you can't stop us.'

"'That's against the law,' I replied. 'Maybe it is,' he said. 'Selling white mule is against the law, too, but we do it in Brooklyn.'

Says Ballots Were Destroyed.

"I know for a fact that when Washington's votes were counted they totaled 950. Someone called the attention of the officials to the fact there were only 901 on the poll books of Brooklyn, so they took away 49 ballots and tore them up. And gave Washington a vote that included as many voters as were recorded on the poll books.

"Everybody saw them bringing bums from the railroad tracks to the polling place to vote. After they had cast their ballots they'd drive away and come back with different hats and coats on to vote some more."

And so on. According to Williams, there was dirty work afoot on that day, work that prompted his supporters to ask, "How come that boy Washington to get all the votes in the town and you to get what you did, too?"

Circuit Judge Crow will hear what each side has to say on Aug. 20. Washington, who is principal of the Brooklyn schools, could not be reached for a statement last night.

REAL ESTATE MEN ARE ASKED ABOUT ZONING

Commission Requests Their Co-operation on Draft of Proposed Ordinance.

Co-operation of the Real Estate Exchange in preparing the final draft of the proposed zoning ordinance is asked by the Zoning Commission, in a letter sent yesterday by the commission's secretary to the Zoning Committee of the exchange.

"The commission," the letter states, "would like to have your cooperation at this time in working out the regulations regarding uses of land, heights of buildings and open spaces about buildings, in order to see if it would not be possible to work out a zoning ordinance second to none in the United States, leaving the matter of compensation open at this time, inasmuch as this is a matter for the consideration of the best legal experience that can be applied to this question.

Lack of Harmony Denied.

"The commission feels that an erroneous impression has been created that there is a disposition of these two parties not to work in harmony.

"The commission is thoroughly appreciative of the valuable experience which your committee possesses and feels that this experience will be of most valuable assistance in working out a zoning ordinance which will be of great benefit to all citizens of St. Louis."

Question of Compensation.

While endeavoring to work out the regulatory features of the ordinance, the commission will ask the City Counselor for an opinion as to the provisions for an adjustment board, and in this connection the question of compensation, which has become the chief subject of contention, will be considered. Neighborhood hearings on the measure may be held later, if any neighborhood desires a further chance to present its views. A number of neighborhood cases were presented at the hearings held last Monday to Thursday nights.

'PRAYER MEETINGS' BY STRIKERS FORBIDDEN

Idle Miners and Wives Gathered in Oklahoma and Prayed for Nonunion Workers.

By the Associated Press.

HENRYETTA, Ok., Aug. 8.—With 62 national guardsmen and Okmulgee county deputy sheriffs on duty in the Henryetta mining district, operations continued quietly today while a habeas corpus hearing was being held for two miners charged with disturbing the peace. The hearing was continued until Monday following a brief session.

Ed Jordan and Henry Baker, the men under arrest, are charged by a State trooper with having been part of a group of about 50 persons who gathered yesterday "at the Whitehead mine Number 2 in such a manner as was adapted to disturb the public peace and excite public alarm by using loud, profane, threatening and abusive language."

Jordan and Baker declared in their application for release that they were merely seeking "by persuasion in speeches and conversation," to induce working miners to leave the pits.

Hymns Sung.

Their arrest followed an order by Sheriff John Russell forbidding further outdoor "prayed meetings" and other gatherings in the mining fields. The "prayer meetings" have been an unusual feature of the strike which started last spring when the union miners demanded the 1924 wage scale and operators told them they could not pay it and continue to operate the mines.

Miners and their wives have gathered daily at the mine gates and as workers issued forth have prayed for their safety and invoked Divine help in persuading them to abandon their labors. Hymns have been sung, and from all outward appearences the meetings have been religious exercises and nothing more. (A picture of one of these meeting appered in the Post-Dispatch yesterday.)

In a conference this week with Gov. Trapp, however, Okmulgee County authorities declared the working miners find it unpleasant to have the men they have dispossessed praying daily for their physical safety. They said the meetings carry a veiled threat against the peace of the mining field and for that reason have been barred.

Aside from the "prayer meetings" the union miners' activities have been confined to automobile parades and several Sunday gatherings at which union officials have addressed them.

Throughout the strike not a single placard abusing working miners has appeared in any of the parades or meetings. The American flag, however, has been present always.

Some minor violence has attended the strike, but official reports have made mention of nothing more serious than a few fist fights. Whenever the union miners have met their gatherings have been peaceful and orderly.

Man Found Dead in Capsized Auto.

FIFTH HOGAN TRIAL PLANNED BY STATE

Announcement Made Following Failure of Third Jury at Union, Mo., to Agree.

A fifth trial for Jimmy Hogan, gangster, on the charge of robbing Erris Pillow, negro messenger for the North St. Louis Savings Trust Co., who later was murdered, undoubtedly to prevent his testimony, was announced by the State yesterday, following failure of a third jury in the case, at Union, Mo., to agree.

Circuit Attorney Sidener said he would ask to have the case set for trial again in the November term of the Franklin County Circuit Court. The robbery was committed April 4, 1921, and Pillow was assassinated a few weeks later.

A year later Hogan was tried for the first time, getting a change of venue to Union because he alleged there was prejudice against him here. Although there were three robbers, he was the only man charged with participation in the robbery. The jury convicted him and fixed his punishment at 15 years in prison, having heard policemen testify that Pillow had identified Hogan as his assailant. The Supreme Court of Missouri, acting on Hogan's appeal, ruled that this evidence should not have been permitted, and reversed and remanded the case.

In March, 1924, and again last March Hogan was tried, but the jury failed to agree each time, after deliberating 24 hours. The first time the jury stood 10 to 2 for conviction; the second, 10 to 2 for acquittal; yesterday, the foreman of the last jury told the Court the vote was 9 to 3 for conviction, though it had been 8 to 4 throughout most of the 63 hours the jury was held to its task.

The Circuit-Attorney's announcement of a fifth trial was made after conferring with Assistant Circuit-Attorney Johnston, who prosecuted the case.

The case went to the jury shortly before 6 p. m. Wednesday and the mistrial was declared by Circuit Judge Breuer shortly before 9 a. m. yesterday, 63 hours later.

STINNES' SON THREATENS BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS

Hugo Jr. Would Declare Self Insolvent Unless Creditors Come to Aid.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Dramatic confirmation of the prediction that the heirs of Hugo Stinnes would be practically penniless before the present process of liquidating their indebtedness was furnished today by a threat of Hugo Jr., that he would declare himself a bankrupt unless his banker creditors were more merciful. After the story was published in one of the Stinnes organs in the Rhineland it was denied. The story furnished opportunity for banks to point out that the Stinnes indebtedness is steadily mounting and has reached a total of 180,000,000 marks.

The main difficulty now is the sale of the Stinnes steamship lines, for the market has a surplus of tonnage and negotiations for the surplus have collapse on this account. Likewise hotels are a drug on the market, and repeated efforts to sell the Hamburger Hofo, one of the biggest German hotels, have failed. So far one-third of the total indebtedness has been covered by sale of the most easily disposable enterprises, notably mines.

Financial editors in tonight's Berlin papers agree it is difficult to see how any surplus can be left the Stinnes family after liquidation of the debts.

FRENCH CAPTURE MOROCCAN STRONGHOLD OF AMERYOU

Loss of Position 25 Miles Southeast of Fez Said to Prove Blow to Riffian Forces.

By the Associated Press.

RABAT, Morocco, Aug. 8.—The capture of the Moroccan stronghold of Ameryou, about 25 miles southeast of Fez, by the French tonight, at the point of the bayonet, has created a stir among various native tribes said to be weakening in their allegiance to Abd-el-Krim. Among those affected are the Tsouls, who are considered the fiercest warriors in Morocco. Besides occupying an almost impregnable position, Ameryou boasts of a strong fortress, which until today was looked upon by the Moors as a headquarters for witchcraft and accompanying occult powers.

These beliefs are said to be so strong in the minds of the Moroccans that the new occupants have decided to fortify Ameryou strongly, knowing that the Riffians likely will attempt to recapture the positions.

$200,000 in Stolen Furs Recovered.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Stolen furs valued at $200,000 were recovered today with the arrest of six men in the basement of a Sixth avenue shop. Detectives who made the arrests said the furs were stolen on July 13, when robbers bored a hole through the side of a Thirtieth street loft building.

LUTHER ADVOCATES TARIFF IN GERMANY

Chancellor Cites Attitude of U. S. in Argument to Reichstag for Protection.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—With tax legislation out of the way, the Reichstag today entered upon a stormy discussion of the Government's tariff program. The tax bills, framed to provide a revenue of about 7,000,000,000 marks (about $1,750,000,000) and completing the most thorough taxation reform undertaken by Germany since the war, were passed last night.

The Government's general tariff position was outlined today in an introductory statement by Chancellor Luther, who gave an argument for the protective tariffs contemplated.

"Only if there is a regular ordered exchange of goods with foreign countries by which German creative power can be made productive," he said, "can provisioning the German people with food, the recuperation of German industry and the fulfillment of the obligations assumed under the London agreement be vouchafsed.

"Germany certainly has no desire for the development of European economic life on the basis of high tariffs. Germany, however, cannot go the way of general tariff reduction or even the entire removal of tariff barriers which, perhaps, alone would be sufficient to afford relief from the world's economic distress, as long as other countries which confront us with far greater economic and political power maintain a decided system of protective tariffs."

He cited as an example the United States, which he said had in nowise lowered its high tariffs.

Concerning agrarian tariffs he observed that it is only fair if German industries are to be protected by tariffs, that the farmer also should receive protection, but he denied that these tariffs would be excessive.

"The duty-free importation of considerable quantities of frozen meat," he said, "constitutes an alleviative measure for the consumers. In the case of grain, the tariff is of a transitory nature and is considerably lower than the tariffs of pre-war times."

BANK'S CAPITAL INCREASED

Franklin Employes Take Most of New Issue.

An increase of $200,000 in the capital stock of the Franklin Bank became effective Friday. The capital now is $1,200,000, with a surplus of $300,000 and undivided profits of $220,000.

The additional stock was subscribed for largely by employes and officers of the bank, and 80 per cent of the bank's active force are now stockholders.

INDUSTRY SHOULD SETTLE PROBLEMS, VIEW OF COOLIDGE

President's Attitude Toward Anthracite Situation Made Known By Secretary Hoover.

By the Associated Press.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 8.—President Coolidge holds to the view that industry, including the coal business, should settle its own labor problems, and he is hopeful that industry will find its own solution.

Secretary Hoover made this statement today after he had discussed the anthracite situation with the President. It gave added weight to the report that the administration had no intention of interfering in the wage scale dispute between hard coal operators and miners.

Hoover reported to the President on business conditions as he found them on an extensive tour through the West, and expressed the opinion that the public west of the Alleghenies was profoundly interested in development of waterways.

The United States, Hoover said, was never before in such a strong economic condition as at present. Standards of living are higher than the country has ever before enjoyed, and there is no unemployment of consequence.

DROUTH IN TEXAS CUTS COTTON CROP IN MANY COUNTIES

Only 20 to 5 Per Cent Yield in Region Usually Producing 40 Per Cent of State's Output.

BIG CURTAILMENT OF CROP LIKELY

Recent Rains Came Too Late, but Proved of Great Benefit to Late Feed-Crop Plantings.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 9.—Breaking in numerous localities one of the most pronounced drouths experienced in the south central area of Texas in more than 65 years, relief-bringing rains that fell throughout much of the territory in question during the latter part of last and the first part of this week have cleared away to some extent the anxiety of farmers and business men of that portion of the State lest the lack of precipitation should prevail all summer.

While the recent rains were heavy in some sections and will be of much benefit to late feed-crop plantings, they came too late to do any appreciable good in halting the deterioration of the present crop of cotton and major crop of the territory affected. Officials of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, who keep in close touch with agricultural conditions through the State, estimate that between 40 and 65 of the South Texas counties have been affected in a greater or lesser intensity by the extended period of aridity.

Reduced 80 to 95 Per Cent.

Serious curtailment of the cotton crop throughout these South Central Texas counties looms as the result of the drouth. This prospect is given added significance when it is pointed out that the territory affected has past years produced about 40 per cent of the Texas cotton crop.

Although he declared it was difficult to make any definite estimate of this curtailment, Col. C. C. Walsh, Federal Reserve agent of the Eleventh District, said indications are that the South Central Texas cotton yield this season in the counties that have felt the drouth will be reduced by 80 to 95 per cent; that is, this season's yield will range from only 20 to 5 per cent of a normal yield.

In addition to the damage to the cotton, corn and forage crops have sustained great damage, virtually being burned up in many counties by the searing touch of what has been largely a rainless summer.

Location of Stricken Area.

The area of the drouth-stricken counties centers generally speaking about Travis County in which Austin, the capital of the State, is located, and Williamson, one of the richest cotton counties of the State, which adjoins Travis. In general the northern boundary of the area in question runs from Schleicher County on the west through Concho, McCulloch, Sansaba, Mills, Hamilton, Coryell, McLenan, Limestone, Freestone, Leon, Houston, Angelina, Jasper, and Newton beyond which is the Louisiana line.

The western boundary of the area runs south from Schleicher County through Sutton, Edwards, Kinney and Maverick to the Rio Grande. The southern line follows those counties bordering on the Rio Grande and south of Maverick County to Zapata, thence through Jim Hogg and Brooks counties to Willacy County. The eastern line of the effected area runs northward through Brooks, Kleberg, Nueces, San Patricio, Live Oak, Karnes, Gonzales, Lavaca, Fayette, Austin, Waller, Grimes, Walker, San Jacinto, Polk, Tyler, where it meets the northern line. Those counties within the boundaries indicated have felt the effects of the drouth with varied intensity. The extreme tier of Gulf Coast counties have enjoyed good and fair season varying by counties and conditions in those counties are not of the gloomy outlook of the area outlined.

To Replant Feed Stuff.

The first relief of any consequence in the south central district was reported about the middle of July when heavy rains fell in widely separated areas over Texas. Heavy precipitation was reported at the time in the San Antonio section, more than two inches falling in the northern part of Bexar County. Rain also fell at the time in Frio, LaSalle, Comal, Wilson, Kerr, Bandera, Hays, Karnes, Caldwell, DeWitt and Gonzales counties, also Harris and Galveston counties.

During the last four or five days beneficial rains have fallen throughout the territory, the long drouth being broken at Austin, in Travis County, last Sunday, when more than 1 inch of rain fell. It fell slowly, every drop of water soaking into the parched earth. As the result, it is believed great quantities of feed stuff will now be planted in that section and an effort made to save enough to carry the farm animals through the winter. During the last two weeks animals were being shipped from that section to grass in more fortunate sections of the State, but where pasturage charges are high. It is now believed this movement will slow down and with grass up in a few weeks, the situation will be relieved. The rain was too late for corn, however.

RAFFLES REAPPEARS

The Gentleman Thief Turns Up in France and Contributes Another Polite Robbery.

NONE less than the Master of the Show had made the setting for this comedy. You are to recall the glory of the full moon of early last July. The great flood of argent light, bathing lovers as they wandered down leafy lanes. You are to envision the white roads of France, flung like ribbons beneath that July moon. Motors whir and rumble along the roads. Oaks and chestnuts mount the low hills of a magnificent and wooded estate. White in the moonlight are the pointed roofs of the Chateau de Chavres, near Vaumoise, in the Department of the Oise, an easy motor stage from Paris.

Lights wink out in the keeper's lodge. Perhaps in the moonlight filtering through narrow leaded glass onto white counterpanes the ancient keeper and his old wife quietly talk together. The old man speaks of the roses that embower the garden which is his pride. And the good wife answers with chatter of Madame, out there in the great world. Madame, before whom thousands lay their homage; Madame, beautiful and jeweled, bowing before the dazzling footlights, in Vienna, whence news has reached them that very day of her triumph in "Der Rosenkavalier." But roses, not the Cavaliers of the Rose, fill the mind of the old lodge keeper, and, mumbling something about leaf-cutting bees, he drops quietly to sleep.

DOWN the highway, more than a mile, an automobile is parked, without a light, beneath some oaks whose heavy-leaved limbs cast a shadow that obscures it. They are not lovers, loitering thus by the wayside.

"See, the light is gone," says one. And the other answers: "Wait."

From a silver case he draws a cigarette and the flicker of a wax match reveals his face, a thin, highbred, patrician face, dark, handsome, cultured in its aspect.

"Wait," he repeats, and the cigarette glows in the shadow. The odor of tobacco mingles with the scent of new-mown hay from a field nearby. His companion, heavier of feature, younger, waits at the wheel of the car, revolving in his mind some plans he has . . . a scheme for riches. He recalls the boulevards, the cafes, some cabarets . . . dancing, wine . . . women. In his mind he is spending his wealth to come.

His companion dreams under the moon. Romance calls to him. He is the half of a poet. And the other half——

"Come," he says, tossing away his cigarette, and leaving within the car the stick that has rested between his knees. He pats the pockets of his garments as if to reassure himself. He carefully draws on his slender hands some chamois gloves. He sets forth briskly with a swinging stride and the other, heavier, follows, scurrying to keep up, as somehow a dog might trot behind.

Little is said. They leave the road, skirt through the trees. They make a wide detour to avoid the perfumed garden, with its glory of flowers turning their dew-jeweled faces to the kiss of the moon. They come upon the chateau from the rear.

There is the low growl of a dog. The two stop in the shadows. Then a low whistle. The leader pats his knee. In sugary tones he is talking. The dog comes nearer, sniffing suspiciously, but he wags his tail.

"Good old boy," says the slight man under his breath, and stoops to pat him. He rubs his hand gently along the animal's back. Then the other, reaching suddenly from behind him, brings a steel bar with crashing force down upon the animal's skull.

"Beast," says the slight man, under his breath. But the dog has fallen and lies there without a sound.

They turn to a window in the shadow. The leader seizes the bar, which had been wiped off on the dewy grass. He lays it on the window sill. Beside the weapon he puts a pistol.

"Watch," he commands sharply, in an undertone. He motions the other to a corner of the building. There is a dull, biting sound as the steel bar forces its way to a leverage. There is a grating, a low screech as the lock snaps and the window slowly rises. The Chateau de Chavres is entered in the night.

SO MUCH the French police know from the investigations of detectives who were sent from Paris when M. le Prefect at Vaumoise sent for aid after he, on that hot morning of last July, had carefully searched the Chauteau de Chavres for a clew to the man who had entered in the absence of Mme. Huguette Duflos, dramatic artiste of the Comedie Francaise, who the night before had again repeated in Vienna her triumph in "Der Rosenkavalier."

It was simple enough. The chateau had been entered for purposes of robbery. That was as plain as the wart on the Prefect's nose. The robbery was daring, but it was not strange. The chamois gloves had left no fingerprints. Save for a piece of paper there was no clew. M. le Prefect might have dismissed the case into the limbo of unsolved crimes. But—nothing had been taken.

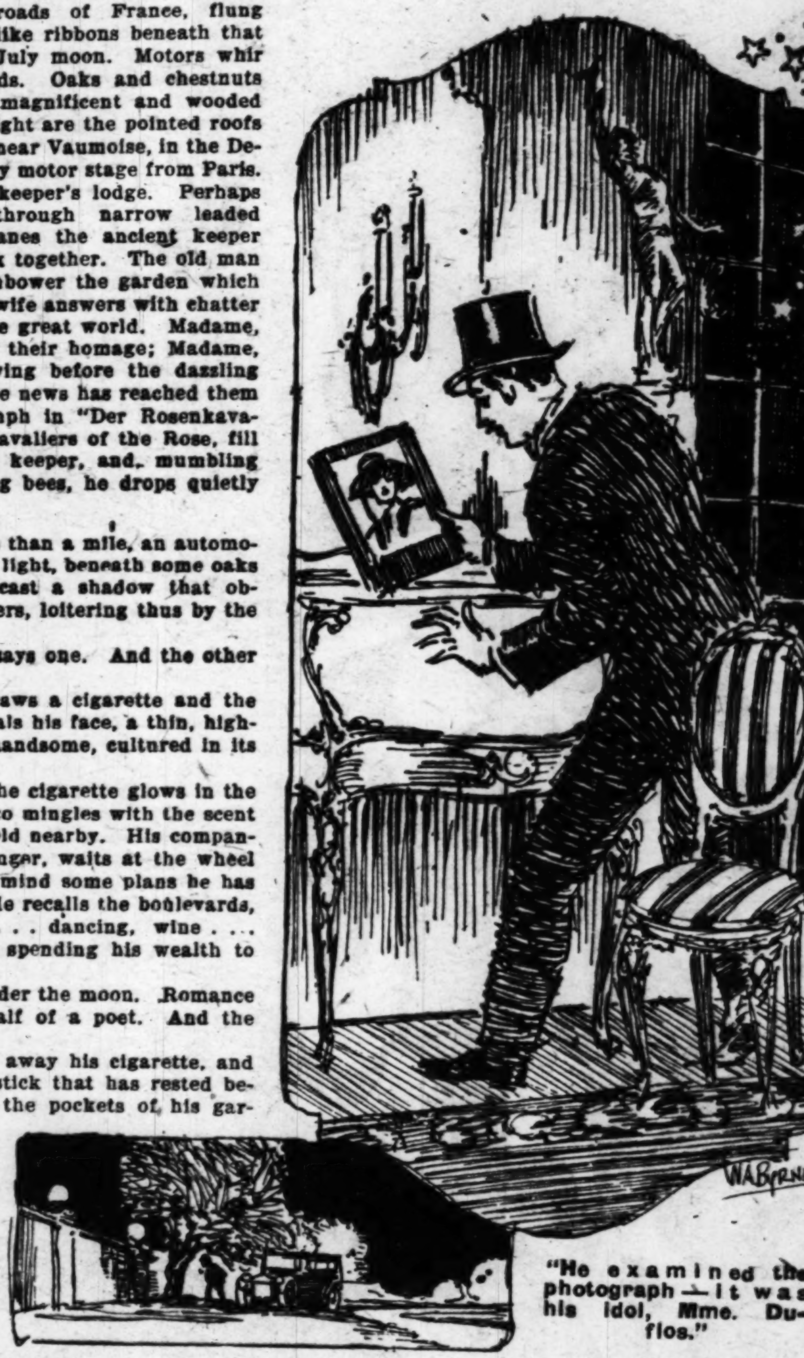
Instead there was a letter—an abject letter—of apology for the intrusion.

That was something to look into. So Parisian aid was summoned and the detectives looked over the chateau and its environs. They found where the car had been stopped in the shadows. The footprints of the men showed the way they had taken, and the length and breadth of their tracks gave a hint of their size and description. From that police had discovered those who had seen the two in their runabout. The heavier, younger man at the wheel, the patrician, exquisite in dress and with stick and yellow gloves, at his side. "An aristocratic gentleman of leisure," Vaumoise had said when they stopped for a package of cigarettes in that village, "and his chauffeur."

Little else was to be learned but Inspector Tribier, who conducted the investigation from Paris, was quickly able to reconstruct the burglary within a quarter of an hour after his arrival. Not yet has he identified those two—the apologist and his companion.

IT WAS a treasure house indeed into which the thief had entered. Perhaps only an amateur of the arts would have appreciated it at value. Rich brocaded hangings must be swept aside to enter at the window. An Aubusson carpet deadened his footfalls on the floor. The little circle of light from his electric flashlight revealed Buhl cabinets, an ormolu clock, dainty porcelains, a crystal chandelier, and on the walls rare etchings and pictures by the masters. From room to room he moved, gathering bibelots, tiny treasures of art dating from the Bourbon days, old silver and quaint jewels. There was a wealth of plate in the dining hall, there were vases of cloisonne and dainty Sevres figures.

MME. HUGUETTE, DUFLOS of the Comedie Francaise, to whom the new Raffles paid a fleeting visit.



"He examined the photograph—it was his idol, Mme. Duflos."

He had taken a tablecloth of damask and placed it upon the carved oak table in the dining hall he gathered there the things which he selected and he was filled with a collector's joy as he added to his treasure trove. His light flashed over a Gobelin tapestry as he mounted the broad and velvet-covered stair. No need to watch one's tread on a rich deep pile like that. Silently he turned the golden knob of the room at the head of the staircase and entered a boudoir. It was more than a boudoir. It was a study as well as a retreat. Everywhere upon the wall were souvenirs, autographed photographs of the great folk of the theater—in France, throughout the world. A lay figure in the corner was garbed in a robe that Rachel once had worn. There was a diadem that once encircled Ristori's brow, and there, a sword that Talma once had carried. On a table was a prompt book marked by the elder Coquelin. Here was the thief, in a Holy of Holies. He turned his light upon the rows of photographs on the wall.

"A mon ami Mme. Duflos." . . . "a mon cher Huguette."

There could be no mistaking. The name was repeated as a litany. He was in the home of Mme. Huguette Duflos. A hundred memories flooded his brain. He could see her on the stage and on the screen—she whose beauty, so remote and inaccessible—had once filled his heart with the dawn of its first love. He turned to her escritoire. Creamy paper lay blank and inviting on the desk of this "first artiste" whose husband is manager of the Comedie Francaise. A quill pen lay at the side of a bottle of purple ink.

With a sudden purpose he sat and wrote:

"TO MADAME HUGUETTE DUFLOS:

I have not stolen your property, Madame, and I will tell you why. I swear to you that when I entered your house I did not know whose place it was. I had noticed the isolation of your chateau as I passed in a motor car and I was charmed with the park and its rose gardens. I felt sure that the chateau would yield a rich haul. And I was not mistaken.

"As I am a man of taste I turned my attention to articles of value. On entering this room, which I had not visited, my eye fell upon photographs inscribed to the lady whom I admire at the cinema and theater. You can imagine my surprise. I am really deeply grieved to have ransacked your delightful home, and I ask your forgiveness from my heart.

"I give back all that I coveted and took.

"My mate, who will never understand my scruples, will be indemnified for the loss of his share. He would never comprehend my sentimental folly. Nothing in the world could make me give pain to the peerless Grande Duchesse Aurore of 'Koenigsmark' and the exquisite Madame Allain of 'The Old Man.'

"Permit me, Madame—it is all I ask—to take a photograph of yourself. Your kind heart, which I should imagine equals your beauty, will have no difficulty in excusing my petty theft. Some day I will write the story of my life—what it was, what it is and—who knows—you will, perchance, be my savior.

"One who has gone wrong, but who lays at your feet, Madame, respectful homage."

MONSIEUR, the burglar, carried the letter gingerly downstairs. He laid it on the heap of treasures on the dining room table. Then, stepping softly, as though he feared now that he would steal, he made his way to the window and crawled out.

"Cochons," he said to the companion who scurried up toward him through the shadows, and he rubbed his hands with a handkerchief, as though he were wiping from them dust. "They must have been gone for a year. And everything of value is locked up in the vaults of Paris. Empty—it's utterly empty. As bare as a bone."

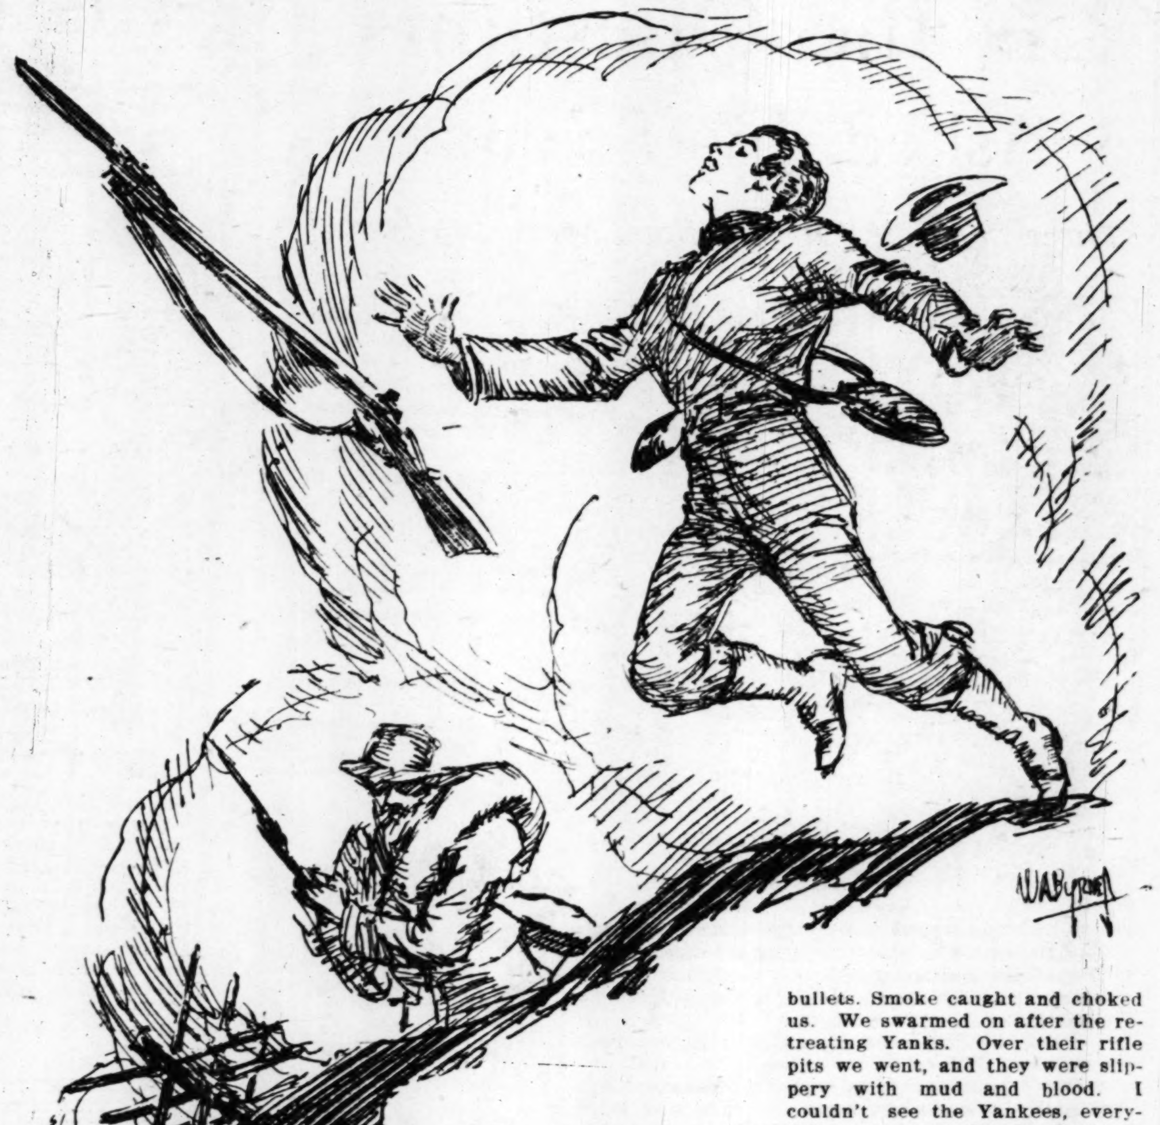
Soldier and Lady, Too

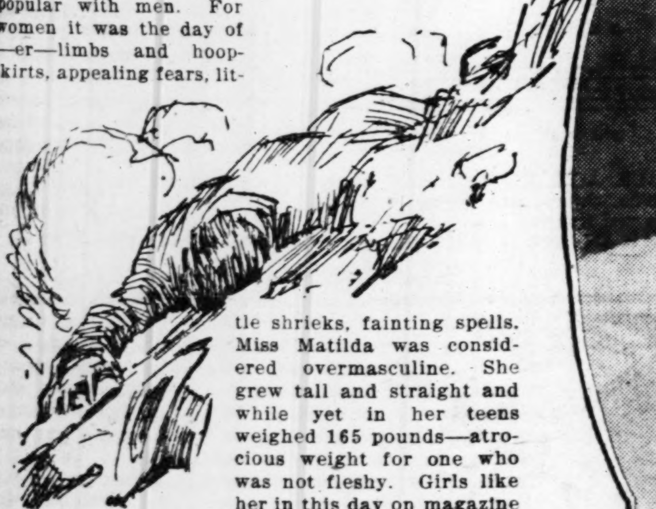
Being the strange, true story of a woman who fought through the Civil War at her husband's side.



A SOLDIER and a lady. That might have been her epitaph. But she was buried plain Lucy Matilda Kenny in the cemetery at Nichols, Ga., without a firing squad or taps. Buried like a lady, with the soldier forgotten. Those who attended her funeral a few weeks ago remembered only that she had lived 112 years and that her passing was notable on this account. For the rest, who was there to recall a century of life? Her near relatives all were dead; her friends were dead. She had lingered beyond her time—faded eyes, a withered face, an anecdote, a reminiscence.

The little stories she had told from her rocking chair of late years? Quavering and garrulous they were, as she searched those old, old memories. She had been a lady, yes, oh, yes. A lady of knitted fascinators and gorgeous bustles and lace fichus. But she had been a soldier, too. Very few of those who heard that story believed it. She a soldier! It was hard to think back and believe. She gripped her knitting needles so feebly as she told of carrying a musket through the Civil War. Her eyes were so uncertain as she related how she had been a sharpshooter in Company I, Eighteenth North Carolina Infantry, C. S. A. Tsch tsch tsch! and a rebel yell. Powder smoke and magnolia blossoms. How strange.

Yet it was so. The facts bear her out. Mrs. Lucy Matilda Kenny was once Private Bill Thompson. Before that she was Mrs. Bryant Gauss, and before that she was Miss Matilda Lucy Thompson of Bladen County, North Carolina. Which brings us to the start of her romance—years ago, when there were slaves in North Carolina, when men knew how to bow to ladies, when ladies knew how to faint, gracefully.



MISS MATILDA THOMPSON was the only child of a wealthy planter. He wished, after the manner of pioneers, that she had been a boy. Being a gentleman, he did not tell her so, but allowed her to grow into as much of a boy as she would. Her freedom she accepted with gusto. She learned to ride and to hunt, becoming one of the best rifle shots in Bladen County. That was going a little to extremes because there were many fine marksmen in the countryside. In fact, Miss Matilda rode too well and shot too well to be popular with men. For women it was the day of —er—limbs and hoopskirts, appealing fears, little shrieks, fainting spells. Miss Matilda was considered overmasculine. She grew tall and straight and while yet in her teens weighed 165 pounds—atrocious weight for one who was not fleshy. Girls like her in this day on magazine covers are admired—Miss Matilda was admired, too. but not courted.

She had never had a suitor until Bryant Gauss came along. She had waited for him longer than was the rule with Bladen County misses. Her first love at 40! A lonely woman, with her parents both dead, on a lonely plantation, with no man to look after things. He must have been welcomed, fiercely welcomed in Miss Matilda's heart. He had come not long before loving time should pass for her. Smilax and trumpet flowers and Miss Matilda sighing!

They were married.

THE war came too soon. She had had this husband such a little while. Now he was going away to fight the Yankees. In Blandensborough Capt. Robert Tate and Lieut. Wiley Sykes were recruiting Company I. To them she appealed in a panic. If they took her man they must take her, too. She didn't intend that he should go away to fall on some Northern battlefield without her to look after him. She would march with him.

Just how she prevailed on these officers is not of record. Nor is it known how she wheedled her husband into her plan. But she did. He cut off her hair and saw her fitted in a butternut uniform and named her Private Bill Thompson. Through the streets of Bladensborough she marched beside Private Bryant Gauss, shoulder to shoulder, with her musket carried as bravely as his. A cheer for Dixie. Miss Matilda was off to war!

MRS. LUCY MATILDA KENNY, whose death has brought to light this unusual war story.

She became the pride of Company I. A good soldier and the crack shot of the outfit. She liked to tell in after years, when the waffles were crisp and the tea was fragrant, how the men of Company I made sure of her courage. One dark night when she was doing sentry-go around a woodland bivouac a practical joker tried to pass the lines. He made a terrifying rustle in the bushes and was deaf to her challenges. So she leveled her rifle and fired. The bullet clipped so close that the jokester lost his laugh. He declared himself with a frightened, "Don't shoot." No running away for Miss Matilda.

It must have been a doubly hard ordeal for her. Company I grew ragged and hungry before many months of campaigning. Private Gauss and his wife, Private Bill Thompson, tramped red Virginia roads barefooted and lived on acorn coffee and corn bread. They slept without blankets under cold rains and shot at blue coats with muskets held in numbed hands. Harsh trials for the men of Company I and worse for this lone woman. But she stayed by her man. Bull Run? She was there. Chickahominy? She was there. Gaines Mill, Mechanicsville, Glendale, Malvern Hill? She saw them all.

At the first battle of Bull Run she was wounded. Let her tell it as she used to do, while she darned socks in an easy chair by the fire:

"Forward we went, yelling, amid a rain of rifle bullets. Smoke caught and choked us. We swarmed on after the retreating Yanks. Over their rifle pits we went, and they were slippery with mud and blood. I couldn't see the Yankees, everything was so confused. But now and then there would be a flash of blue and I would fire. The noise was deafening. I only knew I was there, and that at my shoulder, fighting, sometimes saying things beneath his breath, was my husband.

"Then something screamed out of the smoke and a blinding flash was in my eyes and something struck my head"——

That something was a fragment of shell. Her husband caught her up and carried her out of the action. At the field hospital her sex was discovered and she was ordered home.

BUT she did not stay home long. While recovering from her wound she worried about her husband. Dear me, how she hoped he would remember to dry his socks out every night. How she hoped he would remember to take cover during an advance and not fire his rifle with mud in the barrel. The poor man was so careless. She had caught him sniping at Union pickets, yards and yards away from his own lines. No. She could not stay home. She must go back to war and look after him.

They campaigned together once more. Lee was defending Richmond against McClellan's army. Peach Orchard and Savage Station. After them McClellan retreated. Then, Lee attacked the Union army at Malvern in a desperate effort to break it before McClellan could draw out of danger. The lines formed for the battle of Malvern Hill.

That was the day Private Bill Thompson had feared. Some time, she was afraid, Private Gauss would go down. This fear had sustained her through two years of war. She must stay with him. She must be there when he was in danger.

COMPANY I swept up the slope to storm the Union redoubts. Private Bill Thompson and Private Bryant Gauss pressed hands before the charge. No kissing in ranks. No good-byes. They were both soldiers. Ki-yee-oow went the rebel yell and the Union ranks started a roll of musketry.

"Now, stick close to me, Bryant," she said, "in case they come at us with bayonets."

(She was always afraid of bayonet fighting, she used to admit, with a reluctant stab of pin into pincushion during after years.)

So he said he would stay by her side. And on they moved, yelling and fighting. This soldier and his wife.

A little way along a bullet struck him in the heart. He fell and she dropped with him, dragging his body behind a protecting rock. It was the end of Miss Matilda's first love affair.

She resigned from the Confederate army after the battle.

"I must take Bryant home," she explained to her Captain.

IN AFTER years she moved from North Carolina to Savannah, Ga., and married a second time. For a long period she hid the secret of her part in the Civil War. But occasional visitors would trick her into little betrayals as she grew older. As she rocked by a sunny window and the days whirled back again over half a centurry she would say:

"I remember the night Bryant and I and our company got into a fight with the Yankee cavalry . . ."

Can Monkeys Talk? Is the Question Asked by Science

Three Separate Investigations Are Being Made

A DRESSED-UP chimpanzee paraded the streets of Dayton, Tennessee, and the belles of Dayton carried stuffed monkey dolls in their arms. From the hillsides flocked in the mountaineers. From the valleys came the planters. And from cities everywhere in these United States came reporters, photographers, the great news-gathering forces of the nation. Lawyers erupted volcanic oratory. Newspapers printed thousands of columns. And countless thousands of feet of film were ground through the cameras. A world found itself aroused to fascinated interest in the question of evolution, which it had, according to its peoples' moods, either slumberously accepted or vehemently denied. And all that time science, calm, deliberate, dispassionate, was seeking for the truth. It had never said that the monkey was man's ancestor. It only sought to find the relation of the biman—who has two hands—to the quadruman—the four-handed ape.

Meanwhile it was endowing—through the generosity of the Carnegie Foundation—a quarter of a million dollar "monkey palace" at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, wherein to seek in the pre-natal life of the ape some solution to the mysteries which attend the birth of man.

Dr. Carl Gottfried Hartman, professor of zoology at the University of Texas, was arranging to give the next 20 years of his life to searching out the impelling passions of nature, to seeking the influences of heredity, in that great garden of monkeys at Johns Hopkins.

Prof. Robert M. Yerkes, head of the psychology department at Yale, was continuing his studies in the behavior of chimpanzees, an investigation which has already resulted in an all but definite proof that apes have a language of their own.

And down in the Congo, Henri Carton, Belgium's Minister of the Colonies, was arranging the organization of the "Parc National Albert," a great reservation set apart by King Albert to provide a home and a refuge for the manlike gorillas of Africa, that in their native haunts they might be studied by European scientists who seek in those anthropoid apes a clew to the origin and destinies of human and animal life.

It is the same scientific search for knowledge that made Prof. Richard Lynch Gardner famous 20 years ago. Prof. Gardner, it will be remembered, sat in a steel cage in the midst of the African jungle and carefully annotated the monkeys' jabberings—concluding, he declared, that monkeys do have a language of their own and announcing that he could understand and imitate it.

MRS. BLANCHE W. LEARNED, co-operating with Prof. Yerkes of Yale, has studied two young chimpanzees, a male and a female, brought by Prof. Yerkes from Africa. The male was called "Chim," the other's name was "Panzee." They were studied as an intelligent parent might study the development of vocal expression in his child. The sounds instinctively connected with the motive forces of their actions, with the simplest of emotions, with their strongest passions—were carefully recorded as a stenographer might take a letter in dictation. Their responses to sudden emergencies of condition were written down, both as in action and in speech. Witness Panzee's cry when frightened by a sudden wind (Fig. 1), as put down in musical annotation. Or the cry of that chimpanzee (Fig. 2) when she thought she had been deserted by her little playmate.

"There had been a large party of guests," Mrs. Learned said in explaining the latter, "during whose stay Chim had received much adulation from the younger people. He was loath to leave when it came time for him and Panzee to go indoors. He avoided the issue at first by climbing a large tree, where he seemed inclined to stay. Miss M. took Panzee and started off without him, in the hope that he would follow. After they had gone some little distance Panzee looked around and, finding that Chim was not with her, went back after him. She had gone about half the distance when she seemed to realize that she was alone and began to scream.

"When Chim heard this he ran up, put his arm around her and helped her as gently as possible to Miss M., thus atoning by his tenderness for his many sins of rough treatment in play."

Boma, a chimpanzee in the New York Zoo, was the subject of experiment later. He was highly articulate and had a full baritone voice. Mrs. Leonard repeated to him words she had learned of Chim and presented him with a large juicy apple. He smiled "a broad smile of appreciation."

But, said Mrs. Learned, there was "no indication that Boma used a food word comparable to that which Chim and Panzee used—gahk, or one of its variants." Permission was asked to feed him in the hope of gaining a response to the younger chimpanzee's words as they were spoken rapidly while offering him food. So the apple was given and "gahk" repeated. He retired to his perch to eat it and then responded: "GAH-GAH-AH-AH-GAH-GAH." Later while eating his favorite dish of rice and raisins he sang (as in Fig. 3). Mrs. Learned points out that the "Ack" and "Uck" of the solo passage were variants of the "gahk" used for food by Chim and Panzee.

Was the speech of those two little pets but the "baby talk" of the monkey tongue?

Rarely did the young chimpanzees respond to attempts to teach them new words. And certainly the experimenters made no effort to teach them a trick like "begging" for food as a dog sits up and "begs." Yet Chim did learn to utter certain sounds when certain foods were offered. The syllable words used were like BA-BA, NA-NA and CO-CO. He received a banana when he used them aright.

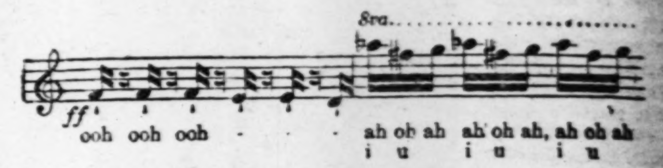
"Sometimes," said Prof. Yerkes, "Chim was allowed to have the banana and again the experimenter took it away in order to continue his interest and attention and if possible increase his eagerness for the reward. Occasionally this procedure induced certain lip movements seemingly in imitation of those of the experimenter. Rarely, as if by accident, Chim would make a sound. Certain slight and unconvincing intimations of attempts to make sounds appeared. The training test was continued for several weeks, but apart from the above encouraging signs, with negative results."

Both chimpanzees are dead now. Pan-

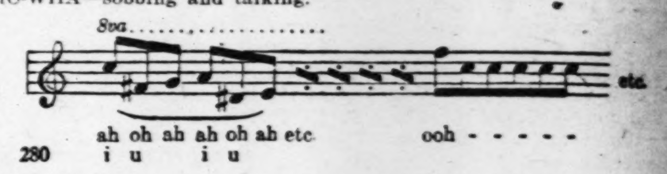
THE MONKEY TONGUE.

IT sounds like the words to an early rag-time song about the jungles, but here is a scientific record of the "language" of two young chimpanzees as transcribed and musically noted by Mrs. Blanche W. Learned, co-operating with Prof. Robert M. Yerkes, head of the Department of Psychology at Yale University.

GAK—a food word, spoken rapidly.
GAH—a food word.
KAHK—food word with the vowel prolonged.
GHA and GHAK—words spoken under excitement.
GHO and GHOO—words repeated in greeting friends.
GA-HA—spoken by Chim to a mechanic with blackened face and clothing.
KAH-KAH—word spoken when unhappy or penitent.
KO-KO and KU-KU—emphatic whispers used under excitement.



OOH, OOH, etc. (as above) spoken by Panzee when frightened by a high wind.
KA-KA—word used when sharply bitten in a fight.
KY-AH—a cry of distress.
KUOH—signifying very hungry.
KAH-HAH, KAH-HA-HA—laughter.
HOMOH—alarm. Uttered with prolonged vowel in first syllable with voice dropping low in the second.
HO-WHA—sobbing and talking.



AH, OH, AH, etc. (as above), Panzee's cry of loneliness and distress when separated from Chim.
HO-WHA—sobbing and talking.
WHAH—enthusiastic greeting under stress.
WHO-AH—loud energetic welcome to food brought when hungry.
NGAK—an intensive variant of the food word GAK.
NKAK—an irritated variant of the food word GAK.
MMM—a sound emitted with lips closed which is often significant and in many instances is connected with the motif of fruit.
AH-OH-AH—a half scream in apprehension.
OOOH—pleading.
UE—a cry of pain.

Both chimpanzees are dead now. Panzee from tuberculosis, Chim from a cold.

WHILE Prof. Yerkes was seeking to learn the language of apes Prof. Pfungst, in Germany, was studying the influence of environment upon a Celebes ape, which at the age of two days had been taken from its parents and placed in a children's clinic at Frankfort. Risiko was its name and Risiko had a special nurse, good furniture and a clean room. Which, the scientist wondered, would have the strongest influence on him, hereditary instinct or environment?

The first surprise was when Risiko sucked his thumb. Monkeys do not suck their thumbs. Risiko had never seen a human baby, but he developed this characteristic of the human baby amid human surroundings. And there the possible influence of environment ended. For the rest Risiko was a monkey. When angry he opened his mouth in fury, as do all apes. When any object excited his curiosity he tried to pick it to pieces. He showed pleasure by confused gestures and increased activity. He searched—although both he and the nurse were quite free from anything of the kind—for vermin, just as his forbears did.

Four years passed with Dr. Pfungst still seeking to unriddle from Risiko's actions the ape's relationship to man. At the end of four years it was decided nothing more might be learned. Risiko was introduced to his own kind.

He was terrified at the first of his kind he saw. He shivered and cried out in pitiful tones. Then, delight overcame him. He seemed to realize that the strange beasts were his own kin. He rushed up to them with delirious joy and gave evidence of lively affection. He was ape, by nature, by instinct, by heredity. Environment could not make him something else.

FOR years scientific teachers of English have studied the beginnings of speech. It may be that the studies undertaken by Prof. Yerkes will help them solve the problem of why certain sounds are used to express certain emotions.

For years students of man have sought to develop the respective forces of heredity and environment in relation to man's character and his destiny. What was learned from Risiko may serve as a clew to discoveries upon which our future social science may be based. The end of these studies is not yet. It will not come until man understands—if he ever understands—the answer to the riddle of life itself.

That is why the experiments to be undertaken at Johns Hopkins are so important that a quarter of a million dollars has been set aside for them, and why the distinguished scientist who is to undertake them is pledged to spend 20 years of his life in his task. The ape matures and reproduces itself much more quickly than man. In 20 years a scientist can follow through the life processes of a monkey as far as could be followed through the generations of man for 300 years.

Dr. George L. Streeter, director of the department of embryology, Carnegie Institute, Washington, who will have general supervision over the experiment at Johns Hopkins, explains its purpose thus:

"In order to seek information on the early development of man Dr. Hartman will conduct his investigations. The monkeys afford a chance to observe, all along the early stages of growth, what we cannot follow with any degree of facility in human specimens. It is hoped that the colony will reveal many of the secrets we have been endeavoring to discover in the history of man anterior to his birth.

"There are certain gaps in the series of our knowledge of the physiology of the developing human child and its mother. What we know about humans will be checked with the material gained from the observation of monkeys and it is hoped that some of these gaps will be filled.

"We will study macaques, an ape about the size of a small dog, because higher types of monkey, like the chimpanzee, are harder to obtain, not so easy to handle and are not hardy in captivity. Furthermore, if a large chimpanzee in the colony became angered, the researches of some of us might end once and for all."

APING MAN?

Dr. Hartman will place his simians in surroundings as much like those of their native jungles as possible and will guard them as far as he can from disturbing influences. He expects to spend day after day quietly among them, until, accustomed to his presence, they will follow their natural course of life and give free rein to their native instincts.

Besides questions of pre-natal physiology Dr. Hartman hopes to determine just what is the gap between other forms of animal life and man.

He hopes to learn if science can project the advanced animals into types of a higher plane, types near to man. He would like to learn, in short, if it is in the power of science to create the "missing link" and thereby complete the cycle of evolution, definite record of which was broken somewhere in prehistoric aeons.

ALREADY European scientists are planning to take advantage in their studies of Belgium's great Parc National Albert, in the heart of Africa, where, on March 2, this year, King Albert set aside a domain as large as some American states as a kingdom of refuge for the gorilla.

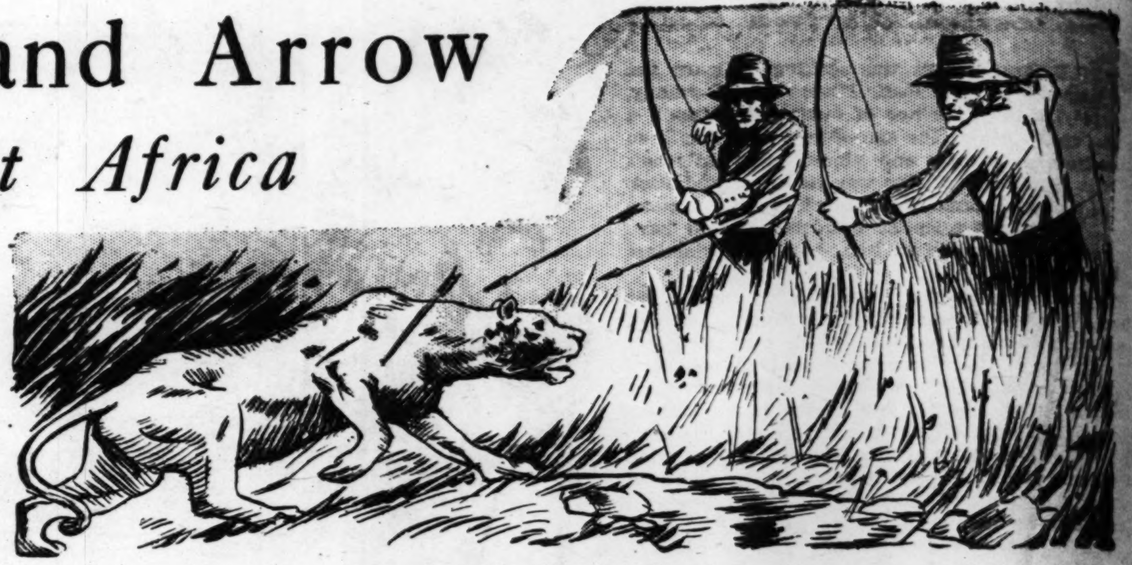
That anthropoid is the nearest physically of all great apes to man. How near he is psychologically is what science wants to know. Accordingly this great sanctuary has been formed. Nets, traps and firearms are forbidden. Humans, except qualified caretakers, may not enter except upon scientific missions properly accredited. The animals are not to be disturbed in this, their natural home, which contains three great mountains, beautiful forests, and great rivers flowing respectively to the Mediterranean, the Atlantic and Indian oceans. It is several hundred square miles in extent.

THUS all the while the orators were spouting and the lawyers were wrangling at Dayton, Tenn., science, silently, was going about its business—spending all this time, this thought, this energy, this money. To establish the kinship between man and monkey? Not at all. To establish the facts of life.

For when it knows those facts—if it ever does—science will have solved the riddle of mankind.

With Bow and Arrow

In Darkest Africa



"Stopping the charge with arrows."

By SAXTON POPE.

Article IV.

SIMSON'S CAMP, TANGANYIKA, British East Africa, April 30.—Arthur Young and I are sitting in a blind near the Sironera River waiting for game, our long sharp arrows and strong graceful bows by our sides. This morning we are photographing game, and if chance presents a fair shot we will take it with the bow. While we wait I write this note. (Two days ago a lion made a kill at this very place.)

The past week has been a strenuous one for us with these lions. This completes our second week in Tanganyika and we have seen over 90 different lions. A game-hog with his battery of rifles could have killed fully a third of these noble beasts. We have shot 12.

Of this number we have killed four with the bow and arrow and eight with the gun. These latter were lions that charged at close quarters after we had attempted to photograph them, or after we had shot at them with arrows.

In some instances the charges have been terrific and the oncoming animal has been stopped at a few paces from our group. The gun on these occasions is a life-saving institution, but from an archer's standpoint it is a confession of weakness, and as archers we hereby confess our utter incapacity to stop charging lions with our tackle. The part the gun man plays in the game we look upon as a necessary evil so far as we are concerned. In itself, it is, of course, a fair sport, but one so often told in African tales that there is no great novelty in it. Any good game shot equipped with the requisite artillery can and does succeed at this lion business.

To be charged by a galloping, grunting, deadly lion is exhilarating, especially when one has the feeling of security given by modern explosives and rifle perfection. You can stand as I do, and calmly snap the camera.

But that is not the saga we would sing. That is an oft-told tale of the modern "mighty hunter." We would sing of the bow, the weapon that gave man his first triumph over his predatory enemies and crowned his brow with laurels of victory in battle.

In the bow and flying shaft man hurls his own soul at the mark. It is part of him, and when he strikes he has fairly won his game. He calls on no magic from the clouds, no favors from the gods.

But the bow has its limitations, otherwise modern ingenuity would not have sought mightier weapons. But the limitations of the bow can be supplemented and greatly advanced by the use of allied primitive arms. We speak of the shield and the spear. These are the very things we want in our archaic pursuit of dangerous game.

IN THESE very plains where we today are assaulting lions, two years ago Klein (for the movies) brought a small band of African natives, the Naudi. Ten of these men attacked and killed with their spears three charging lions. Absolutely nude except for their gorgeous headdress, armed with a spear, a throwing knife and a buffalo-hide shield, they challenged and overcame one lion after another with utmost bravery. Klein took moving pictures of them as they received the infuriated attack on their shields and annihilated the oncoming beast with their spears. That is real sport, compared with which the white man's gun game is pitiable.

We could do this, too, if we had the numbers and the requisite practice, for the white man can do what any man can do, and usually does it better. Gladly would we risk injury for the thrill of such a triumph. With the bow to hurl defiance and skillfully strike at a distance, then with the spear to meet the charge if needed, our sport would indeed be a royal one, fit for men and lions. In the absence of numbers and experience among ourselves we shall call upon men of our own type of hunting and as soon as possible do the complete act, a contest of men armed only with primitive weapons and lions armed with tooth and claw. All other than this we shall count as failure.

In all the ancient battles the archer was a deadly auxiliary of the army, but he always needed protection from charging cavalry. For this defense spearmen, trenches, shields and pikes were used. 'Twas ever thus. But the arrows won most battles in medieval times. The arrow is adequate to slay the king of beasts, this we know now from our own experience. More than this, where the shaft can be placed in a lion, it distracts his attention from the hunter to the arrow. He fights this and thus permits another shot, and it delays the charge till death overtakes him.

I HAVE on an undeveloped film there in my knapsack a picture of a great lion rearing, rampant, and striking with his heavy-muscled arm vainly at my white arrow in his forehead. In that very attitude my companion, Arthur Young, shooting at 65 yards, drove another arrow in his heart and killed him.

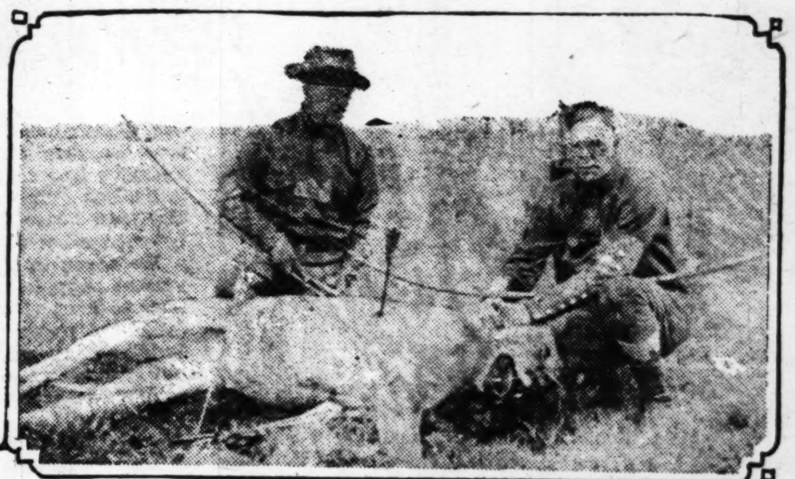
This lion is our last, slain with a bow—last of four. He was brought to bay in the long grass of the veldt and lay, lashing his tail and muttering threats, some 65 yards off.

This is good shooting range for our bows. The heavy hunting arrows travel nearly "point blank" at this distance. So we started in on him. After a flight or two we had his distance and began hitting him. As he was struck by one arrow, then another, he lunged at the offending shaft and ground it in his teeth—he even bounded out a short way to seize and destroy them. Later, when he was dead, we found the feathered ends of two in his throat where he had tried to swallow them.

This particular animal was not only struck in the head and heart, but a deep, penetrating wound through the liver and blood vessels of the abdomen flooded his body with blood and would also have been fatal.

He died an archer's trophy, nearly 400 pounds in weight and nine feet in length.

As a surgeon I perform the autopsy on all these beasts that we slay, not only to ascertain the exact nature of our missiles, but to learn what diseases these creatures of the open spaces have. I have been requested, moreover, by Dr. Metziger of the Mayo clinic, to make a study of the comparative anatomy of the gall ducts of all the African species of Mammalia that fall within our observation. This I am doing. The knowledge thus gained is directly applicable to the problem of gall-bladder surgery in the human.



THE KILL—By bow and arrow alone.

SKINNING the King of Beasts.

Sensitive souls who cannot bear to hear of blood or interior anatomy should avoid reading these field notes, for we are in a land of stalking death and grewsome realities.

The two other lions killed with our bows were shot at distances of 68 yards and 46 yards respectively. Both were large males. The first received an arrow wound deep through the chest and diaphragm, the second was transfixed by a feathered shaft through the abdomen, besides minor injuries. In each case the beast refused to charge and the wounds were eventually fatal.

The hide of a lion is extremely tough and often an arrow goes diagonally through the body and bulges the hide on the opposite side. We have shot completely through a full-sized lion, side on, and had the arrow carry several yards past him.

In the instance of the lion shot in the heart, this arrow entered at the shoulder, pierced the heavy muscles of this region without striking bone, and penetrated the chest wall by cutting the second rib in two.

We have seen bullets from a 405 Winchester and a Springfield rifle stopped by no greater resistance and lodge harmlessly in the flesh.

OUR trophies are, of course, skinned in the field and will be brought back to America with us. During this skinning process we are subject to several annoyances, not the least of which is the attack made upon us by the swarms of lion flies that beset us. They seem to be a mixture between a fly, a tick and a bee and have a yellow fuzzy likeness and the pertinacity of a miniature lion. They cling and bite with ferocity, and even after one catches them in the hand they are tough and difficult to destroy. Then when you have the lion's hide safely in your possession a migration of black ticks starts from the cooling skin of their late host to the new and inviting fields of the hunter. They cause a distressing febrile reaction that one would gladly avoid if possible.

Lions themselves seem quite subject to disease. They show evidence of old pneumonia; they have the mange and most of them entertain several kinds of intestinal worms. They have, moreover, in many instances, old and recently incurred wounds in various stages of infection. These have been received in the family fights, which seem to mar their otherwise beautiful family life. They are also said to be quite, if not completely, monogamous; but sad to relate, when a female is bereft of her lord and master, through the evil intervention of some invidious hunter, the lonely lioness finds consolation and another mate almost the next night.

HAVING written this much, I glance up, as I have done many times during the scribble, and see the dusty herds of wildebeest hovering in the offing. They came to drink twice, they and a herd of zebra together. But the wind is strong and gusty and carries our scent off on the plains, and they fear to come again. Up wind from us a hundred Thompson's gazelles congregated, fought among themselves and frolicked. Drinking they do but little. But the sequence of animals seems to be quite a ceremony and they must come in their proper order or not at all.

We arrived at the blind at daybreak, after being kept awake a good part of the night by trampling droves of zebras, belligerent lions within stone throw of our huts and the devilish wails of hyenas.

The first comers to our watering hole were jackals—pretty little creatures, more like our foxes than a coyote. They are graceful and intelligent. Yesterday we saw one off on the veldt walk up to a gluttonous hyena, bluff him into dropping a hunk of meat and run away with it, while an envious vulture flopped his funereal wings nearby and laughed, silently.

After the jackals at the pool come birds, parrakeets, sand grouse, doves and small fry. Then come the dainty Tommies, then zebra and wildebeest, all dashing into the water and making it muddy, starting at the clatter of a pebble and all rushing out again. Then they wheel and slowly approach, some leader braying and calling assurance to the rest. We snap a camera and off they rush. After an hour, slowly, the Topi, those large lugubrious antelope, come in small numbers and draw near to drink.

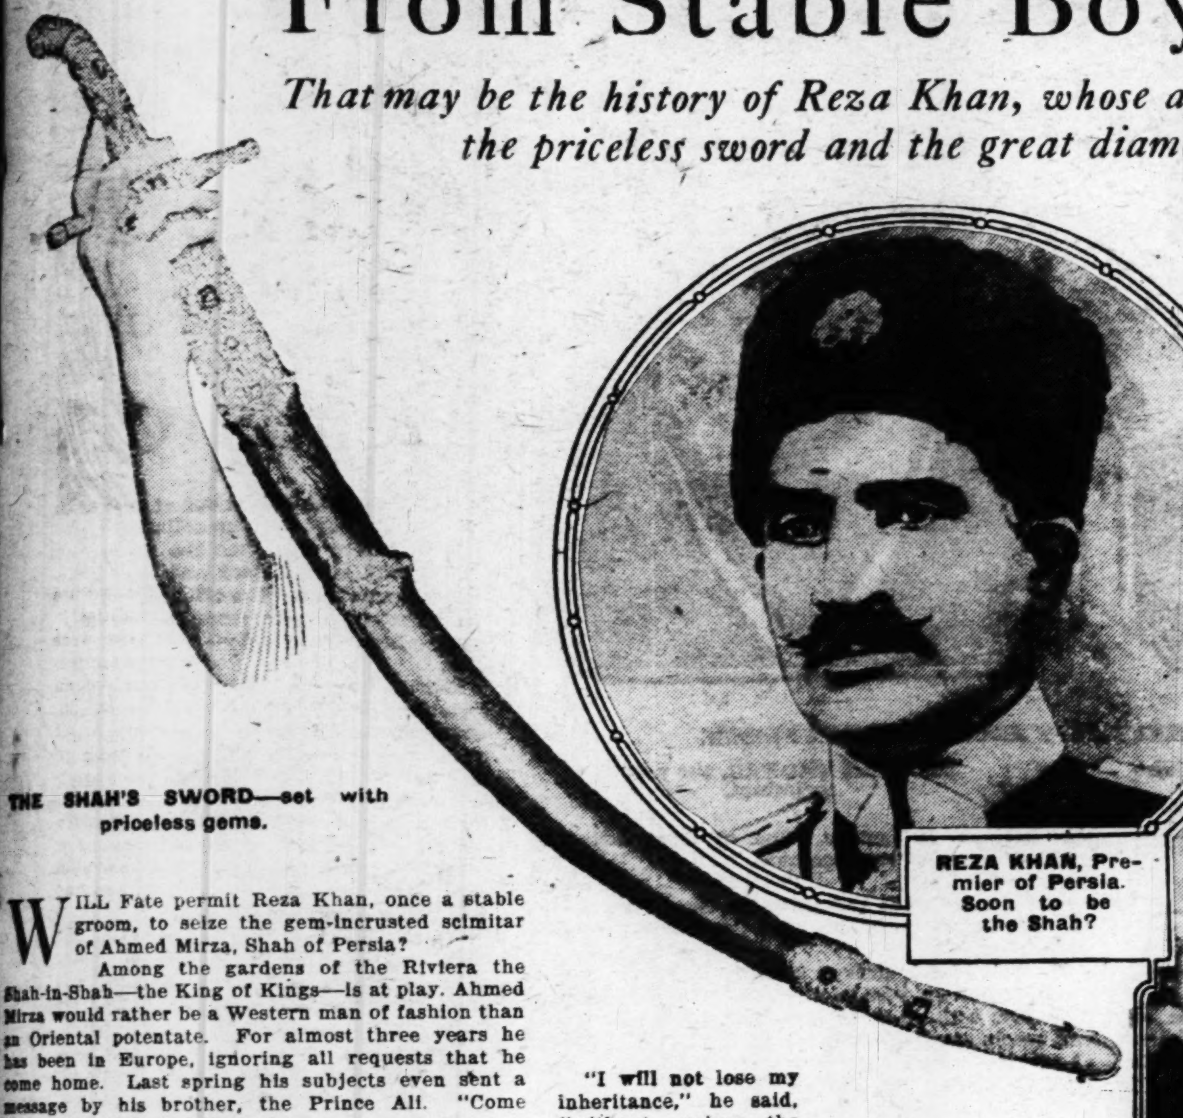
From Stable Boy to Shah

That may be the history of Reza Khan, whose ambitious eye is fixed upon the priceless sword and the great diamond beyond price



THE SHAH'S SWORD—set with priceless gems.

REZA KHAN, Premier of Persia. Soon to be the Shah?

The one-hundred-carat Persian diamond.

WILL Fate permit Reza Khan, once a stable groom, to seize the gem-incrusted scimitar of Ahmed Mirza, Shah of Persia?

Among the gardens of the Riviera the Shah-in-Shah—the King of Kings—is at play. Ahmed Mirza would rather be a Western man of fashion than an Oriental potentate. For almost three years he has been in Europe, ignoring all requests that he come home. Last spring his subjects even sent a message by his brother, the Prince Ali. "Come home," it said, "or abdicate."

"I shall go home," said Shah Ahmed Mirza. But Monte Carlo beckoned to him and soon there was to be the carnival at Nice—a carnival in which he appeared as a gentleman from the court of Louis XVI. On the Riviera laughter, gayety, charming companions—and his life is safe.

But back in Persia, quarrels, politics, the troubles of state. And some morning—who knows?—the world may hear that Shah Ahmed Mirza has quaveh khord—drunk a cup of coffee! Quaveh khord . . . it is the Orient speaking in parables . . . someone has quietly been murdered by poison.

His life is worth more to Ahmed Mirza than the jeweled scimitar of the Shah-in-Shah. And besides, argues Ahmed Mirza, who has been a King since he was a little boy, what's the use of being a King if you can't do what you wish? So he keeps his court in the fashionable cities of France and there he is surrounded by a splendid retinue, and besieged by all sorts of persons—many of them pretty stenographers—who are seeking lucrative positions in the entourage of "le petit Shah."

As for the scimitar, with its hilt and golden scabbard incrusted with priceless jewels—the symbol of Persia's long-gone glory—and its damascened blade of the keenest steel—the symbol of his father's bloody history—twice has Reza Khan sought to seize that sword and twice has failed.

"Kismet," says Ahmed Mirza. "It is Fate. It is the will of Allah, destroyer of dynasties and the severer of societies."

Those words are from Burton's "Arabian Nights"—but the thousand and one nights did not produce a tale more strange than that of Reza Khan, groom, doorman, Cossack soldier once, today Minister of War, Prime Minister and actual ruler of Persia.

HAROUN-AL-RASCHID in ancient Bagdad could scarcely have found a figure more romantic than this former groom who now is Sirdar Sipah—the actual ruler of Persia. He is a tall, swarthy, imposing man, whose eyes glitter like points of steel. His carriage is as haughty as though it were he who should sit by right on the Peacock throne. Crisp black is the hair beneath his wooly cap. Deep-set are the eyes, with their heavy brows of black. A long nose and a delicately curved nostril suggest generations of noble blood. Sensual and Oriental are his lips. His mouth full, but straight, hides beneath a little spiked moustache. And he wears a gorgeous uniform as one to the manner born.

As a youth he was a stable boy, a groom in the stables of the late Mohammed Ali Mirza, father of the present Shah, who was kicked from his throne in 1909 after his two years of reign—a continual fight against the new Constitution of the country—had resulted in absolute anarchy within his realm.

Through the long days Reza Khan had wiped the silken coats of the Shah-in-Shah's horses with a rag that was certainly quite the equal of the clothes he wore. His wage was a pittance. He was thankful for the scraps that were thrown to him as food.

Then came the day of the accounting. A hundred thousand Persians had honored the tomb of the slayer of Mohammed Ali Mirza's Premier. That was a foretaste. The Shah's revenues were cut down. He defied the Parliament. There was an attempt to assassinate him. He threatened to blow up Teheran, capital city of Persia, if the people resisted his will.

"I will not lose my inheritance," he said, "without using the sword."

BLOOD ran in the streets of Teheran. The Shah opened a fire of musketry upon the House of Parliament on the morning of June 23, 1908. Big guns were used and then the Cossacks. Thousands were butchered. Rapine and pillage followed. The artillery was turned on the houses of those whom Mohammed Ali Mirza called his enemies. Anarchy was complete. Then the upheaval. The Nationalists rose and seized the Government. The Shah abdicated and Ahmed Mirza, his 11-year-old son, was put in his place upon the Peacock throne.

And somehow—how he himself scarcely knew—in that upheaval the groom from the Shah-in-Shah's stables found himself out of rags and into a uniform. He was a keeper, an attendant, at the palace door. And there he stayed, proud as the peacock itself, of his uniform and his position, until there came the war. The doorkeeper became a Cossack. Raised in the stable, he could ride anything. He was obedient and a daredevil. Belief in "kismet" robbed him of fear. So that by the end of the war he had risen to be a junior officer. That was a commonplace of war-time achievement.

The flame and hate of war died down. Major-General Sir Edmund Ironside, in command of the British forces in Northwest Persia, looked around for someone to organize the rabble of the Persian army into a body of efficient soldiers. His choice fell on the handsome junior officer who had been a groom in the stables of the Shah.

The Cossack now became Reza Khan. The man had military genius and indomitable will. He found himself the chieftain of many thousands of ill-trained soldiers. He picked his subordinates. He got expert drillmasters. Within a year he was head of a real army, more powerful than any Minister of the Shah. In 1922 he was master of the situation. Within a few months Shah Ahmed Mirza left Teheran to visit Europe. He hasn't dared to go back since.

Now Reza Khan has an army of 40,000 soldiers—and they all of them are glorified tax collectors. He needs more money, for more men, to get more power. And he hasn't the power as a mere Minister to get the money. That is why he conceived the idea of a republic. Then he would be President.

THE mollahs, a religious body who traditionally are priests and Judges, feared a republic lest they lose their mudakhil—which is "graft." These clericals organized a counter movement.

March 21, last year—Persian New Year's Day—had been chosen for the coup d'etat. Religious fanaticism was fanned to a fever. There were threatening demonstrations. Reza Khan closed the bazars to free the streets of crowds and the merchants joined the clericals in their resistance. So did some of Reza Khan's own troops. The Sirdar Sipah for once had met his master. He didn't dare. Instead, as Premier, he issued a decree that a republic is incompatible with the religion of Islam, and forbade even discussing republican government in Persia, under heavy penalties.

The fever of fanaticism had flamed too high for safety. As its result Maj. Imbrie, American Vice Consul at Teheran, was murdered by a mad religious mob when he sought to take a picture of a sacred place. It was costly, as well as shocking—that murder—but Reza Khan paid. He could not afford to dare an open rupture with America.

THE SHAH OF PERSIA. Is he slipping?

When the plot for the republic failed Reza Khan sent out a feeler. It was reported that by reason of the plot's failure the monarchists had carried off a coup and established a 2-year-old son of Shah Ahmed Mirza as his successor. The world accepted the rumor and paid no attention. There was no storm of protest either at home or abroad.

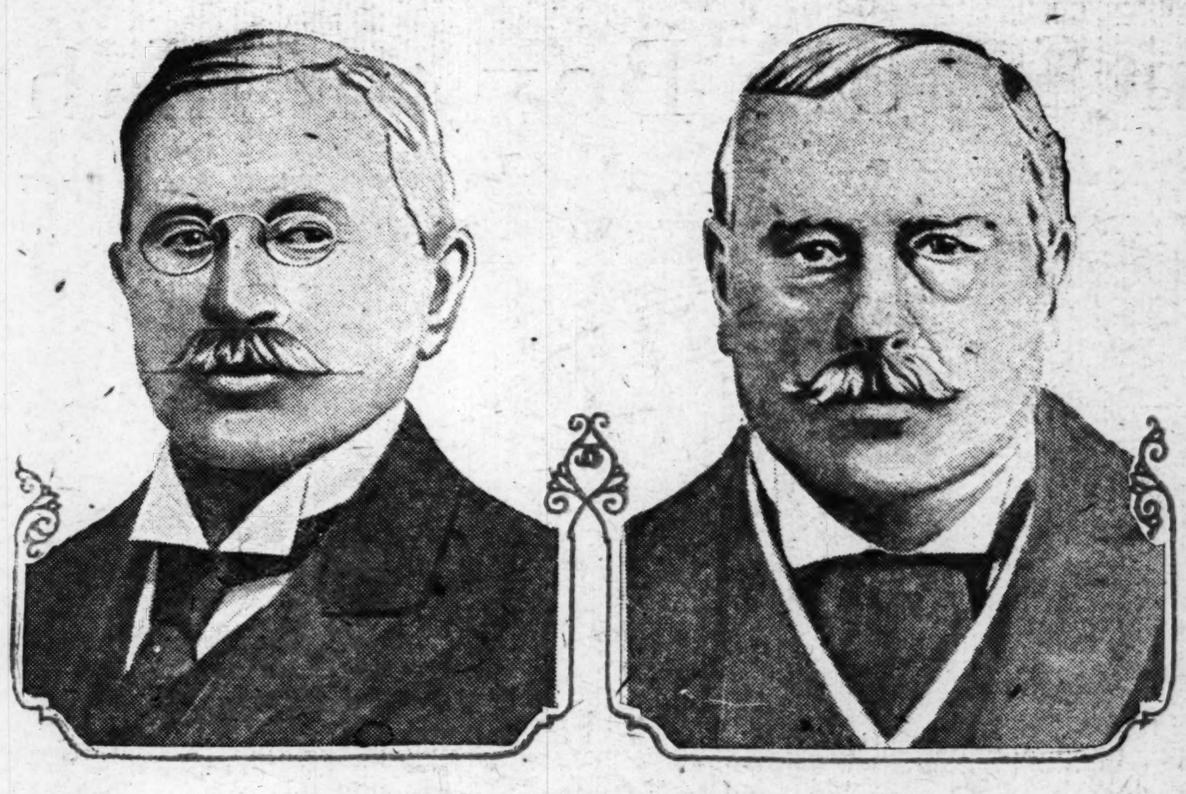
And that opened the way this spring for the imperative message sent from Teheran to the runaway Shah, who was delighting himself upon the Riviera.

"I'll come," answered Ahmed Mirza. And when he still delayed he proffered as a reason that his health would not permit.

Possibly he is right. In his European sojourn, by rigorous diet and strenuous exercise, he has reduced his weight from 230 pounds to 175. Physicians advised that treatment, for his fat was unhealthy and premature. Perhaps a return to Persia would bring it back again. That may be what he fears.

Or perhaps—and again maybe—he sees the shadow of the "drink of coffee."

Anyway, what's the use of being a King if you can't have a good time?



THIS SLIGHT RESEMBLANCE KEPT ADOLPH BECK IN PRISON.

ADOLPH BECK, the unfortunate double of the real thief.

WILLIAM THOMAS, the actual criminal.

By Harry R Burke

LONDON, July 22.—Sir Forrest Fulton, formerly Recorder of London, died at his country home at Sheringham, late Thursday night, aged 79. He retired three years ago."

Thus ran the insignificant cable dispatch. It continued: "Sir Forrest, when Judge, sentenced Mr. Adolph Beck for common fraud. Mr. Beck was eventually exonorated, granted a free pardon and awarded $25,000. It was believed that but for influential friends Sir Forrest would have been broken."

So the newspaper wrote "Finis" to the tragedy of an innocent man, twice convicted of contemptible crimes because he happened to look like a notorious swindler.

William Thomas, alias John Smith, is dead. He did not long survive his rightful term of penal servitude. Adolph Beck is dead. Gold could not pay for his broken heart, could not make up to him for the years he spent in prison. He had lost his grip on life, and his grip on gold as well, and he died penniless, despite what England gave him.

Sir Forrest Fulton has now joined them.

JOHN SMITH, as he gave his name, was convicted at Old Bailey May 7, 1877, for swindling. His crime was most contemptible. His victims were those unfortunate outcasts, the women of London's streets.

Striking up an acquaintance with one of them he would introduce himself as "Lord Willoughby." He would talk of his beautiful home in St. John's Wood. He would propose that the woman share that establishment or accompany him—according to the season—to the Riviera, to Switzerland, to Ostend, Paris or Venice. He would give her an order on Howell & James, fashionable costumers, for her outfit. He would borrow a ring to make sure his jewelers would be able to fit her finger exactly in mounting some diamonds he was to have set for her. He would give her a check for perhaps a hundred dollars—"just for pin money."

Then, usually, he would discover that his valet "forgot to place money in my pockets. Have you any loose change?"

Thus far to the flattered woman "Lord Willoughby" was a fairy godfather. Put off her guard by the combination of his impetuous wooing and her wonderful good fortune, the poor victim usually intrusted him with every penny she might have.

"Lord Willoughby" disappeared. The check, of course, was worthless. The order for clothing was dishonored. And the woman, if she ever saw her jewels again, found them in a pawnshop.

There were three charges of this sort against John Smith as he stood in the dock at Old Bailey, May 7, 1877. On two he was convicted and sentenced to five years' hard labor at Portsmouth Prison, where, at his own request, he was entered on the records as a Jew.

Of his birthright in the Hebrew faith there was physical evidence, according to the report of the prison physician, but in making up the prison record of the man some clerk failed to record that fact—to the cost of Adolph Beck.

Smith was released. He went to Australia. There he successfully posed and practiced—as a doctor. Thirteen years later he was back in England under the name of Augustus Wilhelm Meyer. Later, under another name—as Dr. Marsh—he was running a jewelry business in London. But of these facts the police at the time were ignorant.

THEN came upon the scene the most remarkable "double" to a criminal that the history of police records show.

He was Adolph Beck, a Norwegian, 55 years old, a sort of broker, who haunted the offices of London financiers with an array of mining options and mineral specimens from strange and inaccessible corners of all the world. He had started life as a ship broker's clerk. He had sailed the seas. He had prospected for silver in Bolivia, for petroleum in Chile, for copper in Norway, for gold in South Africa. Once, by the sale of mining property, he had made a $40,000 commission. Within a few years he had spent it all in a fruitless attempt to develop his Norway copper properties. He was poor, self-effacing, and in business relations punctiliously honorable. In the offices of the financiers he haunted the clerks facetiously referred to him as "The Shadow."

POLICE CONSTABLE EDWARDS, on the afternoon of Dec. 16, 1895, stood on duty by the clock near the corner of Vauxhall Bridge road and Victoria street. On the opposite corner a man and a woman were bitterly quarreling. The constable heard the woman's voice rise in a tide of Billingsgate. He crossed the road and the woman, who was Ottilie Messonier, a creature of the streets, accused the man, who was Adolph Beck, of having stolen two watches from her on the pretext of having them repaired.

He had stopped her on the street, she said, with: "Pardon me, but aren't you Lady Egerton?" and from that had introduced himself as "Lord Willoughby." In the acquaintance which followed he had asked her to accompany him to the Riviera. He had given her a check for $200 for clothing. He had taken her ring to have it copied, and her two watches to have them repaired.

All this, of course, Adolph Beck denied. He swore he had never seen the woman until that hour.

Police Constable Edwards had heard of just such cases before. He sent for Daisy Grant, a victim. She identified Beck as having defrauded her under the name of Lord Willoughby. So did Kate Brakefield, another. By Jan. 30, 1896, not less than 10 women had sworn positively that Adolph Beck had swindled them after dazzling them with a high-sounding

Sir Forrest Fulton, in wig and n, was on the ch as Judge. Horace Avery, ow Mr. Justice ery, was prosecuting, and Sir arles Gill, not yet Baronet, was de ding.

Depositions in the ice court led the ense to believe e of the felony ictments charg Beck with be Smith would be ed. It had ar nged for witnesses show Beck could be Smith and nce was guiltless both crimes, since e same man, the te had charged, d been guilty of th. One after another the women swore to the identi fication. The police officers followed. Gurrin was lled to testify as to handwriting. “Did the same an,” asked Sir Charles Gill, in cross-examination, s he shoved letters from Beck in South America, “write these and those worthless checks?”

Upon the answer depended Beck's one chance for eedom.

“The question,” said Judge Fulton, “is calcu ted to mislead the jury. Whether Beck is the n convicted in 1877 is inadmissable, because it re tes to another issue, not in this case.”

The prisoner's evidence act had not come into rce. The defendant in England, then, could not ke the witness stand in his own defense.

Collapse was complete. Beck was found guilty.

“YOURS is a base and heartless crime,” declared the Judge in passing sentence of five years upon the convicted mining man.

Beck's attorneys asked for an appeal on the ground that the evidence regarding Beck's presence in South America when Smith was swindling Lon don women was pertinent and should have been included.

The Judge denied the appeal. Beck went to Portsmouth Prison. The authorities gave him Smith's old number, D525, adding to it the letter W, to show he had been convicted twice. Five years passed. Broken in heart and in health, Beck was released on a ticket-of-leave in 1901.

From prison he had addressed 16 petitions to the Home Office asking for a review of his case. He, an innocent man, could not understand the character of what he believed to be a conspiracy to ruin and imprison him.

He had managed to discover Smith's nationality and his statement was confirmed by letter of the prison physician who examined the man. But the Home Office simply let the matter drop. And it did so, largely, it would seem, upon the recommendation of Sir Forrest Fulton, who spoke of the “overwhelming evidence of identity” to which he had listened while on the bench, and who was inclined “to regard the South American alibi” with great suspicion. He was ready to admit, if physical proof should show it, that Smith and Beck were different men, but he wrote in conclusion that he was far from sure whether the doctor's letter was “official or not,” and that “the crime was of such an exceptionally cowardly, selfish and cruel nature it fully deserved the no doubt very severe sentence I passed upon him.”

The Home Office decided to do nothing except order that Beck be given a new prison number, “so that his identity with John Smith should not be affirmed.”

Freed from prison, Adolph Beck started life's battle again. He had come by about $3000 through the sale of some mining property. He hawked his mineral samples from broker to broker in the London financial center. He was a wreck of a man, broken in spirit, with something of the whipped dog appearing in his looks.

MEANTIME, John Smith, after an adventure with a worthless check, had disappeared to America. It was the spring of 1904 before he came again to London.

It was in March, that year, that Pauline Scott, another of the frail sisterhood, complained to Scotland Yard that “Lord Willoughby” had robbed her.

Inspector Ward listened, thought of Adolph Beck, found that the former convict was in the habit of frequenting a restaurant in Oxford street and took the woman there. She failed to identify the mining broker as the man who had victimized her, but two weeks later picked him out at the corner of Store street and Tottenham Court road, near which he lodged, as the thief.

“It's all a mistake,” he cried, in abject misery, when the woman accused him of taking her watch and ring.

He was taken to Marylebone Police Court. There, next day, Rose Reece, Caroline Singer and Grace Campbell identified him as one who had robbed them under the name of “Lord Willoughby.” Lilly King, another, picked him out from a group of prisoners. He was tried on June 20.

Prison had whipped him. Adolph Beck cringed before the Court as a prisoner might before a jailer. Only once did he fling defiance at the law:

“Before God, my Maker,” he cried, “I am absolutely innocent of every charge brought against me. I have not spoken to or seen any of these women before the detectives sent them against me.”

Efforts to delay the trial had been fruitless. The defense again sought to prove the three sets of crimes were the work of one man—a theory the State would quite willingly accept. But Beck, now penniless, could not raise money to get witnesses to prove his “South America alibi.”

One after another the women took the stand and told their tale. Inspector Ward testified to the prisoner's arrest and the events leading up to it. Gurrin was on hand to swear to the handwriting.

Beck had begged his attorneys to set up the fact of a “double” as his defense. It was so silly, so preposterous to legal ways of thinking, that the plan was refused.

There was this difference between the second and the former trial. Beck was placed in the witness box. He spoke English with difficulty. And he failed to convince the jury.

“Guilty,” was the verdict.

MR. JUSTICE GRANTHAM, sitting for Judge Forrest, who had asked that he be not again forced to try Beck, postponed sentence until the September sessions. Was he playing what Americans call a hunch?”

“I can hardly explain why,” he afterwards wrote, “but I was not satisfied in my own mind. I was convinced that the prisoner did not belong to the criminal classes, but the evidence seemed to point to the conclusion that he had a mania for duping these foolish women, who were so easily gulled by prospects of fine silks, satins and jewelry.”

On the evening of July 7 Inspector Kane of Scotland Yard paid a visit to the Tottenham Road Police Station. He found there an elderly, well-dressed gentleman calling himself William Thomas, who had that afternoon been arrested while attempting to pawn two rings he had obtained from two sisters named Turner. He heard the story—it was strikingly like that told in the two trials of Adolph Beck, at which he had chanced to be present.

He asked to see Thomas, and entered his cell. He saw at once a scar on the point of his right jaw—a mark of identification which more than once had been referred to in the evidence against the mining man.

“Could this,” he asked himself, with amazed eyes, “be the double of Adolph Beck, the mysterious personage that man so often had said existed?”

KANE watched, and waited. His last doubt was removed when the so-called William Thomas was arraigned. In the evidence against him Beulah Turner produced a letter. The handwriting was identical with that on the checks and notes produced in the trials of Beck, and before Beck, of John Smith.

Inspector Kane reported to Scotland Yard at once. Inspector Ward was sent to continue the investigation. “Mr. Beck might easily have been mistaken for him,” he wrote in his report on the prisoner.

Moreover, physical examination showed that William Thomas was the John Smith who had been convicted of just such crimes in 1877.

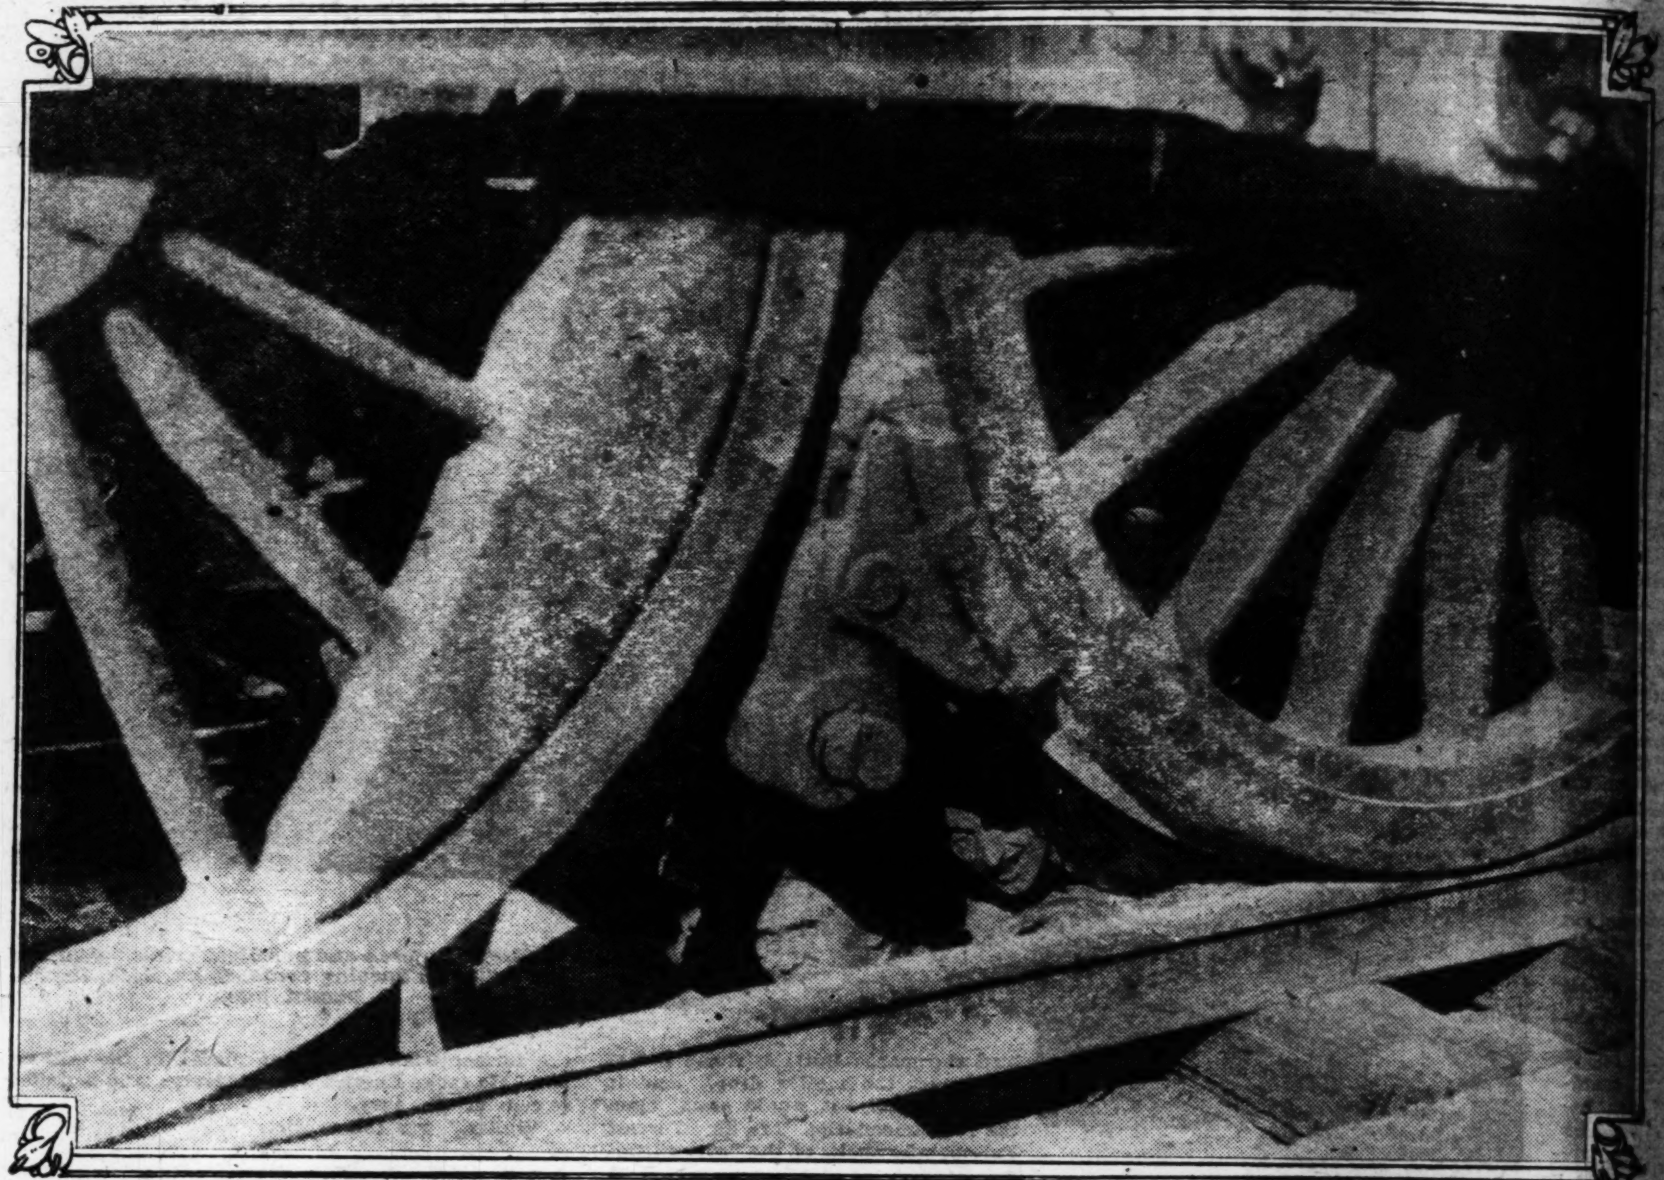
Pauline Scott, Lilly King and Caroline Singer, who had so glibly sworn that Beck was the man who had defrauded them, no sooner saw Thomas than they admitted their error and proclaimed him as the culprit. The women who had given evidence in Beck's first trial could not be found. The underworld of London had engulfed them.

Gurrin, confronted by these facts, unhesitatingly acknowledged that he was wrong—that Smith, not Beck, had written the documents upon which the Norwegian was convicted.

Twelve days after Smith's arrest Adolph Beck was given a free pardon on all the counts against him. In an effort to recompense him for his sufferings and shame the British Government paid him $25,000.

And Smith, convicted on the evidence of Violet and Beulah Turner and one Nellie O'Neil, was sentenced to five years in prison.

England was aroused by a patent miscarriage of justice. There was a committee of inquiry which, in its report, condemned the Home Office for its part in refusing an investigation which would have shown Adolph Beck was not the guilty swindler. And then it was that only influential friends saved Sir Forrest Fulton from being broken.



"Just to find out how a speeding locomotive looks, these camera men risk death beneath the wheels."

THE CAMERA MAN

A Movie Star You Never See

BEFORE you, on the screen, flashes the movie's title; the name of the producer, of the director, too. There may appear the author's name, and in lesser letters are the words:

"Photography by John Doe."

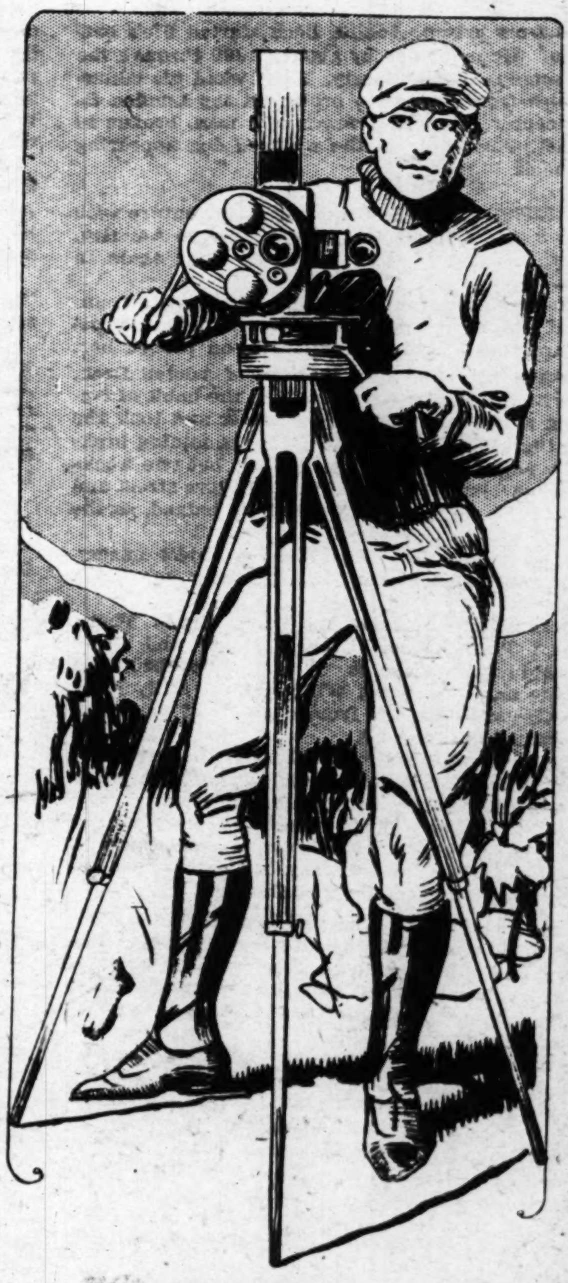
He's a very inconsequent person, this John Doe, you think. Don't deceive yourself. He has lived more thrills, in the course of his work, than the scenario writers can invent.

The truth of the camera man's life is stranger than the movie's fiction. With his cap twisted so the peak is in the rear, he stalks in his puttees into the midst of action. The stunt men who double for fearful and high-priced stars take chances to which by long athletic training they are accustomed. But there is no rehearsal for the camera man. He's flying with a dizzy ace today; he's climbing like a steeple jack tomorrow; last week he was perched on the edge of a glacier like a mountain goat; tomorrow he will be buried beneath a good stout planking shelter to focus his "shot" upon a thundering herd of cattle, maddened by the hazing of buckaroos, stampeding wildly along some narrowed path, and driven toward him with the fury of a hurricane.

It's all right if the shelter holds. Of course. If not—

But the camera man doesn't let himself think of that possibility. His eye—his every thought—is on the picture. He is paid in cash and not in glory. It is only his work, flashed before you on a beam of golden light, that counts. He is a queer combination. Artist and athlete, daredevil and scientific technician. And his ruling passion carries him through hairbreadth escapes that would send the average man to a sanitarium.

"HIS Ruling Passion." It's a fine name for a movie, and the scenario was made to order when a breaker-point burned out in the motor of a plane which Dick Grace, stunt flyer for the movies, was piloting over one of the roughest spots of the Sierra Madre Mountains in California. Norman de Val, camera man for the Fox company, is the hero of this specific film. He was taking scenes from the air of a mountain cabin set for Tom Mix's picture, "Eyes of the Forest." He didn't forget the eyes of the airplane. They were at 1500 feet when the engine stopped.



"We're going to land," shouted Grace to his companion, and added as an afterthought—"somewhere."

"Do your stuff," cried De Val. "At least I'll give 'em a record of how everything looked as we came down."

Bending over the side of the cockpit he focused his camera on the airplane's shadow, and kept cranking as that shape grew bigger and bigger with terrifying rapidity. Grace was dodging pine trees and threatening rocks, and he managed at last to find a tiny bight of open ground, a little level surface, but so late that the plane nosed into the ground, a wreck. The engine block was cracked, the propeller was splintered, one wing was demolished. But De Val, though cut and bruised, held tightly to his camera. The precious film was saved!

Fox has it now, and some day you may look upon it in a serial wherein the heroine, flying to her lover with a last-minute reprieve, is shot down by the pursuing villain and looks in terror at the ground toward which her disabled plane is falling . . . falling.

HE'S been given every sort of problem to tackle, has the camera man, and he has solved them all but one. That one, strangely enough, is a bullfight. Animals don't like the click of a camera and a bull is no exception. Consequently there has been no close-up of those battles which delight the hearts of Spain. Not long since, in "The Siren of Seville," where a bullfight is a part of the play, the camera man shot the scene from a safe place well above the arena. The man who can find a way to get real close-up action pictures of such a contest will have a fortune in his grasp, the producers say. Some day such a man will be found, and then——

"They'll be wanting us to get some close-ups of St. Peter at the pearly gates," says Harry Parry, who is one of the best known camera men in Hollywood.

Possibly they will. Almost everything else the producers have demanded—and have been given. For instance, they asked of Paul Perry to give them a head-on picture of the stampede of 5000 buffalo in "The Last Frontier."

A great pit was dug in the Canadian prairie. Heavy timbers covered it, and earth. In front a little slope was dug away and loopholes were framed of six-inch timbers. It was like a fortress. That might well be, for flanking the camera man were three sharpshooters armed with bix express rifles.

"You are to turn the leaders of the herd before they reach the dugout," were their instructions.

On came the bellowing brutes, the dust rising as in a storm as they raced across the prairie. Shouts of cowboys had infuriated them. The great herd raced right into the eye of the camera, 5000 of them.

hen, exactly in front of the dugout, they divided. they had come straight on the riflemen were to op the leaders. But supposing they hadn't stopped en. Five thousand mad buffalo pounding across at roof, their leaders kicking the earth back into e shallow pit, the others packing it down there.

"But we can't," said Paul Perry, "suppose any ch thing."

OHN FORD, who directed the filming of "The Iron Horse," was not so lucky. He, with George Schneidrmann, his cameraman, and Bernard Guffey, assistant, had crawled into a pit in Nevada to take picures of a herd of steers—presumably steers that ere being driven to slaughter to feed the men who uilt America's first transcontinental railroad. They ere real range cattle that the buckaroos hazed in, nd they were frantic with the noise and the rout nd the alkali dust of the drive. They made a splenid picture until the edge of the timber-roofed pit tarted to cave. The legs of frightened steers began o drop through the hole and by the time the herd as over one pit wall was a wreck. The men were lmost smothered and a $3000 camera was ready for he cleaners.

But that didn't stop Schneidermann. Within three hours he and his assistant, with their director, were caling a 600-foot cliff of solid granite, dragging up ameras and reflectors, where one slip would have ent them all to death. It was a task for skilled Alinists, but that didn't worry the camera men. They ad to have—and they got—some beautiful long "shots" of that great herd in the distance.

You have heard of men who would "fight a locomotive." Ross Fisher, camera man, and Emory Johnon, his director, did it for a picture. The film was "Westbound Limited." The two men crawled down etween the ties in a little pit dug under the railroad o photograph from beneath the passenger train that oared above their heads.

They got a unique picture, but at the price of a bit f Fisher's scalp, for he lifted his head too high nd a dangling air hose eft its lurid, livid monogram. A close shave hat doesn't appear in he "thrillers."

A certain French torpedo boat came near writing finis to the creen version of "Mare Nostrum" when Tony Moreno was making that picture at Toulon. The amera man was photographing some incidents pon a submarine when threatening, dark obect tore across her ows. Another followed nd barely missed the raft. It meant nothing o the camera man, but he commander of the ubmarine didn't tarry fter that second one. He submerged and gave n imitation of a big fish n retreat. He had suddenly realized that he as within the field in hich some French detroyers were engaged in orpedo practice.

THOSE unfortunate beings who can't stand height have no place behind the camera —less than they have before it. Exercise in climbing is more common than the "daily dozen" among the men who "shoot" the films.

The camera man doing his stuff 10,000 feet up in the snow.

When Fox produced "The Folly of Vanity," many scenes were filmed on Santa Cruz Island, just south of Santa Barbara Channel, off the coast of California. A wind blows a perpetual gale across that channel and on the island solid walls of rock rise hundreds of feet above the water. But Joe August took his camera to the highest pinnacle of the narrow wall overhanging the sea and lay upon its edge until the long shots of Neptune's barge were taken. A slip, a stumble, and his career would have ended there.

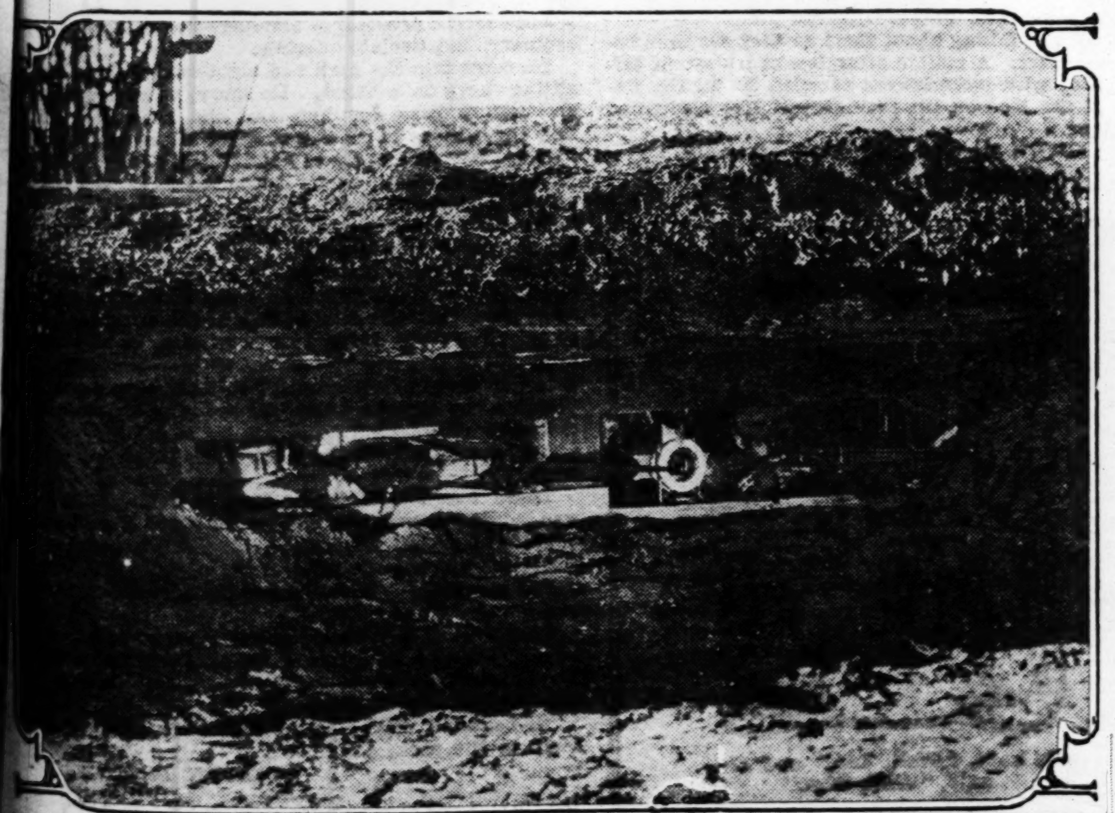
The cliffs overlooking Zion Canyon in Utah are the most rugged in that State—and most dangerous, too. But Dan Clark, who has photographed more than 50 pictures for Tom Mix, used them for scenes for "The Deadwood Coach," though he knew one misstep meant death. Harry Perry once started for a final fall of 300 feet over a precipice when filming "The Round Up" several years ago in the high Sierras. Charles Boyle luckily caught him just as he was sliding over the edge of the cliff. It was all in a day's work. Perry went right ahead taking the picture.

"There's always some sort of a jam," he said, "but I've never quite forgotten that frosty morning up in the Sierras a few years ago when we were filming 'The Virginian' and a bunch of hard-riding, soft-head cowboys took a notion to amuse themselves by jumping their ponies over me and my camera. Now that wasn't my idea of a joke at all.

"Figure the time a few months ago when they planted us in a 40-foot drift of snow upon Mount Rainier. We had to mush in on snowshoes for six miles to film scenes showing the dash of Gunnar Kasson and his dog team into Nome during the diphtheria epidemic.

"Gunnar hadn't seen a street car for 15 years until he struck Seattle and Balto never had looked at one. The dogs wore their winter coats—and so did Gunnar. I didn't have any. I wasn't strong on mushing, either. But a camera man has to follow where a camera is to work, and so I went. They burrowed me into a snowbank and there I stayed while Gunnar and his dogs did their stuff. We were there two weeks. A nice, cool vacation. Maybe. But I wouldn't have picked the place if there hadn't been work to do."

It is a jolly life—that of the camera man. The pay is good. The highest-priced actors entertain him—on the set. The most beautiful spots of the scenic world are placed before him. Well, why not? Even the "million-dollar" pictures would be worthless but for his work. And that isn't all. The stars themselves owe him much of their reflected glory. There is more than one camera man in Hollywood who draws an enormous salary because he has a knack of catching the finest bits of an ageing actress' emotion without revealing the lines that are beginning to show themselves about her face and neck.



"Protected by high-power rifles the camera man risks life to film the charging buffalo."

Ring Lardner's Letter to the Editor

Dear Mr. Post-Dispatch Editor:

SEEMS like lately the telephone company are always advertising new improvements in their service whereby it makes it simpler for people to reach each other by telephone and I suppose the company feel pretty proud of themself for the advances they have made, but on the other hand it looks to me like the Chamber of Commerce or Mayor Miller or whoever has got jurisdiction over same should ought to put their ft. down before these improvements goes much further and not only put a quietus on them but go a step past that and order them to withdraw some of the improvements all ready made because as a matter of fact telephoning is a whole lot too easy as it is and has been for several yrs.

At my request or you might say orders, the little woman kept a record the other day of all the calls that day, and as luck would have it, it happened to be a specially light day but nevertheless will set down the results and you can judge same for yourself:

1. For madam — Strange voice wanted to know whether he could interest her in some fine Florida grape fruit and oranges from his own ranch in Florida. Talked for 15 minutes before he give her a chance to say no.

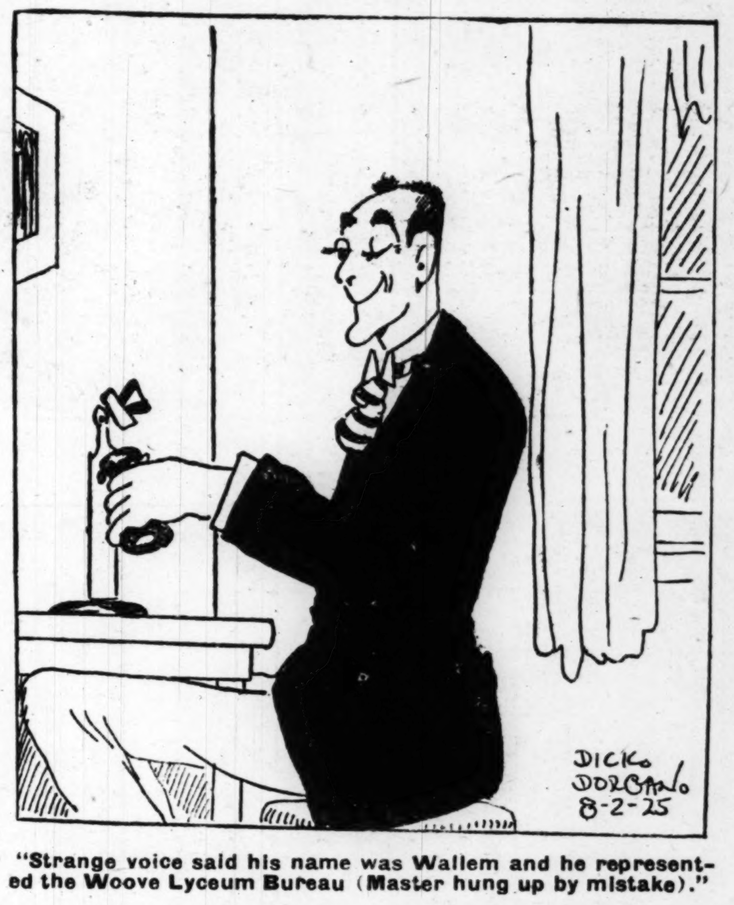
2. Is Mr. Webb there? No. Isn't this Manhasset 103? No, this is Great Neck 103. Oh, they give me the wrong number.

3. For the master—Strange voice said his name was Wallem and he represented the Woove Lyceum Bureau or something and would the master consider a lecture tour. No, the master didn't give lectures only to his kiddies. But we could make you a mighty fine proposition. (Master hung up by mistake.)

4. For the master—This is Mr. Cleeve representing the Home for Disreputable Cousins or something. Said he met us once at the football game. Understood we was well acquainted with Gene Buck and Ed Wynn. Would you mind calling them up and asking them to run a benefit on the evening of July 16? Reply was that we had ceased to be on very friendly turns with either of the parties, but Mr. Cleeve could call them up himself and Mr. Buck's number was 155 whereas on the other hand Mr. Wynn's was 490. Was sure they would be glad to put on a benefit as they both revelled in them.

5. (The madam answers.) Strange voice wanted to know if her husband was in. Who wants him, please? Well, tell him it's an old pal of his from Chicago. But what name shall I say? Tell him Charley Gimster. Ayy right, I'll call him. (The master comes to the telephone). Hello. Hello, there. Maybe you don't remember me. It's Charley Gimster from Chicago. I met you a couple of times in Stillson's. Oh, yes. Well, I just wanted to say hello, and would you come down and have lunch with me some day; it would have to be tomorrow afternoon. Well, that's tough because I have got to run over to Philadelphia tonight and won't be back till Wednesday. Well, I'm certainly glad you called up.

6. Voice of Central.—Some one was ringing you but there is nobody on the line now. Excuse it please.



"Strange voice said his name was Wallem and he represented the Woove Lyceum Bureau (Master hung up by mistake)."

7. For the master—Familiar voice says ain't you going to trade in your car? Yes, but not till fall. But I can give you a much better trade now than if you wait till fall. Yes, but I'm going to wait till fall. But you will get a much better deal now than in the fall. I don't doubt it, but I'm going to wait till fall. Well, let me know as soon as you are ready.

8. (The madam answers). Strange voice asks is Mr. Augustein in? What number do you want? I want Great Neck 133. Well, this is Great Neck 103. Oh.

Now, of course, the reader will say to themself well ain't they got no friends that ever calls them up and wants them to go on a party or something? The point is well taken but still and all at the same time suppose somebody does call you up and want you to go on a party why it just means that you half to go up and put on a pair of shoes and maybe shave or change your shirt.

And not only that but suppose somebody calls up and invites you to their house to play bridge or something and you say yes and you ain't no sooner hung up the receiver when the thing rings again and somebody else invites you to their house and it is a house where you would a whole lot rather go than the other house, why it is bound to make you wished your telephone had been out of order, a few minutes in the place of working so good all the wile.

And all I can remember living back in Niles, Michigan, 30 or 40 yrs. ago and we didn't have no telephone and neither did anybody else and those was amongst the happiest days of my life.

THIS is the time of the year when—if what the poets tell us is true—a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of household economics. It is a period during which any properly constituted young man makes at least one proposal of marriage. If he keeps on persistently making these proposals they are apt to end sooner or later in marriage itself.

At any rate, every young person ought to know how proposals of marriage are made, and a few hints upon the point at this time of year are surely not out of place.

WE BEGIN first of all with the way in which our great-grandfathers made their approaches to our great-grandmothers.

In those days they preferred to make their proposals in writing. A young man when he found himself hopelessly smitten retired to his room with a big bottle of ink and a quill pen and put together an epistle such as this:

"Miss Malvinia Woolifeather, Woolifeather Grange, Featherdale on the Blink, Hants.

"Respected Madame: The opportunities which I have of late enjoyed of observing the graces of your person and the cultivation of your mind, have filled me with feelings which I can better intrust to restraints of epistolary correspondence than confide to the hazard of an oral declaration.

"I desire, my dear Miss Woolifeather, to offer myself as a suitor for your hand and to lay myself, my affection and estate upside down at your feet. Should you bid me rise, I shall deem myself the happiest of mortals. But should you not do so, I need only say that I should remain prone until a welcome demise should terminate an existence henceforth without aim or meaning. I need hardly say that before inditing this letter I have obtained the full approval of your father, and have also consulted your mother and your aunts, all of whom are warmly in favor of my suit and permit me to press it.

"Allow me, with the liveliest feeling of affection, appreciation, esteem, reverence, to sign myself and to remain, yours, my dear Miss Malvinia, humbly, hopefully, but tremblingly,

"JOHN PEACHDOWN.

"The Quylers Inn, On the Blink."

BUT now contrast with this beautiful document the way in which the proposal of marriage is made in up-to-date fiction.

His voice as he turned towards her was taut as a tie-line. "You don't love me!" he hoarsed, thick with agony.

She had angled into a seat and sat sensing-rather-than-seeing him.

For a time she silenced. Then presently as he still stood and enveloped her:

"Don't!" she thinned, her voice fining to a thread.

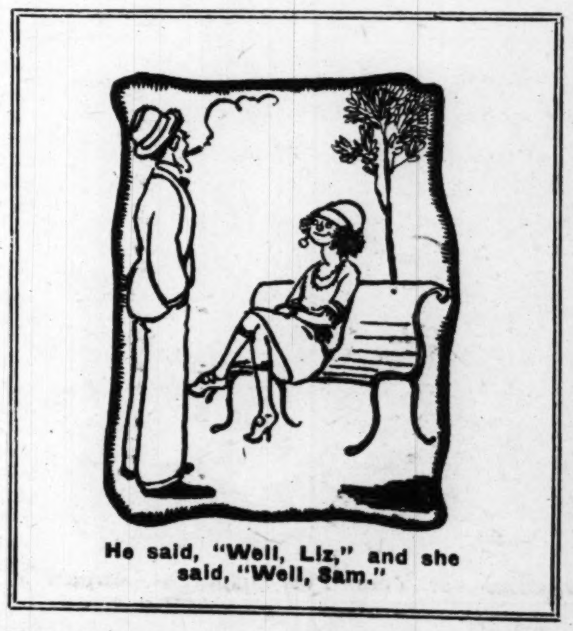
"Answer me," he gloomed, still gazing into-and-through her.

She half-heard, half-didn't-hear him.

Night was falling about them as they sat thus beside the river. A molten afterglow of iridescent saffron shot with incandescent carmine lit up the waters of the Hudson till they glowed like electrified uranium.

For a while they both sat silent—looming.

"It had to be?" she glumped.



He said, "Well, Liz," and she said, "Well, Sam."

"Why, why?" he blimped. "Why should it have had to have been or (more hopefully) even to be! Surely you don't mean because of money?"

She shuddered into herself.

The thing seemed to sting her (it hadn't really).

"Money!" she almost-but-not-quite-snarled. "You might have spared me that!"

He sank down and grassed.

And after they had sat thus for another half-hour grassing and growling and angling and sensing one another, it turned out that all that he was trying to say was to ask if she would marry him.

And she said "yes."

AND now contrast with this sort of thing the way in which a proposal of marriage gets made among ordinary, inarticulate mortals.

He came into the park and right-away he saw her sitting there on a bench. He knew, of course, that she was waiting for him and she knew that he had come there to meet her. But all he said was: "Well, Liz!" and she said just: "Well, Sam." Then he said: "It's been pretty warm all day," and she said: "It certainly has."

He said: "Do you want to walk a piece?" and she answered: "I don't care."

They strolled a little way together. The sinking sun may have been lighting up the west, there may have been just one star poised in the evening sky like a firefly and there may have come to him the faint call of just one thrush, but if these things were going on he didn't remark on it. All he said was: "I saw a cop arrest a fellow for speeding on a motor cycle this afternoon."

And she said: "Those motor cycle fellers are too fresh."

There was a silence and then he said: "Liz, I was thinking the other night after I got home that now that I got my increase of salary if you'd care to marry me we could do it."

And she said: "Well, I guess I'm agreeable if you are, Sam."

They walked on a little further in silence and then he stopped and half turned towards her and with his eye looking right in the girl's face he said, thoughtfully:

"It beats all what a lot of cigar butts get thrown away in the park, don't it?"

". . . it looked as if Mr. Burridge was holding Mr. Fogarty suspended by the neck."

WANTED: ONE DOG

By Ellis Parker Butler

IN HIS moments of loss of self-control, Mr. Burridge was apt to forget the gentler graces of civilization and, as his wife said, be off again. Mr. Burridge was bald and stout and looked overfed.

"Laura," Mrs. Burridge used to say to her daughter when she saw Mr. Burridge's face turning scarlet, "for heaven's sake be careful—your father's off again."

She also used to say to her daughter:

"I wish your father wouldn't make a garden—it makes him so angry."

He was one of those pinkish-looking men who take to gardening enthusiastically, but who, before all the ground is spaded, become irritated at the injustice of the world and want to bite someone's head off. Mr. Burridge always planned a much larger garden than he could handle, and the larger the garden the angrier he was apt to become.

So Mrs. Burridge looked out the window apprehensively when she heard Mr. Burridge swear, and she was just in time to see the spade clang against the side of Mr. Fogarty's garage—the spade Mr. Burridge had thrown at Rumpus, the dog of Mr. Fogarty, who lived next door. She heard the dog give a yelp of fear and she saw Mr. Burridge swing the four-tined garden fork above his head and throw that at the dog also. The fork missed the dog by 40 feet. Mr. Burridge then leaped out of his garden and picked up a box that had contained tomato plants and threw it with all his might at the dog.

"Laura," said Mrs. Burridge to her daughter, "you had better put the coffee on the table; I think your father is through gardening."

As Mr. Burridge went to recover the garden fork, little Mrs. Fogarty came to her back porch.

"Oh, dear!" she said, in the apologetically sweet voice that had become a permanence with her since her husband had brought Rumpus home. "Oh, dear! Has our dog been bothering you again?"

For answer Mr. Burridge turned his back on Mrs. Fogarty, jerked the fork from the soil and threw it into the middle of his garden.

He brushed his hands together angrily, as if to say:

"I'm through! Dogs—dogs—dogs! Ten million useless curs digging up everything a man plants."

He yanked his coat from the limb of a small tree on which it hung and strode toward his kitchen door, his mouth grimly set.

"Laura," said Mrs. Burridge, nervously, "for heaven's sake be careful; your father is off again! Call Ted."

"Teh-dee! Teh-dee! Teddy! Theodore!" called Laura at the back door, but no one answered. She drew back against the door frame and Mr. Burridge stalked past her and through the kitchen without a word. He went up to the bathroom.

From under a spirea bush close to the Fogarty property line young Ted Burridge stuck out his head. As he did not see his father, he came all the way out and Rumpus leaped toward him wagging his short tail and panting artificially in the manner he had of showing joy and delight.

"Nice old Rumpus! Good old doggie!" Ted comforted him, an arm around Rumpus' neck. "You didn't get hurt, did you, doggie? You're a good old doggie, ain't you, doggie?"

"Ted, you come right in to your breakfast this minute!" Laura called to the boy. "If father sees you hugging that dog"——

". . . a stray cat had crossed the far end of the garden."

"All right, doggie," said Ted, ignoring his sister, as elder sisters should be ignored. "I'll see you after breakfast, doggie."

"You and that dog!" Laura exclaimed as Ted slid past her into the kitchen.

"You'd better look out, young man; father'll be terrible if he catches you petting that dog."

IN THE bathroom Mr. Burridge washed his hands and when the soap fell to the floor he kicked it viciously.

He then went to his bedroom and jerked six pairs of trousers off the closet hooks. He threw one shirt under the bed and tore three collars raucously, and thus dressed for business. He then threw practically all the remaining contents of his dresser into a suit case and went down to breakfast.

"Now, listen to this!" ordered Mr. Burridge when he was seated. "Jane—for heaven's sake, can't you pay a little attention to me once in a while?"

"Why, I—— Why, yes, George! I'm listening," said Mrs. Burridge, hastily.

"I want you to buy a dog!"

"A—a what?" gasped Mrs. Burridge.

"A dog. I said a dog, didn't I? I went out there this morning to plant my tomato plants, in my garden, on my own property. And what happened?"

No one ventured to say what happened.

It was not the moment for anyone to make any remark. Mrs. Burridge and Laura and Ted knew from experience that father was off again and that now was the time to be silent and show deep and concerned attention.

"I worked like a slave over that garden, that's what happened," said Mr. Burridge, "and I planted those tomato plants and that dog of Fogarty's came over and began digging. He dug them up faster than I could plant them—that's what happened. And if it's not one dog it's another. I'm through!"

No one denied that Mr. Burridge had a perfect right to be through.

"I'm through!" repeated Mr. Burridge again. "Jane, how long have I owned this house?"

"Why—why—16 years," said Mrs. Burridge, nervously.

"Sixteen years!" echoed Mr. Burridge. "For 16 years I've been a good neighbor, and for 16 years I've said 'No dog!' Ten thousand times I've said 'No dog!' How many times have you said to me, 'George, don't you think Ted might have a dog?' How many times? And what did I say?"

"Why—why"— stammered Mrs. Burridge.

"Yes," said Mr. Burridge, "and it is a nice state of affairs. Here, I've got a son 8 years old"——

"Nine," said Ted, and Mr. Burridge glared at him.

"Here I've got a son 9 years old, a boy who deserves a dog if any boy does, and I've never let him have a dog. Why? Because I wouldn't harbor an animal that might annoy my neighbors. And what do I get for it?"

It seemed that no one cared to say.

"A boy, 9 years old, my own son, begging and whining for a dog for the last 16 years, and I refuse him, and what happens? How many dogs are there on this block?"

"Fourteen," said Ted, promptly.

"Fourteen dogs!" declared Mr. Burridge. "Fourteen worthless curs, digging up my garden. I'm through! Do you understand that?"

"Yes, George," said Mrs. Burridge.

"Now, you listen to this!" ordered Mr. Burridge. "We're going to have a dog. I've got to go out to Chicago today, but when I come back I want this family to have a dog. Do you understand, Jane?"

"Yes, George; but"— said Mrs. Burridge.

"No but about it," declared Mr. Burridge. "I tell you to buy a dog, and you'll buy a dog!"

"I was only going to say," said Mrs. Burridge, meekly, "that perhaps it would be better to wait until you get home. You know so much more about dogs."

"You wait nothing!" said Mr. Burridge. "You'll buy a dog—a dog like Fogarty's. I want a dog that will run all over this neighborhood and be a confounded nuisance. What kind of a dog is that dog of Fogarty's?"

"It's a wire-haired fox terrier," said Ted, promptly.

"You get a wire-haired fox terrier," said Mr. Burridge, "like Fogarty's. How much did that dog of Fogarty's cost?"

"He cost $50," said Ted.

"Nonsense. You get one for twenty-five. That's enough to pay for the best dog that ever lived," said Mr. Burridge.

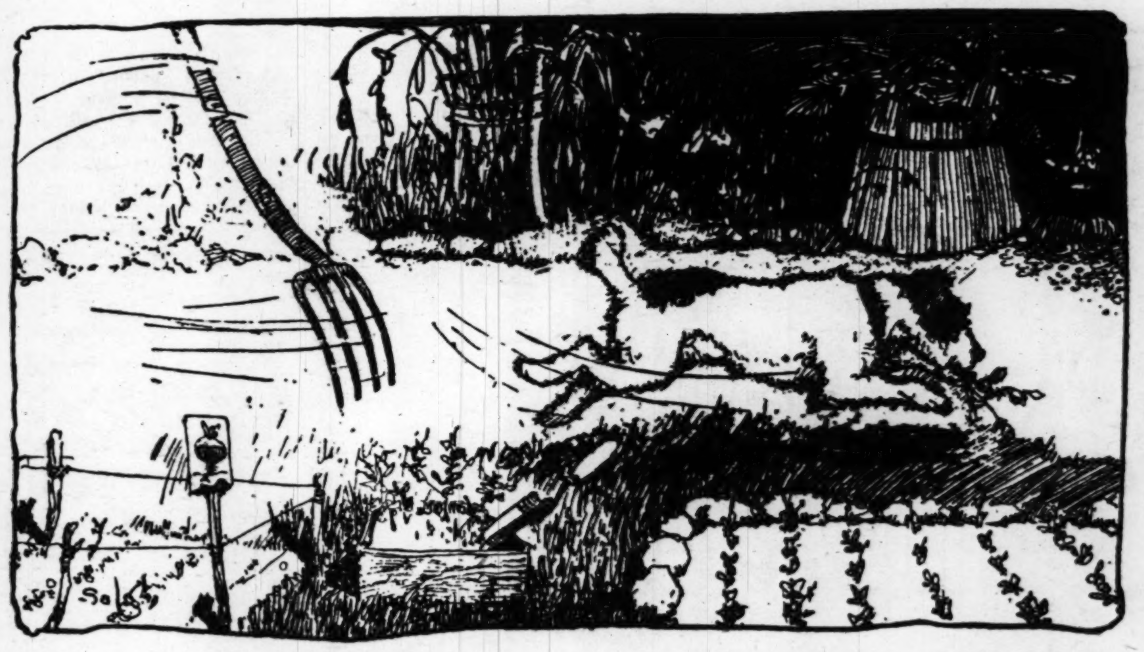
Then he departed for Chicago, where he was to be engaged for a week.

MR. FOGARTY, whose business required him to leave his house an hour earlier than Mr. Burridge left, did not hear of the tomato-plant episode until that night. He found his wife far from happy.

"Tom, dear," she said.

"What, Mary?" Mr. Fogarty asked.

"I know you don't like me to be talking of it all the



"... the four-tined garden fork ... missed the dog by about forty feet."

while, but don't you think we could be gettin' rid of Rumpus?"

"We cannot! What's he been doin' now?"

"Ah, Tom, if you knew the worry the dog is to me," said Mrs. Fogarty. "Three terrible fights he was in today and the Langham's dog got chewed in the ears! I was that weak after it all I had to lay on the bed. And diggin' up Mr. Burridge's garden this morning and him throwin' the spade and fork at him, that angry! And he bit the postman in the legs of the pants again today."

"Them postmen have a right to wear leather leggins, with all the dogs everywhere," said Fogarty. "Blowin' them whistles like they do, no wonder the dogs get mad at them."

"And for two hours he had the Giffings cat up a tree, and him barking like a thousand, and Mrs. Giffing weepin' and cryin' terrible," said little Mrs. Fogarty.

"Well, things has come to a nice pass if a dog can't tree a cat now and again," said Mr. Fogarty. "Why don't they keep their cats in the house? If it comes to that, why don't you keep the dog in the house, Mary?"

"And don't I try, and him slippin' out every minute when the baker's boy and the butcher's boy and all come to the door. Do I tie him up he yells his head off and they're all telephonin' me could I stop the dog from howlin'? He's the worry of the whole neighborhood, and everybody thinkin' hard thoughts of us."

Fogarty considered the dog as it reposed on the floor, its ears briskly cocked and its eyes sparkling.

"It's not as if we needed a dog, but us with no children or anything, and so lately come into the neighborhood and no use for a dog but to get all the neighbors down on us," said Mrs. Fogarty. "And my nerves gettin' that jumpy that I weep most of the day whilst you are to your work and never thinkin' of dogs at all."

"It's a shame," said Fogarty, "but I can't take a dog with me, that's sure."

"It's not as if we had kids that could play with him, and maybe keep him busy and put out of devilment all day long," argued Mrs. Fogarty.

"Ah, Tom, be a good fellow and get rid of the dog for me; it would all be so nice and pleasant. Won't you be rid of the dog, Tom? Until we have a boy of our own, maybe; then I'd not be sayin' a word."

Fogarty looked at his pretty wife fondly and smiled.

"Have it your own way, then," he said. "Get rid of the dog, if you want to, but bear in mind it was a good $50 he cost me. He's worth every cent of it, too, the troublesome rascal. Here, Rumpus, you imp! Up!"

He held a lump of sugar high and the dog leaped four feet from the floor.

"If you can't get more, you might take $25 for him," said Fogarty. "Twenty-five or thirty-five. Only get him in a family where a boy is—that's what he needs, a boy in the family, to work some of the pep out of him."

"Oh, Tom, you're the love of my life!" cried Mrs. Fogarty, throwing her arms around his neck. "I'll see that the dog is into a decent family by the time you get back from Baltimore, I promise you!"

Rumpus, sitting and watching this little love episode with bright eyes, thumped his tail on the floor. Mrs. Fogarty stooped and scratched the wiry hair about his collar, which was what he loved best in the way of a caress.

"You're a nice dog at that, so you are," she said. "Give him another lump of sugar, Tom, seein' he'll be gone by the time you're back home again, the fond brute."

"Jump," said Fogarty, holding the sugar high, and then: "Did Mr. Burridge say anything nasty to you, Mary?"

"He said nothing at all," she said. "We had no words."

"And lucky for him," said Fogarty, "for if he had I'd make him eat them, fat as he is."

BEFORE 10 o'clock the next morning Mrs. Fogarty, happy indeed, telephoned the Westcote Daily Eagle and put a "Dog For Sale" advertisement in its want column. "For Sale—Wire-haired fox terrier, male, $50. Might take less if good home guaranteed. Telephone Westcote 2165," was what the advertisement said, but Mrs. Burridge—who at the same moment was telephoning to the office of the Westcote Evening Star—did not know this. She never did know it, because the Burridges never took the Eagle. "Dog Wanted," was what Mrs. Burridge's advertisement said: "Wire-haired fox terrier, male. Good home guaranteed. Might pay $25. Telephone Westcote 7651."

FOR five days Mrs. Fogarty did not leave the house, but no one telephoned wanting to buy a wire-haired fox terrier, male.

In the adjacent home no message came telling Mrs. Burridge of a wire-haired fox terrier, male, for sale.

With much to do about the house, Mrs. Burridge let one day follow the other, and it was not until the sixth day of Mr. Burridge's absence that Mrs. Burridge began to be worried.

"Ted, do try to find a dog for sale," she pleaded.

"Well, ain't I?" her son demanded in an injured tone. "Gee, don't you think I've been lookin'? I ain't done nothin' but look, have I?"

"But we must have a dog by the time your father gets back, Theodore," said Mrs. Burridge. "Your father said to get a dog. If we don't have a dog, your father will be off again. You know how your father is."

"Gee, yes," said Theodore, but he found no dog.

It was not until the morning of the last day that Mrs. Fogarty, sweeping her porch, spoke to Mrs. Burridge, who was shaking out a dust cloth. From the cellar came the irritating barks of Rumpus.

"Oh, dear!" Mrs. Fogarty complained to Mrs. Burridge. "The way that dog keeps barkin' is drivin' me crazy, but I don't dare let him loose, if somebody comes to buy him. 'Sell the dog, Mary,' Tom says"——

Mrs. Burridge stopped in the middle of a flap of her dust cloth.

"You say you want to sell the dog?" she asked.

"Oh, but I do that!" cried Mrs. Fogarty. "If you know anybody that wants to buy a dog"——

Mrs. Burridge crossed the yard.

"It's a male, is it?" she asked. "It's a genuine wire-haired fox terrier? How much do you want for him?"

"Tom was after payin' $50 for him, with a pedigree as long as your arm. But if I could get him in a good home, with a boy like, I'd jump at thirty-five for him, or even twenty-five," said Mrs. Fogarty.

"Would you sell him to us for $25?" asked Mrs. Burridge. "Not that I want a dog for myself," she added, "but Mr. Burridge was saying that a boy Ted's age ought to have a dog. And he did say a dog like yours was the sort of dog he would like to have. Twenty-five dollars seems like an awful lot to pay for a dog, but Mr. Burridge said to pay $25. Would you take that for the dog?"

"Would a fish swim?" asked Mrs. Fogarty. "I'll get him from the cellar."

"I'll get the money," said Mrs. Burridge, and the two women parted. A minute later Mrs. Fogarty was waiting with the dog, who was leaping wildly at the end of his chain.

As Mrs. Burridge took the chain a cat crossed the far corner of the garden. Instantly the steel chain was jerked from her hand. The cat and Rumpus disappeared.

"He'll be comin' back before eatin' time, never fear," said Mrs. Fogarty, comfortingly. "Only, when you let him loose, you want to put the muzzle on him, ma'am; the cops are takin' notice of the dogs that ain't muzzled."

THAT afternoon the Westcote Palace Theater was showing the super-film, "A Prince of the Aztecs," and Mrs. Burridge had taken Ted and Laura to see it. Mrs. Fogarty was also seeing Douglas Fairfield in his rendition of Montezuma, the Aztec Prince, and the two houses were locked and deserted, except for Rumpus, who lay in the shade of a spirea bush, in a hole he had dug in Mr. Burridge's tomato garden.

Rumpus was entirely happy. He had just decided to visit some of the neighbors when he saw something that made him show his teeth. This thing was Mr. Burridge, remembered as the man who had thrown the spade, who was approaching from the North Westcote station, carrying an umbrella and a suitcase.

From where he lay, Rumpus could not see Mr. Fogarty approaching from the opposite direction, carrying a suitcase but no umbrella. Neither could he see Mounted Officer Haggerty approaching at the end of the block. Rumpus, getting to his feet, raised his lips on both sides, showing ~~both~~ of his handsome incisor teeth, and growled. It was an unfortunate moment for Rumpus to choose for growling from a hole in Mr. Burridge's garden, for Mr. Burridge was just muttering, in a bitterly disgusted tone: "Out! They're out, I bet!"

Mr. Burridge said this as he looked at the house with its closed doors windows.

He said it with especial bitterness cause he had not been able to get a l er berth on his train, and there been no taxi at the North Westcote tion. Mr. Burridge was in exactly right temper to be off again.

"Yah," he was saying. "If I away for a thousand ~~years~~ wouldn't be one chance in a million I could come back and find my anywhere but out!

"And the door locked and nothing do but sit on the side porch like mummy until the whole caboodle ready to leave some idiotic picture that"——

Then he saw Rumpus.

AT THE same moment he saw Fogarty. Instantly angry rang in Mr. Burridge's ears and his saw crimson. He dropped his suit and ran at Rumpus, swinging his brella over his head, shouting:

"Out of there! Get out of there, —dirty—cur!" he shouted, and the umbrella down on Rumpus' The dog backed against the spirea and barked and Mr. Burridge drew his right foot and kicked at Rumpus. Instantly the dog set his teeth in Burridge's trousers leg and there was rending of cloth and again Mr. Burridge whacked the dog with the umbrella.

"Here, you! Here, you!" yelled Fogarty. "Don't you hit that dog!" he dropped his suit case and ran. "I not have you hittin' my dog, you brute!" and he struck Mr. Burridge the chest with his fist. Mr. Burridge dropped the umbrella, grunting as the blow reached him. He staggered but did not fall, for he threw his arms about Mr. Fogarty's neck.

To Officer Haggerty it looked as Mr. Burridge was holding Mr. Fogarty suspended by the neck so that Mr. Fogarty could rain short-arm blows at Mr. Burridge's ribs. Coincidentally Mr. Burridge seemed to be trying to win the battle by yanking Mr. Fogarty's head off. Each time Mr. Fogarty hit Mr. Burridge in the ribs, Mr. Burridge grunted. Mr. Burridge seemed to be able to utter nothing but grunts, but Mr. Fogarty was making continuous and excited remarks in a voice that showed he was very much vexed. They were principally to the effect that he would show Mr. Burridge if he could hit that dog.

As Officer Haggerty leaped down from his horse Mr. Burridge introduced a new tactic. He threw his right leg between Mr. Fogarty's knees. This might have been a better idea if he had not let Mr. Fogarty fall on top of him when they toppled.

As it happened, the weight of Mr. Fogarty as the two fell in under the spirea bush jolted most of the breath out of Mr. Burridge. It might have gone ill with him had not Officer Haggerty arrived just then.

He drew his club and rapped briskly on the soles of the four feet that protruded from under the bush.

the house with its closed doors

He said it with especial bitterness be-cause he had not been able to get a low-er berth on his train, and there had been no taxi at the North Westcote sta-tion. Mr. Burridge was in exactly the right temper to be off again.

"Yah," he was saying. "If I were away for a thousand years there wouldn't be one chance in a million that I could come back and find my family anywhere but out!

"And the door locked and nothing to do but sit on the side porch like a mummy until the whole caboodle gets ready to leave some idiotic picture show that"——

Then he saw Rumpus.

AT THE same moment he saw Mr. Fogarty. Instantly angry blood rang in Mr. Burridge's ears and his eyes saw crimson. He dropped his suit case and ran at Rumpus, swinging his um-brella over his head, shouting:

"Out of there! Get out of there, you —dirty—cur!" he shouted, and brought the umbrella down on Rumpus' back. The dog backed against the spirea bush and barked and Mr. Burridge drew back his right foot and kicked at Rumpus. Instantly the dog set his teeth in Mr. Burridge's trousers leg and there was a rending of cloth and again Mr. Burridge whacked the dog with the umbrella.

"Here, you! Here, you!" yelled Mr. Fogarty. "Don't you hit that dog!" and he dropped his suit case and ran. "I'll not have you hittin' my dog, you big brute!" and he struck Mr. Burridge in the chest with his fist. Mr. Burridge dropped the umbrella, grunting as the blow reached him. He staggered but he did not fall, for he threw his arms about Mr. Fogarty's neck.

To Officer Haggerty it looked as if Mr. Burridge was holding Mr. Fogarty suspended by the neck so that Mr. Fogarty could rain short-arm blows at Mr. Burridge's ribs. Coincidentally Mr. Burridge seemed to be trying to win the battle by yanking Mr. Fogarty's head off. Each time Mr. Fogarty hit Mr. Burridge in the ribs. Mr. Burridge grunted. Mr. Burridge seemed to be able to utter nothing but grunts, but Mr. Fogarty was making continuous and excited remarks in a voice that showed he was very much vexed. They were principally to the effect that he would show Mr. Burridge if he could hit that dog.

As Officer Haggerty leaped down from his horse Mr. Burridge introduced a new tactic. He threw his right leg between Mr. Fogarty's knees. This might have been a better idea if he had not let Mr. Fogarty fall on top of him when they toppled.

As it happened, the weight of Mr. Fogarty as the two fell in under the spirea bush jolted most of the breath out of Mr. Burridge. It might have gone ill with him had not Officer Haggerty arrived just then.

Rumpus was barking loudly and rushing in to nip at any foot that was nearest when Officer Haggerty slapped him in the ribs with the flat of his hand and sent him yelping through the spirea bush.

"Come out of there, then," the officer shouted at Mr. Fogarty and Mr. Burridge. "A nice way for two family men to be actin'.

"What's this row about?"

He drew his club and rapped briskly on the soles of the four feet that protruded from under the bush.

"Ouch," said Mr. Burridge.

"Quit that, you big elephant," shouted Mr. Fogarty.

"Come out of there, then," repeated the policeman. "Or will I hit youse again? A nice way to be actin'. Youse'll have the whole neighborhood scandalized. Come out, I say."

Mr. Burridge was willing, but Mr. Fogarty was on top of him, and Mr. Fogarty was willing, but Mr. Burridge was holding him tight; and Officer Haggerty grasped the handiest foot and pulled, putting his bull strength in the job, and drew them out from under the bush, through the hole Rumpus had dug, and debouched them in the tomato garden's soft soil.

"Now, get up, the both of youse," he said. "What's this row about?"

"He hit me pup," panted Mr. Fogarty. "He took his big brute of an umbrelly and hit him, and no man can wale me pup and get away with it. A poor little pup, and a big oaf like him assaultin' it!"

"Pup! He says pup!" panted Mr. Burridge, wiping his face on his arm. "The meanest, viciousest, snappiest full-grown dog in this town. And loose—loose, officer, without a muzzle on. I won't hit that dog, won't I? I'll knock his head off! My heavens, how much does a man have to stand from a dog like that?"

"Now, wait a bit!" cautioned Haggerty, lifting the finger of the law. "Here's where I come in, I shouldn't wonder. Was the dog without a muzzle?"

"Of course he was!" exclaimed Mr. Burridge. "Look at my pants there. You can't keep a muzzle on that dog. Nobody could keep a muzzle on that dog. A dog like that is an infernal nuisance. It ought to be shot. It's always loose; it's all over the neighborhood, digging up gardens, killing cats, biting people, yowling all night—a general nuisance. It's a wonder the whole neighborhood isn't in a fight all the time, with a worthless cur like that everlastingly roaming everywhere. A man that keeps a dog like that ought to be fined the limit—he ought to be jailed."

"The man's a liar," said Mr. Fogarty. "The dog's a fine dog"——

"A fine dog!" scoffed Mr. Burridge. "A dirty, snarling, mangy, flea-bit, fighting nuisance"——

"And affectionate," said Mr. Fogarty. "Kind at heart, and gentle, and well-bred"——

"And what is he, anyway? Nothing but a mutt," said Mr. Burridge. "A gutter pup and a garbage hound. Not worth the powder to blow him up"——

"Now, wait a bit!" urged Officer Haggerty. "You saw that he had no muzzle on him, did you?"

"Muzzle? Of course he had no muzzle on him," said Mr. Burridge, clearing some of the tomato garden out of his ear with one finger. "You couldn't keep a muzzle on the cur if you riveted it on him. He's always running around without a muzzle."

"I know! I know!" said Officer Haggerty. "'Tis not the first dog I've had to do with. But are you willin' to swear he had no muzzle on?"

"Certainly!" said Mr. Burridge.

"And was not tied up?"

"Hah! Tied up!" scoffed Mr. Burridge. "He looked as if he was tied up! Of course he was not tied up."

"That'll be fine," said Officer Haggerty, taking out his notebook. "Th' Magistrate is finin' them from $2 to $25 these days"——

"You let me tell him about this dog and it'll be no $2," said Mr. Burridge. "A man that owns a dog like this ought to get $50 and a year in jail just for owning such a dog."

"And I may do better than that for you," said Officer Haggerty. "You say the dog is a vicious dog? He's incorrigible and uncontrollable? He has a mean spirit and a nasty temper? He's a wanderer and a cat-killer?"

"I give you my solemn word," said Burridge, "that that dog"——

AROUND the corner of the house came Ted, running eagerly. He stopped short as he saw the three men.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Has Rumpus been doing anything?"

"Hah! Plenty's the matter," said Mr. Burridge, viciously. "I've got this cur of Fogarty's where I want him at last. And tell me, officer, if a dog is a vicious brute and a neighborhood menace, can the Magistrate order him killed?"

"He can that," said Officer Haggerty, "and that's what I'm gettin' at. If you will go to court and swear"——

There was a jangle of garbage pail and lid and a chorus of yelps and growls in the yard beyond Fogarty's, and Mr. Fogarty leaped to rescue Rumpus or to pull him off the other dog, as might be needed. Officer Haggerty went to assist, and Mr. Burridge would have joined them if Ted had not held his sleeve.

"But, father," Ted said, "he's our dog. He's your dog. Mother gave Mrs. Fogarty $25 for him for you."

FOR a moment Mr. Burridge stared at his son. He took out his handkerchief and wiped his forehead.

"Now, to purceed," said Officer Haggerty, when he and Mr. Fogarty returned, with Mr. Fogarty dragging Rumpus at the end of the chain. "You was sayin'."——

"I was saying," said Mr. Burridge, "that all I want, officer, is to be friendly and on good terms with all my neighbors. You understand that. And it has to be give and take, officer. Now and then a man may get a little excited over things—over dogs, for instance—but what does it amount to in the end? We've got to be reasonable. This dog is no worse than any other dog."

It was now Officer Haggerty's turn to stare, and he stared at Mr. Burridge.

"Of course," said Mr. Burridge, looking at his torn pants leg, "if you excite a dog and jump at him and hit him with an umbrella, he may bite back. Any dog—any self-respecting dog—would do that. But this dog is no worse than any other dog. Why, he's better than most of the curs on this block—far better! There isn't a vicious drop of blood in him. Playful, yes! But you can ask Fogarty—has anyone ever complained of the dog? Really complained?"

"You slang a spade at him," said Mr. Fogarty, a little resentfully.

"Oh, well!" said Mr. Burridge. "When I was angry. When he dug up a tomato plant. But what does one tomato plant amount to? Two cents!"

Officer Haggerty closed his notebook.

"Now, this is fine!" he said. "This is more like it. It's a pleasure to come between two men that are gentlemen, like youse. 'Tis a good endin' of what might have been worse. So we'll say no more about it. We'll let it pass this time, if that's satisfact'ry to all."

"It suits me," said Mr. Fogarty.

"It's entirely satisfactory to me," said Mr. Burridge, and Officer Haggerty walked away and mounted his sorrel horse and rode off.

"AND now," said Mr. Burridge briskly. "I'll thank you to turn my dog over to me."

"Your dog!" exclaimed Mr. Fogarty.

"My dog," repeated Mr. Burridge, and Mr. Fogarty understood. He tossed the end of the chain into Mr. Burridge's hands. He turned his back and walked away, but when he had gone a few steps he turned back.

"And look here!" he said. "Mind you keep the animal chained up, for I'm havin' a garden in me yard from now on, and I'll have no dogs clawin' it up."

"Aw, go chain yourself up!" called Mr. Burridge, coarsely. "If you don't want dogs in your garden, why don't you build a fence around it?" And with that he walked around his house. As he went he pulled Rumpus after him.

"See here!" he said to Ted. "If that man annoys my dog, you let me know—do you understand?"

"Yes, sir," said Ted meekly.

"Well, take this chain then," said Mr. Burridge. "And you keep your dog muzzled—you keep your dog muzzled or tied up. I'm not going to have your dog be a nuisance to me. Understand that?"

"Yes, sir," said Ted.

"And you tell your mother," said Mr. Burridge, "that now that she's got a dog she'll have to take care of it. You tell her I'm not going to pay for any damage this dog of hers does."

"Yes, sir," said Ted.

"The idea of an ignorant cop saying a dog like this is a nuisance!" exclaimed Mr. Burridge. "What does he expect a dog to be, I'd like to know! A dog has some rights!"

And this was a pretty fair sign that the dog was the Burridges' dog now, the world being as it is.

An Ozark Tale

Being the Romance of a Stout Keg of Wood Filled With a Velvet Liquid.

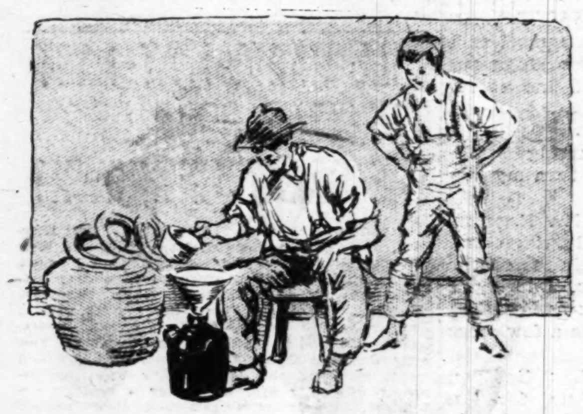
— By —
E. G. DAVISSON

WELL if 't'ain't Jud Horples, sure's I live! Come right in, Jud, an' set yourself. You look plum tuckered out, like as if you'd walked al. th' way from Springfield, tho' 't'ain't likely. 'Low, though, you ain't used to hills no more, an' that climb up from Tucker's got your wind. Wait'll I git you a han'ful o' licker.

"There, I knowed you'd smack your lips over that. 'Tain't no raw stuff sech as you git in th' cities nowadays, but old stuff, agin' for a good reason.

"But, land sakes, Jud, where you ben keepin' yourself? Ben eight-ten-twelve year sence you ben about these parts, but you ain't changed a mite, 'cept you got better clothes an' look smarter'n a merry-go-round. City must a ben good to you; er mebbe you ben bootleggin'. I hear tell they's a pile o' money in that, an' laws knows you hed plenty trainin' fer it.

"What you say? Why all th' trimmin's an' sich?



Where'd we git that licker? Well, I'm not s'prized you askin', Jud, bein' so long sence you ben away; but th' trimmin's is fer Mate's weddin', an' th' licker sorter hitches up to it.

"Have your glass filled ag'in? I 'lowed you would.

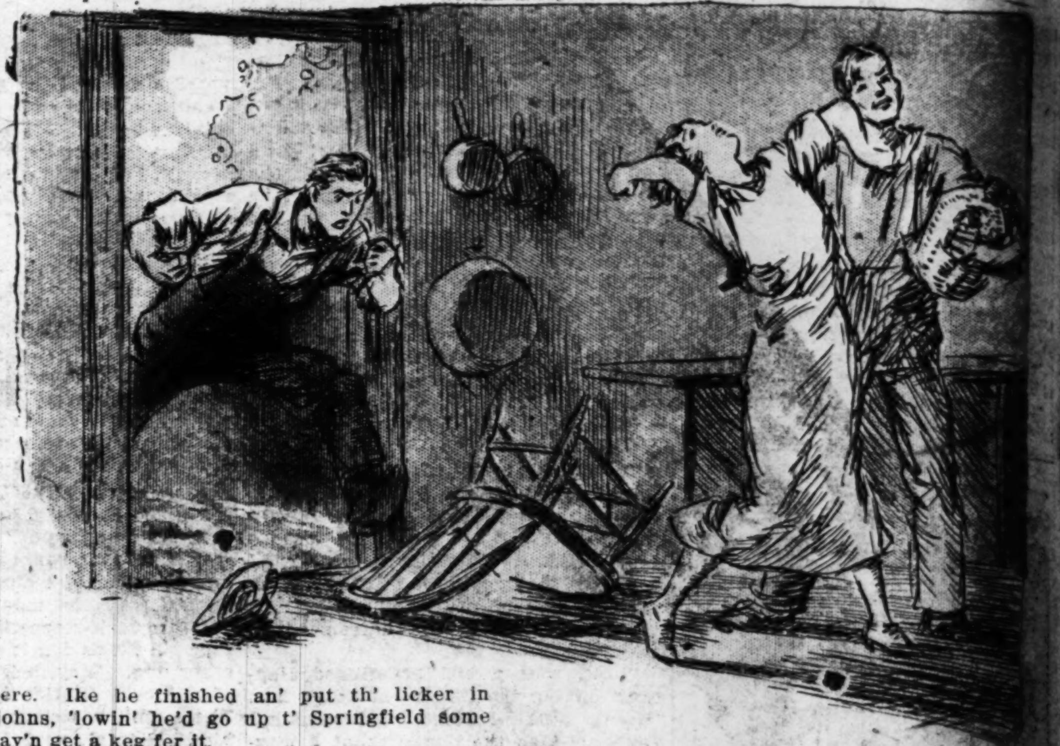
"YOU see, Mate's a woman now, 'tho' when you last seen her she was jest a spindlin' slip of a girl. She's purty, Mate is, an' purty in a diffrunt sort of way from most girls. Pap says mebbe lovin' an' waitin' an' sufferin' an' hopin' an' prayin' all mixed up together kinda set their mark on her. Pap allus did have ides thataway, you know.

"'Member them Rankinses as used to live over Red Knob way? 'Course you do. Shif'less they was, an' no 'count, 'cept Ike, the boy. Ike allus showed some spunk and git-up, even when his pap an' mammy was laziest. Well, little after you left, the ol' folks ups an' dies an' Pap he 'lowed Ike'd better come an' stay with us 'tel he'd find what he wanted to do. So Ike come.

"'Bout fourteen-fifteen year old he was then an' he hadn't ben here but a short spell 'tel we all felt like he'd orter ben here all along. Jest fit in, he did. Took to Mate like he'd allus ben her brother, an' fust thing we knowed, Mate was sayin' she'd never marry nobody but Ike, like kids will, you know. Ike'd turn red an' the rest of us 'd laugh at Mate 'tel she'd git mad an' go sulkin'. Jest a mite she was then, mebbe twelve year or thereabouts.

"One thing Ike'd learned good from his wuthless dad, an' that was how to make corn licker. Pap'd never 'low to make more'n twelve-fifteen gallon every fall, him never sellin' none and bein' moderate how he used it. Ike took over th' makin' th' fall he come an' Pap 'lowed he'd never tasted none better.

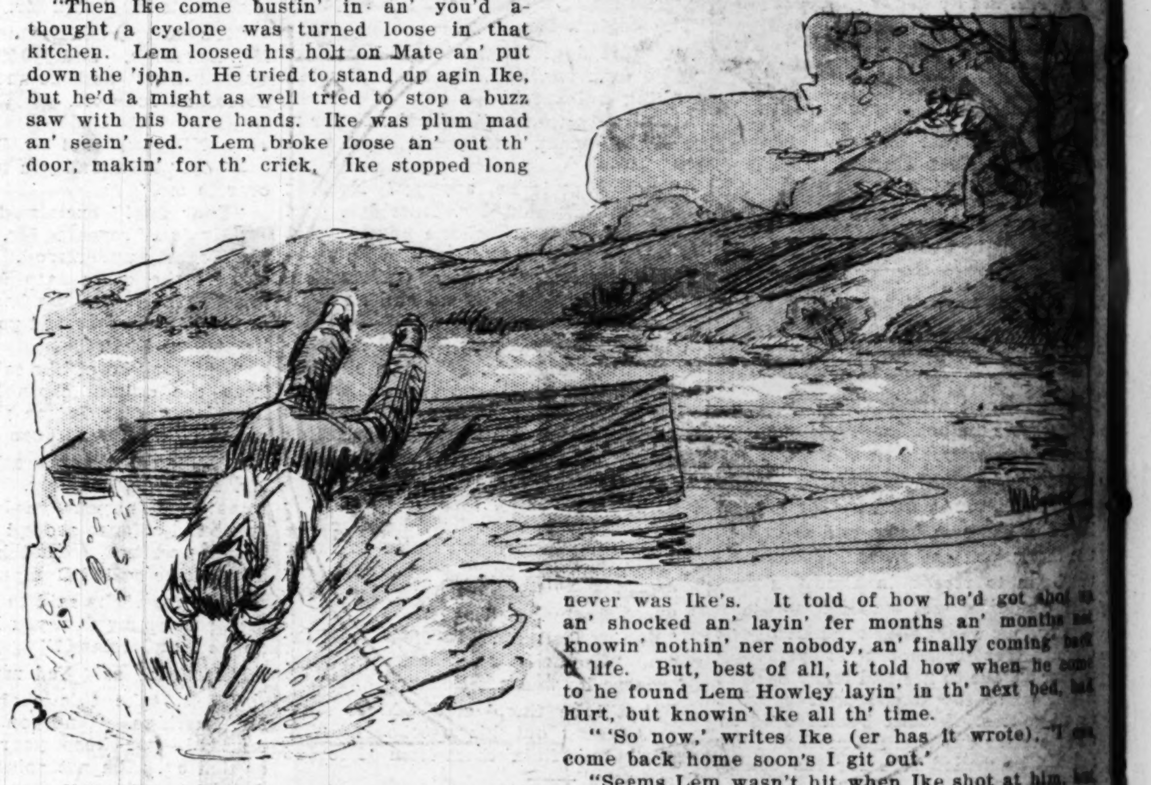
"'Long eight year ago this fall we'd a extry good crop an' Ike 'lowed he'd make up a extry kegful an' kinda have it handy case some year they wouldn't git to make a run, an' Pap said go ahead. Mate, she got cur'us an' went pesterin' Ike 'bout why he was makin' so much licker an' t' git red of her he told her he was makin' it to have at th' weddin' when she married him. It'd been a long time sence Mate'd said anything 'bout that an' I seen her blushin' mighty red when she come back int' th' settin' room here. Ike he finished an' put th' licker in 'johns, 'lowin' he'd go up t' Springfield some day'n get a keg fer it.



"NEXT day or so, long th' middle of th' afternoon, I was nappin' upstairs. Pap was away. Ike was choppin' out yender where you see them shotes, an' Mate was bakin' in th' kitchen. First I knowed I heerd Mate scream fit t' kill. I 'lowed she'd burnt herself, and I come runnin' down an' t' th' kitchen.

"Laws!" I sunk down on th' floor an' couldn't lift a finger. There was that loafin', good-fer-nothin' Lem Howley, drunker'n a fool an' meaner'n sin. I saw right off he was dangerouser'n a rock rattler. He had one of Ike's 'johns in one hand an' a arm around Mate, squeezin' her tighter'n tighter an' all th' time drawin' down that ugly face of his'n closter an' closter to her'n an' leerin' like a reg-lar devil.

"Then Ike come bustin' in an' you'd a-thought a cyclone was turned loose in that kitchen. Lem loosed his holt on Mate an' put down the 'john. He tried to stand up agin Ike, but he'd a might as well tried to stop a buzz saw with his bare hands. Ike was plum mad an' seein' red. Lem broke loose an' out th' door, makin' for th' crick. Ike stopped long enuff to git an' load Pap's rifle an' went after him. Lem got in th' skiff an' was paddlin' down stream, which was purty high. Ike he ups an' shoots. Lem, he went overboard an' didn't come up an' th' skiff went on down th' crick. Two-three days after they found it down by Mullin's dam, but they never was nothin' found of Lem.



"WHEN Ike come back in th' kitchen, all th' mad was gone out of him. He was jest a big, scared boy, an' I could see all th' love a human bein' could have shine from his eyes on Mate cuddlin' there in my arms. He didn't say a word to her; just come over an' stroked her hair, kinda sobbin' like. Th' other hand he reached down an' took hold of her'n and squeezed it. Then he up an' gone.

"It was a week 'fore we seen Ike agin, an' then he come in th' middle of th' night. He'd gone an' jined up in th' army an' hed on new shiney yeller shoes and short knee pants with things wrapped 'round his laigs, an' a coat thet fit like th' bark on a tree.

"He didn't stay, only jest to say good-by. Mate'd come downstairs. She didn't say nothin', only when Ike was ready to go she up an' throwed her arms about his neck and kissed him.

"As I said, nobody ever found a trace of Lem. Nobody but us knowed about th' shootin' an', 'course, we didn't say nothin' to nobody. Ike's goin' didn't cause no gossipin', 'cause ever'body'd 'lowed he'd up an' go sometime, anyhow, them not knowin' Ike an' lowin' he was like his shif'less pa.

"First thing Mate done was t' send up t' Springfield fer a keg. She burned it out like she'd seen Ike do, then she put Ike's licker in it an' hid it away in the [illegible]

"'Ike'll come back some time t' marry me,' [illegible] says, 'an' it'll be waitin' fer him, jest like I will.'

"ONCE in a while they'd come cards 'thout [illegible] writin' on 'em, but we knowed they was from Ike. See, he didn't know nobody knowed about [illegible] shootin' but us, was why he didn't write none, an' [illegible] couldn't write, 'cause we never knowed where [illegible] was. Purty nigh all over the country he went.

"Then come th' war an' Ike was 'mongst th' [illegible] t' git took acrost. We got a card tellin' when his [illegible] went. First we'd hed with his name on it. Then come cards from places in France, but after while they [illegible] comin' an' fer more'n a year we didn't git a [illegible]

"Then 'long come a letter wrote in a hand that never was Ike's. It told of how he'd got [illegible] an' shocked an' layin' fer months an' months [illegible] knowin' nothin' ner nobody, an' finally coming' back t' life. But, best of all, it told how when he come to he found Lem Howley layin' in th' next bed, [illegible] hurt, but knowin' Ike all th' time.

"'So now,' writes Ike (er has it wrote), '[illegible] come back home soon's I git out.'

"Seems Lem wasn't hit when Ike shot at him, but ducked an' swum to shore, an' not keerin' much fer nobody hereabouts nohow, he ups an' tramps away. He died there in thet hospittle.

"Well, it was many, many months 'fore Ike got out of France an' many, many more 'fore they'd let him come back here. Mate went clean up to Michigan [illegible] somewheres when he got there to tell him we was [illegible] waitin' fer him. I guess her goin' must helped him a lot, 'cause he mended faster an' faster [illegible] months ago he come, shaky as a quakin' asp. But you know how this hill air is: it braced him wonderful. He's most well now as you or me. Him and Mate an' Pap's gone over now t' git th' license.

"His licker wasn't teched 'tel a week ago. Pap had t' go up t' Springfield an' took a nip or two along. Give a taste of it t' one of his money friends an' he up an' paid Pap $50 a gallon fer 10 gallon. A fool an' his money is soon parted.

"But that $500 made th' first payment on the patch of Hillman's acrost th' road an' next year if you come down this way you'll see th' finest [illegible] of strawberry and grape vines you ever laid eyes on.

"Here they come now. Pap'll have a fit if you don't stay fer th' weddin', Jud."

"Tell Me
How you reduced"

Perhaps millions of people have asked millions of others that question in late years. And the answer is often Marmola.

Consider how conditions have changed since Marmola came into use. That was 18 years ago. Then excess fat was common. The only ways to reduction were through abnormal exercise and diet.

Then medical research discovered the factors in Marmola which act on the cause of fat. The result was the famous Marmola Prescription which now comes in tablet form.

Look about you and note the results. Excess fat is now uncommon. Slender figures, beautiful and fashionable, dominate every circle.

Marmola acts on the cause of fat in a scientific way. We state every ingredient, and explain exactly how results come. Every user knows the reason for reduction. The use has grown until 100,000 boxes of Marmola are now used every month.

Excess fat is a blight to beauty, to health and to efficiency. There is now an easy way to combat it—a scientific way. People all about you now employ it. Will you not let us explain and prove what that method means to you? Do that in fairness to yourself.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Send this coupon for our latest book, a 25-ct. sample free and our guarantee. Clip it now.

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

Wash Away Pounds of Fat Double Chins and Years of Age with La-Mar Reducing Soap

Shrinks the Skin as it Dissolves the Fat

REDUCE!

The new discovery, La-Mar Reducing Soap, brings quick and amazing results. No dieting, no exercising, nothing to take internally. Reduce any part of the body at will without affecting any other part. La-Mar acts like magic on double chin, big abdomen, ugly, shapeless ankles, wrists and arms, large hips or breasts or on superfluous fat on any part of the body or all over it. It is easy and pleasant to use and absolutely harmless—cleansing, cooling, soothing and effective. La-Mar Reducing Soap is sold on a money-back guarantee by Judge & Dolph's Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co. and all good drug and department stores, or direct to you by prepaid parcel post if your dealer cannot supply you. Price 50c a cake or three cakes for $1.00; one to three cakes usually accomplish its purpose. You'll be surprised at results.

The dainty woman is ashamed of Corns

They show a lack of personal care and daintiness. . . . It is her respect for all the unseen parts of the body which marks the gentlewoman. . . . Any woman will look after her face. A lady will take just as much care of her feet. A blemish there is just as much of a personal reproach. . . . For the well-bred woman considers her feet as a definite contribution to her beauty. So she keeps them so exquisite that they could be viewed at any time, without the faintest embarrassment. . . . The face may deceive—the feet never. There one discovers the breeding of a woman. She is peasant or princess according to the degree of their daintiness.

Blue-jay is the delightful way to end a corn. A tiny cushion, cool as velvet, fits over the corn—relieving the pressure. The pain stops at once. Soon the corn goes. Blue-jay leaves nothing to guesswork. You do not have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each downy plaster is a complete standardized treatment, with just the right amount of the magic medication to end the corn.

DRS. STEWART AND NORTH JOIN BAKER IN BACKDOWN

Apparently Neither Will Adhere to Threat to Resign From Health Board Unless Dr. Enloe Does.

GOVERNOR SAYS HE PLANS NO ACTION

Incidents Complained of Occurred During the Administration of His Predecessor, He Says.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 10.—Gov. Baker, who Wednesday night sent Drs. Emmett P. North and James Stewart to Dr. Cortez F. Enloe to get his resignation from the State Board of Health, following their threat that they would resign unless Enloe did, faced about yesterday and declared that he did not want and would not accept the resignation of his friend and adviser.

And today it became apparent that neither Dr. North nor Dr. Stewart intended to adhere to their threat to resign. They and the four other members of the board, besides Dr. Enloe, now appear likely to remain on the board until the matter "blows over."

Basis of Complaint.

The complaint against Dr. Enloe, made to the Governor by Drs. North and Stewart Wednesday night, as the basis for their demand as to Enloe and their threat to resign their own places, was based largely on disclosures as to Dr. R. R. Horton of Purdy. These disclosures came in connection with the State's suit to deprive the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery of its charter. Dr. Horton, it was shown, took money from applicants for physicians' licenses, in advance of the board's examinations, for his supposed "influence," receiving $1445 in three known cases. Dr. Enloe was then secretary of the board.

In his statement to reporters here yesterday, Gov. Baker emphasized the fact that the Horton incidents occurred during the administration of his predecessor, Gov. Hyde. The incidents were not made public, however, until they developed from the pending suit against the Kansas City College, a few days ago.

"All this stuff they are talking about occurred before I became Governor," Gov. Baker said. "Things that happen while I am Governor, I take some interest in.

"If the State Board of Health wanted to take action the time to do it was when those things happened. They should not unload it on me now. I have troubles of my own."

Governor's Attitude.

Continuing, the Governor declared:

"No difefrence what anyone else says or does, this is what I am going to do. I have not asked Dr. Enloe's resignation, I do not intend to ask for it, and would not accept it if it is tendered, at least not now."

Asked as to what he meant by "At oaelsntt now," the Governor did not go into detail. He said that was his position, "for the present."

"I have had no data presented to me to justify me in making any statement other than I have just made.

"There never has been a time when I could not have had Dr. Enloe's resignation if I wanted it."

The Governor said his reason for making yesterday the statement, which had not been expected until today, was that he expected to be very busy today, and planned to leave Tuesday for the American Legion State convention at Springfield. His purpose in making a "final" statement on the matter yesterday appeared to be that he might have it out of his way today.

Drs. North and Stewart were here today, and both said they would take no action until they should have a chance to confer with the Governor. Because of his attitude toward the Enloe matter, as finished business, it did not seem likely that the president and secretary of the board would see the Governor officially today.

Board Members Confer.

Before they left St. Louis last night, Drs. North and Stewart conferred with three other members of the board in person. These were Drs. T. H. Wilcoxen of Bowling Green, H. S. Gove of Linn and H. S. Kerr of Crane. The only
